MEMBER OF NAVAL POST, G. A. R.

His Comrades to Demand a Rigid Investigation of What Seems a Flagrant Wrong.

The members of Naval Post, No. 516, G. A. R., will at the next meeting be called to take action on what Adj. John Thompson regards as the grossest kind of an outrage committed upon one of the Post's members. Not only are the facts of the case well known in the Harlem prison, and the organization have been unofficially informed, and on every side the greatest indignation is being manifested.

They want to know how it happened that Patrick Kelly, a member of Naval Post, who fought under Farragut, should, while in the garb of a Grand Army man, wearing the Grand Army button, be committed by a police justice as a vagrant, forced to sleep on a plank bed in the Harlem prison, and then kept for six days more in the Tombs. All this despite the fact that Kelly was not a vagrant and never asked to be committed.

PATRICK KELLY.

Naval Post will hold its next meeting Sept. 24. Resolutions will be passed asking Mayor Gilroy to make a strict investigation.

Patrick Kelly is now fifty-two years old. He was a boy when, at the call of his country, he enlisted at the Brooklyn Navy-Yard, and at once went into active service. He came out of the war with an honorable discharge and without a serious injury. He returned to his native city and married. He is now a widower, but has one daughter, who is married and lives on Staten Island. One son is located out West.

A Hard-Working Mechanic.

Kelly was of strong, robust constitution, and even now, though his hair is nearly white, he is straight as an arrow and looks as if he might live another score of years or so. He is a machinist by trade, and for twelve years has worked in the shops of the Manhattan L. Road Company at One Hundred and Forty-sixth street and Eighth avenue. At present he is boarding at 311 West Forty-fifth street. Three weeks ago Kelly became afflicted with rheumatism, and he was obliged to give up work temporarily. He did not have any large amount of money, and during the past year or two the L. road shops have been running on half time.

At the Holland House, where Gov. Altdorf had been, he had gone out to look at the case, and had not returned until this morning, and had not returned until this morning, and had not returned until this morning.

The report was laid on the table.

H. A. Clark's civil-service amendment, providing for filling State positions only after examination under Civil-Service rules, was taken up.

One of the peculiar features of the police situation is the apparent inability of the Board of Police Commissioners in the matter of appointing successors of the four captains who have recently been dismissed.

According to Secretary Lee Phillips, of the Civil-Service Bureau, no communication of that nature has been received by him in fact Mr. Phillips has not officially that any vacancies in the ranks of police captains exist.

STABILIZING G. A. R. STORY.

Capt. Geo. H. Davenport, the Popular and Well-Known G. A. R. Veteran, Relates an Experience. A Leader and Power in Grand Army Circles.

THE following day at Whately, I gave an address before the G. A. R., without any apparent fanfare, which I could not have done before I used Dr. Greene's Nervura.

"I have often recommended this wonderful cure for disease to my friends, and shall be happy to answer any further inquiries from any one."

The experience of the gallant Captain is the experience of everybody. All who use this great cure of disease, this restorer of health and strength, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve restorer, report that it invariably makes them feel better.

The weak, nervous and ailing should try it on the strength of what everybody who has used it says of its wonderful curative power. It will cure you.

It is not a patent medicine, but the discovery and prescription of Dr. Greene, of 55 West 141st Street, New York, the most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases, who can be consulted by anybody without charge, personally or by letter.

The week closed with a very tame speculation in Foreign Stock Exchange, many operators not having put in an appearance at all. In the early trading, Chicago Gas yielded 1-2, to 69-18, under selling by the same brokers who hammered the stock yesterday on the talk of Chicago about the prospect of a fierce gas war.

The short interest, however, had increased to such an extent that the feature of the exhibit, however, is an expansion in loans of $3,385,700, showing that the mercantile demand for money is increasing.

The following are the comparative figures:

Table with columns for various financial metrics and values.

The Cotton Market Was Also on the Downward Turn.

The wheat market opened lower by about 1-4c, December selling here at 69-1-4c and 69-1-4c in Chicago, and later fell off about 3-8c more. Corn was about 3-8c lower at the start. May selling at 59-1-4c, but only by 59-1-4c, and 59-1-4c.
