SUMS UP FOR SAGE.

Col. James Begins the End of the Laidlaw Suit.

Diagram of the Millionaire's Office Offered in Evidence.

Reasons Given as to Why Alterations Were Made.

In the trial of the suit brought by William R. Laidlaw, Jr., against Russell Sage for $50,000 damages alleged to have been suffered by Laidlaw through Sage's having seized him and used him as a buffer when Norcross the crank, threw a grip sack full of dynamite at the venerable millionaire, Mr. Laidlaw and Mr. Sage flatly contradicted each other. The only other witness who survived the explosion that shook the Arcade Building, 71 Broadway, to its foundations was the sensation of the day, Frank Robinson, twenty-three years old, who had just entered the offices of Mr. Sage on a business errand.

Young Robinson lost his right eye and lay at the point of death in Chambers Street Hospital for three weeks.

The young man saw Norcross inside the office railing talking with Mr. Sage. He saw Clark Norton, who was seated at a desk as he leaned on the stock ticker. He saw Laidlaw, who leaned on the desk a few feet from Sage. He saw Norcross draw a revolver from his right overcoat pocket and drop it into his pocket again. He turned to escape, and as he hurried the explosion came, having the bomb-thrower into fragments and wrecked the office.

It was found that the witness had stood in front of a window in the office railing and had seen the explosion. He saw the witness who had been in the office at the time of the explosion. He saw the witness who had been in the office at the time of the explosion. He saw the witness who had been in the office at the time of the explosion.

Reasons Given as to Why Alterations Were Made.

Mr. Sage said he was a resident of Chattanooga, Tenn. "Where is he now?" "He is in the city." "He has been in the city." "Look around and see if you can discover him." Mr. Sage looked at the big thermometer on the wall that tells how warm it is in the room. He saw the thermometer and he saw the thermometer. He saw the thermometer and he saw the thermometer.

Recruits in Washington State.

TAOCMA, Wash., March 29.—According to statements of leading Populists, there are in Tacoma and Seattle over 150 members of the independent army. Some time ago a man representing himself as an organizer of this order was in this city, and it is said, gained a large number of recruits. The Populists allege he is a member, says that instructions have been received from the organizers that they should carry out a march and will superintend the culinary department in camp.

THE FLORENTINE DIAMOND.

A Grand and Glorious Gem with a Curious History. The Imperial Treasury of Austria contains the Florentine diamond, one of the finest of the world, noted for its lustre and brilliancy, says the Chicago Tribune. It is said to be worth $600,000. It once belonged to Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, who was rather carelessly killed by a French soldier. The diamond lay on the road, and a Swiss soldier picked it up, and looking upon it as a piece of glass, threw it down again, but as it fell the sun's rays caught it and the soldier, thinking it was a jewel, concluded to carry it along. Shortly after this he showed it to a priest. The priest admired it and gave him two shillings for it.

Frye's Brigade Gets on the Move at Last Across Texas.

"Demure Quaker Maiden" Recruit Promised at Philadelphia.

COLUMBIANA, O., March 30.—Songs were heard all over the Commonwealth camp soon after dawn today. There was a promise of plenty to eat, warm quarters and a brilliant morning. The foundry, where the camp was established, was at one time the experimental laboratory of the notorious Johnston, the patentee of a process of gas manufacture from crude oil.

Deserted for years, the sudden heat of the many open camps inside had a curious effect. The frozen floor thawed out before 10 o'clock, and the Commonwealth was wallowing in the liquid mud three inches deep.

Thirty-four of the soldiers broke through the picket line out of camp and spent the night comfortably in the located yesterday by the people here. Many of the older and more respectable soldiers got nothing but potatoes and bread for breakfast. Others had several chops, coffee, preserves and other delicacies.
