

BROOKLYN. TROLLEY MEN DEFIED POLICE. Refused to Show a Permit or to Stop Digging.

Three Arrested After a Scrimmage with a Bluecoat.

There was a lively row shortly before midnight between a gang of laborers employed by the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company and several policemen of the Prospect Park squad.

The railroad has been trying to string trolley wires across Ocean avenue, at Flatbush avenue. The Park Department has refused to permit the work to go on.

A crowd of about twenty-five laborers and inspectors arrived outside the entrance to the Park at 11 o'clock last night being digging a hole to set up a trolley pole.

Policeman James Lonigan, of the Park Department, demanded to see a permit from the Department before he would allow the men to continue.

Supt. Brockbank, who directed the operations of the men, ordered the gang to proceed. Lonigan told them if they didn't cease operations he would arrest them.

Two of the men defied the policeman and resumed work. Then several laborers grabbed the policeman and, it is alleged, struck him on the head with a brick.

Lonigan called for assistance, and several policemen ran up, and after short struggle arrested the men.

The prisoners were Henry and Thomas Brockbank, of 1374 Atlantic avenue, and Henry Burns, of 227 Atlantic avenue.

In the Butler Street Court to-day the men were charged with violating a city ordinance erecting trolley poles without a permit. The case was adjourned until May 14.

The men claim they were working under a permit granted by the City Works Department on May 4, allowing the Company to erect four poles in Ocean avenue.

BURGLARS, SWINDLERS, ETC. Brooklyn Police Kept Guessing by Man Petty Offenders.

Policeman Richter, of the Liberty avenue station, Brooklyn, saw two men hurrying along Liberty avenue at 4 o'clock this morning carrying two chests of tools. He ordered them to halt and the men dropped their load and ran.

After a short chase Richter captured Edward Meany, twenty-five, of 195 Irving avenue. The tools were identified as having been taken from a free building at Sheridan and Liberty avenues.

Barbara Reiter, of 44 Beaver street, told the police tonight that burglars entered her home during her absence and stolen jewelry worth $75.

A man who has been swindling tradesmen by fraudulent checks was heard from again this morning. He ordered $75 worth of goods from Robert Lase, a baker, of 581 Court street, and directed that they be sent to the steamship line at the corner of Court and Broadway.

He gave Mr. Lase a check for $25 and got $5 change. The check proved to worthless.

Thomas S. Knox, of 501 Atlantic avenue, notified the police to-day that a man, who was dressed in a suit and hat, had departed with $125 worth of jewelry belonging to Mrs. Knox.

Charles and Joseph, aged sixteen and seventeen, of 888 Pacific street, Brooklyn, were arrested this morning as they were making a break into a stable on Waverly avenue.

During the night thieves forced their way into the residence of Mrs. M. J. Smith, 339 Third avenue, and stole brass fittings valued at $100.

TRIED TO PASS BAD COIN. When He Gets Out of Jail Uncle Sam Will Try Him.

Robert O'Connor, of 231 Ellery street, was sent to jail for ten days by Justice Conolly in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day on a charge of intoxication. An additional charge against him of passing counterfeit money was referred to the United States authorities.

Up to two months ago O'Connor was employed in the electrical department of the Brooklyn City Railroad, but since then he has only been in the city jail. Last night he went into the saloon at 52 Park avenue and tried to pass a lead half-dollar. As he came away he was arrested by Officer Duffy, who had noticed his suspicious actions and followed him about from one saloon to another.

MURDERER COIRO INSANE. Warden Wants Him Removed from Raymond Street Jail.

Warden Stanley, of Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, notified the Commissioners of Charities to-day morning that Francesco Coiro, the Italian convict murderer, was a raving maniac, and asked to have him removed to the Flatbush Asylum for the Insane.

Coiro is in a strait jacket. Every time a keeper comes to see to-day, the Italian would shout for several minutes. Italians who have visited the prisoner say he behaves as in the city jail. Coiro, on March 1 last, stabbed his son-in-law, Giuseppe Biasi, to death in the hallway of the house 91 Classon avenue.

WHOLESALE VACCINATION. Brooklyn Lancets Swoop Down on the County Buildings.

Fifty doctors attached to Health Commissioner Emery's vaccinating corps and sixty policemen made a descent upon the houses near the county buildings at Flatbush to-day, and vaccinated between 200 and 300 persons. The work was accomplished within an hour, and the doctors met with no opposition.

Two cases of small-pox were reported to the Health Department to-day. The patients, Susan Wilson, twenty-four, of the Kingston avenue, near the old city line, and Robert Gurley, forty-six, of 255 Water street, were removed to the hospital.

Brooklyn Brevities.

Mary Rogers, eight years old, of 85 Cook street, was found lying on Fulton street at an early hour this morning and taken to the police station. She was sent to the Children's Society.

William Hallahan, thirty-five years old, 320 West Twenty-third street, New York, fell asleep this morning on the Baltic street car and rolled the Long Island College Hospital.

Thirteen-year-old John Donovan, of 901 Pacific street, was taken to the hospital to-day, charged with assaulting Otto Wagner, charged with assaulting Otto Wagner, charged with assaulting Otto Wagner.

Mrs. Ella Lawson, sixty-four years old, of 14 North 4th street, is at the Homeopathic Hospital, Brooklyn, to-day, suffering from the burns received by the explosion of a lamp last night.

BROOKLYN. NEW JERSEY. SMALL-SIZED BOYCOTT RIOT. SAY THEY CAN'T BE CENSORS.

Half a Hundred Williamsburg Men in a Street Fight. Western Union Officials Deny Collision with Green-Goods Men.

Policemen Capture Two of the Participants. Manager Bartholf Accused by a Grand Jury.

There was a small-sized riot in Williamsburg last night, which, for a time, assumed a threatening aspect.

John Dixon conducts a saloon at Grand street and Wythe street, and sells Budweiser beer, which the striking brewers have placed a boycott upon. He says that whenever women or children go into his place and get beer that the strikers hold them up outside, throw away the pitcher, and in many cases smash the pitcher.

James Ross lives next door to the saloon and has been much annoyed by the gangs of men who congregate in front of his place.

Last night there was a larger crowd than usual, and Ross went among them and expressed his opinion. In a moment there was the liveliest kind of a free fight when the doctor's antagonized the strikers, and the knowledge of this fact the street was blocked, and some one sent word of the riot to the Bedford avenue police station.

A patrol wagon full of policemen was sent to the scene. On their appearance the riot was without delay broken up. Ross and John McLondon, of 229 Stags street, were still fighting and were arrested, and were committed to-day in the Lee Avenue Police Court and held.

Miss Grace Salmon, of Brooklyn, has completely recovered from an attack of the horrid, vulgar mumps in a convalescent home, and will be married to-morrow evening to Edward Browning Arkenburgh.

The wedding was to have taken place on April 30, when the mumps, which mumps caused a postponement. Some of the invited guests had already arrived, and the knowledge of this fact mumps, and left them consolances instead of congratulations.

REPUBLICAN PLANS BLOCKED.

Failed to Get a Quorum to Over-ride a Veto.

Assemblers Arrested and Severely Reprimanded.

TRENTON, N. J., May 9.—The Republicans of the House this morning were unable to secure the presence of a sufficient number of Republicans to pass bills, and as a result 12 o'clock passed without Senate bill 127 being passed over the Governor's veto. This bill was to legislate out of office at noon to-day the Board of Freeholders in Essex, Camden and Faneuil Counties, and its failure to pass before that hour is held to make it inoperative.

The bill was passed over the Governor's veto in the Senate yesterday by the aid of Senator Perkins, and this morning when the Republicans found they had not enough votes of their own in the House, they endeavored in vain to secure the assistance of the Democrats. It is believed now that it will be impossible to reorganize the Board, as it is thought that another bill cannot be put through before adjournment.

The House was without a quorum. Speaker Holt this morning sent the officers for the absent members, Salinger and Gleoc, who were arrested in the city and were brought before the bar of the House and severely reprimanded. The absentees were fined $100 each, and were brought back to the city and were brought before the bar of the House and severely reprimanded.

He passed the night very quietly and was so much better this morning that he was able to get into a train for Europe this month, and they will leave here in a week or so.
