STEPHENSON AGAIN CHARGED.

Contractor Carpenter Says He Paid Him Protection Money.

Investigation of official corruption in the Police Department by the Lexow Committee, which was interrupted nearly three weeks ago to allow the Senators to devote their attention to State politics for awhile, was resumed to-day.

The committee has changed its headquarters from the large, comfortable room in the Superior Court to the smaller room formerly occupied as Part III of the Court of General Sessions in the old brownstone building.

The committee has changed its headquarters from the large, comfortable room in the Superior Court to the smaller room formerly occupied as Part III of the Court of General Sessions in the old brownstone building.

Even the members of the committee were cramped for room, and the newspaper representatives were squeezed into the narrowest quarters.

The room has been partially dismantled since the removal to the new Criminal Court Building, and a light-colored square in the center of the smoky wall showed where the clock had formerly hung.

The court-room was packed at 10:30 A. M. Chairman Lexow had come in and was holding a consultation with his colleagues.

Chief Clerk Kipp. There were several women in the witness box, and among members of the committee were Major Kipp, ex-Chief Clerk of the Board, and ex-Ward Man Jeremiah S. Levy.

Assaults on Subpoena Servers. It was just 10 o'clock when Chairman Lexow rapped for order.

It was just 10 o'clock when Chairman Lexow rapped for order. He was ready to go on, opened the proceedings by saying that he wished to call the attention of the committee to several assaults that had been committed on subpoena servers and other persons employed by him in getting witnesses.
