WRENTENERS VS. "LUMPERS."

Strikes Ordered on Many Sub-Contractors' Jobs During the Morning.

UNION RATES ARE DEMANDED.

Building Trade Unions Expected to Lend Their Support in the Struggle.

The east side to-day bears a holiday aspect. The striking coat-makers fill the streets. Everywhere can be seen spots of men anxiously discussing the situation. There is no rioting, no disorder, not even loud talking. Hope mingled with fear is stamped on every one of the thousands of faces upon which danger and sorrow have spread their pall.

The Executive Board of the United Brotherhood of Tailors, at its headquarters, 71 Suffolk street, is busy signing credentials for men from sweatshops where the strike has not yet been forwarded. Forthwith these credentials, each bearer of them returns to the shop to call upon the toilers there to cease work in the name of the Executive Committee. In this way sixty shops are closed within four hours this morning. That made a total of 299 of the street shops closed by 10:30 o'clock this morning since the strike was declared yesterday.

According to delegates Abraham Harrison and Herman Robinson, of the Executive Board, these shops employ about 2,000 men, employing contractors. In most of these there are not more than five or six workers, in others as many as 150. It is expected that all of these will be out on strike by Monday. The Executive Board believes that it will leave the ranks of the Knights of Labor and become members of the American Federation of Labor. The strikers belong. Delegate Harrison said that many of the members of the Executive Board have taken this step. Two thousand girls have been thrown out of work by the strike.

At 200 East Broadway to try to arrange some plan for arranging the work with the strikers. The contractors will decide upon a lockout against the large majority of the city and visiting tailors in order to compel them to increase the prices paid for coats. It is expected that the strikers will be able to afford an increase of their employees' wages. The cloak-cutters' strikes have nearly been settled to-day by the concession of most of the large firms to the demands. There are, however, still 800 men out of Julius Stein's, 511 Broadway, and at 400 Broadway, 403 Broadway, and at the committee appointed by the Executive Board of the strike and headquarters. The committee of the Operative Cloak Makers' Union will call on the firms to-day to try to bring about a settlement.

WAR ON "LUMPERS."

Union Carpenters Begin Their Fight for Regulation Wages.

The union carpenters began their organized battle this morning against the "lumpers" or sub-contract men, whereby the workmen employed by sub-contractors, or middle-men, are paid of the prevailing rate of wages, a day.

Legal aid has been appointed from the different unions as follows: John Hart and A. Schultze, Brotherhood of American Carpenters and Joiners; James W. Rogers, Amalgamated Society of Carpenters; Benjamin Hart, Progressive Carpenters' Union, and Dennis Carman will call on the contractors and joiners. William Coombs appointed secretary and general manager of the union, and headquarters established in Progress Hall, 810 Avenue C, between Fifty-first and Fifty-second streets.

The carpenters' unions are managing the strike, but have the active support of the Board of Delegates of the Building Trades, which represents all the unions. Numerous trades engaged in erecting buildings in the city.

The delegates of the carpenters' unions on board the city and visiting in the jobs where the "lumpers" are employed. The delegates of the building trades and carpenters and joiners were called out and began to assemble in Progress Hall.

There are 150 or more so-called "lumpers" who have jobs in all parts of the city, but a larger number are above Forty-second street.

Among the jobs that were struck this morning were the Charles Lennox, sub-contractor, who has the contract on nine private residences in Westchester street, near River Street, and also in twelve houses on the east side.

Sloane & Moller employed twelve men on new buildings in Sixty-second street, between First and Second avenues, and paid a day of $3.50 a day. The delegates requested the carpenters to quit the job, and they were expected to strike as was the case with Stephen Hall was reported by the delegates to be another "lumper," who employed twenty or twenty-five carpenters in eight private houses at East Fifty-ninth street and Third avenue, and paid them from $2.50 to $3.25 a day. A strike was ordered on the buildings, and the men were expected to obey the order at noon.

Six-Contractor Selfridge employs forty or fifty carpenters on job in Sixty-eighth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, and in Charles street, near Fifty-second street, near Avenue A. All the men were expected to stop work at noon and report at Progress Hall.

The union carpenters were quite sanguine of winning the fight, for the reason that the carpenters employed in these "lumper" jobs are desirous of obtaining the union rate of wages, and only want the support of the unions to encourage them in the event of their leaving their work. Then, in all cases where union men of other trades are employed in buildings where "lumpers" have contracts, the union carpenters expected to force matters by calling upon the Board of Delegates of the Building Trades to order strikes on all such jobs.

The work of visiting the numerous "lumper" jobs being necessarily slow, the delegates did not expect any large number of carpenters to strike before night, but the men were coming to Progress Hall in small squads, and it was thought fully 1,000 would be out before 6 o'clock, and others would quit work to-morrow. It was estimated that fully 1,500 carpenters in all are, or were, engaged on "lumper" jobs.

BABY M'KEE'S FIRST PLAY.

He and Little Mary Lodge Go with Grandpa to See "Shenandoah."

There was much childish prattle in room 171 of the Fifth Avenue Hotel last night. This is the sitting-room of the suite occupied by ex-President Harrison, his daughter, Mrs. McKee, and her daughter's children, Baby McKee and Miss Mary Lodge McKee. The children saw the big parade yesterday and went to a theatre for the first time in their lives, so they had a great deal to talk about, of course. Gen. Harrison felt pleased to see them so delighted. He sat in one corner of the room pretending to read his paper, but the really looking eye his top and listening to every word. Mrs. McKee sat quietly in the other corner with hands folded, and was softly smiling. In the third corner Mary Lodge McKee, a wee black-haired and black-eyed girl in a fiery-red dress, sat with dignity in a big high velvet easy chair, holding on to each arm, and her eyes and ears wide open. Her mother, Mrs. McKee, who is now seven years old and wears knickerbockers.

It is strange that a man who is so frigid in all other ways has such a warm fondness for children. Gen. Harrison is a very happy father in Baby McKee. He could pass his life in a nursery and have that life filled with delight and joy. Yet when he gives up his hand you feel that you are grasping a bunch of icicles and in his presence you are turned into a man of iron. He has gotten into your winter coat and wonder where you hang up your ear-muffs in the early morning. He is the only man who has aged very much since the campaign of 1888. He is very white in hair and aged, and wears the placid look of a man who would like to sit on his front porch and let the years glide by as gently as they would.

"I took the children to the theatre to-day," said the General. "I had never seen a play before. We went to 'Shenandoah' at the Academy of Music, and it is a great play. We all enjoyed it. I do not care to criticize, but we all liked it and that is my good." Gen. Harrison took the children and bought their tickets. Nobody recognized him. He was in a room, however, and he was seen when the tumult of that tableau was over and the man pointed him out and called for three cheers for Harrison, which were given. The great crowds of soldiers in the battle scenes of the "Shenandoah" caused the children to fill with excitement. So did the galloping horses dragging the cannon. He told them a story over and over, and when his grandpa's cane around the room. He said, "I was in the room when Winchester, 'twenty miles away."

THE TENNESSEE LYNCHINGS.

They Have Aroused the Whole State to Indignant Protest.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 4.—Criminal Court Judge J. C. Cooper left for Nashville at midnight, where he will meet Gov. Turney and personally lay the facts connected with the lynching of the six alleged negro barn burners near Millington, Tenn., before the Governor, and urge that a large reward be offered for the capture of the mob.

The Grand Jury took up the lynching to-day, and several indictments are expected.

At a meeting of the magistrates of Shelby County resolutions were adopted denouncing the lynching, and demanding that the lynchers be brought to justice. The whole city is aroused, and the leading citizens are petitioning the Governor to offer rewards for the members of the mob.

Thirty Servants Left Without Food or Means to Leave Town, When She Complained of Hunger He Offered Her Paris Green.

Proprietor Jackson Said to Have Skipped, Leaving Many Creditors.

LONG BRANCH, Sept. 4.—The United States Hotel in charge of the Sheriff, William, who is looking for Henry Knelling, who is wanted on a charge of threatening to kill his wife. The complaint also charges that he kept her walking up and down the streets of Williamsburg from 10 o'clock Saturday night until 11 o'clock Sunday night.

Mrs. Knelling, who is a light intelligent-looking woman, lives at 1067 Myrtle avenue. Her husband could be briefly described as a tramp. He was one of the men who occupied ex-Congressman Archie Bliss's deserted house, and whose presence gave rise to the belief that there were ghosts in the place.

One day last week a bottle was left at the Oak street station by a man who said he had picked up a card containing a message from Knelling to his wife, stating that he had decided to kill himself. When the woman was seen, all she had to say was that she was afraid it was not true.

On Saturday night she went to visit some friends, and did not return until after 10 o'clock. In the doorway she was confronted by her husband, who told her that if she did not go with him he would kill her.

"I know how to keep his word," said Mrs. Knelling, "for he is a perfect fool. He led me up and down streets all the night, but before we had been out half an hour he made me accompany him into a drug store, where he bought some Paris green. This he said he wanted to have so that we could both die together, and every little while he would say 'it was about time we went to heaven.'"

According to the story told by Mrs. Knelling, she kept walking about the streets all day Sunday, not eating or drinking, and when she was asked for food or sleep. When she told him she was hungry he offered her Paris green.

About 11 o'clock at night Policeman Collins noticed the couple walking through one of the couple sections of Williamsburg, and believing that some mischief was being hatched, he went to investigate. At the very first question he asked Mrs. Knelling cried, "Save me!" and faintly, while Knelling took to his heels.

Collins took Mrs. Knelling to the Vernon street station. There she revived and was sent home.

The warrant for Knelling's arrest was taken from the sheriff's office yesterday. The clerk, who made out the papers, and embodied the charge of "murder," was told by Knelling to "own the streets from 11 P. M. Saturday to 11 P. M. Sunday, save that one man is guilty of a very bad conduct."

PLAYING CARD STAMPS.

Two Million Have Been Printed During the Last Two Weeks.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Two million of the new playing-card revenue stamps made necessary by the Tariff bill have been printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in the last two weeks. Every pack of playing cards offered for sale, whether by the manufacturers, the wholesale dealers or the retailers, must have a stamp that costs two cents apiece, under penalty of a heavy fine.

Two varieties of the stamps are being printed, a red stamp, which, besides the usual heading and denomination, bears the words "On hand, August, '94," and a blue one for regular use, printed "Series of '94." The designs are very simple, consisting in the places of all the internal revenue stamps is being made by the Bureau to conform to the new law.

Those already in stock of the last series will not be wasted, but will have the same words stamped across the technical term is.

Big Crop of Crawford Peaches.

ALBION, N. Y., Sept. 4.—An unprecedented crop of Crawford peaches is being raised in Orleans and Niagara Counties, and prices have dropped this week as low as 35 cents per basket. Many growers will pick 5,000 to 6,000 baskets of first quality fruit from their orchards.

Monument at Konigsberg Unveiled by the Emperor.

KONIGSBERG, Sept. 4.—Emperor William, accompanied by the Empress, arrived here at 11 o'clock this morning in order to unveil the monument erected to the memory of his grandfather, Emperor William I. The town is in holiday array, crowded with visitors and handsomely decorated. Emperor William was on horseback and the Empress rode in a carriage. Upon their arrival at the gates of the city all the bells were set ringing and the Mayor read an address of welcome from the people of Konigsberg. The Imperial party then proceeded to the main square, where the monument stands.

On the square a guard of honor was drawn up. Count Von Eulenberg, as President of the Memorial Committee, received their Majesties, and in a speech of welcome dwelt upon the memorable services which William I. had rendered to the Fatherland. A prayer followed, after which the Emperor unveiled the monument. Then came a march past of the troops, after which the Imperial party took lunch at the castle.

IN MEMORY OF WILLIAM I. LAWYER CODDING'S DENIAL.

He Declares that A. H. Wilcox Was Not His Partner.

Lawyer Charles N. Coddling, of 29 Broadway, when seen to-day regarding a despatch from Chicago, that A. H. Wilcox had been arrested in Buffalo, charged with the claims against Wilcox from Mr. Coddling and F. S. Pusy, of Philadelphia, who were his partners in business in Chicago, said:

"The facts reported in the despatch are untrue. I was never a partner of Wilcox, and so far as I know he has not been arrested. I am the counsel for Mr. Pusy and some other Philadelphia gentlemen in the claims against Wilcox. As I was unable to locate him, I employed detectives to do so. The detectives found him in Buffalo, and I went there and had a business talk with him, but I did not have him arrested. It is probable that the matter will be satisfactorily settled."

But Keeper McNish Does Not Remember Any Fist Blow.

Testifies in Brockway's Favor at the Defense Hearing.

He Admits that Victims Were Struck on the Head with a Strap.

Brockway and his Board of Managers of the Elmira Reformatory began this morning, at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, their defense in the second investigation of the mismanagement of the institution and of the inhuman treatment of its inmates.

The State Board of Charities unanimously condemned Brockway at the close of the first inquiry, and now the managers are on trial for neglect of duty in failing to remove him.

"Jimmy, the Tough," carried on the rug of the reformatory as James Lagendy, a keeper, was a conspicuous figure in the corridors of the hotel. The peculiarity of his carriage, with his elevated shoulders and dropped chin, contrasting strongly with his surroundings.

Ex-Convict and Prison Clerk Oscar Hagner, keepers Sam Semple and Burdette Spencer and W. C. Wey, President of the Board of Managers, and J. B. Stanchfield, counsel, also came down from Elmira last night.

The defense, it is said, will endeavor to make light of the evidence against them, and in default of witnesses to refute the charges, will try to prove by "The World," will try to launch away the stories of Brockway's cruelty to over 10,000 victims.

From four to five days will be consumed by Brockway and his fellows in their efforts to dissipate the clouds of evidence against them.

The course of inquiry seventy-two limit the charges of the institution. That Brockway struck them over the head with a paddle; twenty-five had their heads struck by Brockway; fourteen had been knocked senseless by Brockway; eight were struck up by the warden; one of the floor while being padded by Brockway; thirty-five had been kicked and punched by keepers in Brockway's presence; and one inmate whose blood had been drawn while under punishment by Brockway.

Brockway's records showed that 2,500 inmates had been subjected to excessive punishment, and that inmates subsequently transferred to other wards had been beaten.

L. L. Larned, of Albany; Israel T. Devo, of Binghamton, and Dr. Austin Flint, of this city, the three other members appointed by Gov. Flower to conduct the investigation, arrived promptly at 10:30 o'clock. Brockway had been in the city since the trial.

Jessie S. McNish, an ex-guard, night watchman and keeper at the Elmira Reformatory, who had been in the cell when he was keeper in the hall in 1887. He was in the bathroom when Leopold Cohen was in the cell, and McNish's name was taken there. Brockway and Winnie were also present.

STOLE FROM HER MOTHER.

A Fourteen-Year-Old Girl Makes a Confession in Court.

Pretty little Rosie Gutekunst, fourteen years old, living with her parents at 582 Eleventh avenue, was one of the prisoners arraigned at the Yorkville Police Court this morning. She was charged with having robbed her mother, Mrs. Jenny Gutekunst, within the past three weeks of $22 in cash. Rosie is a blonde, of medium build, and said that she was put up to steal by her mother. She said that she had stolen $22 from her mother's pocket, and that she had given it to her mother's friend, Kate Noble, also fourteen years old, who lives on Eleventh avenue, near Forty-first street, who had been invited to go with her to the Forty-first street Sunday-school excursion and to Coney Island.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Gutekunst discovered the loss of her money. Her husband, who had been in the cell when she arrived, she was taken with the theft, and at once made a full confession, and pleaded not to be sent to prison.

Mrs. Gutekunst told her to have thought of the money, and she had dragged her to the station-house, and placed her in the custody of Detective Irving, who had been in the cell when she arrived. She was placed in the care of the Gerry Society for the present.

CAPT. FRITSCH SIGHTED.

The Lone Mariner Was Doing Well in His 24-Foot Craft.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4.—Capt. Fritsch, who sailed from New York four weeks ago for Queenstown alone in the forty-foot schooner Nina, a tiny craft of twenty-four feet on the keel, was spoken Aug. 26 by the Atlantic Transport Line steamer Menantic, which arrived in Baltimore yesterday.

Fritsch, who was accompanied by the Nina the Menantic, told Capt. Fritsch that he was alone. Third Officer Rowden performed this office, and found everything snug and comfortable on board.

The lone mariner told the people on board the Nina that he was in the best of health and spirits, and was glad to hear a human voice again.
