

40 TO 50 SHOT AT MORRIS PARK.

Warlike Badly Upsets the Talent by Winning the Second Event.

FIVE FINISH IN A BUNCH.

Brambleta Filly, April Fool, Tuscan, Luconia and Chicot Heads Apart.

BRIGHT PHOEBUS' ALBANY.

Rubicon Wins the Jerome Handicap and the All-Aged Serial Goes to Glenmoyne.

(Special to the Evening World.) RACE TRACK, MORRIS PARK, Oct. 5.—This was the opening day of the Fall meeting of the New York Jockey Club, and with the end of this meeting the racing season in this State closes for 1894.

That the change from the old saddle-bag course at Jerome Park was well received was fully demonstrated by the attendance. The gigantic grand stand was unusually filled, there being an unusually large sprinkling of the fair sex present.

The weather was perfect for the sport. The track was still soft and sticky from the recent rains, but as the day wore on it dried out perceptibly, especially in the stretch.

The opening race resulted in a rattling drive, the first five horses finishing almost together. Truempy was a hot favorite, but was never in the hunt. The field got away to a nice start, and ran in close order all the way, Tuscan having a slight advantage, with Luconia, April Fool, the Swain and April Fool next, in order named, heads and necks apart.

The second race resulted in another big upset. Beany was 3 to 1 on favorite, but the best he could do was to finish a poor second to Warlike, who was 6 to 1 shot, who led from start to finish and won easily by a length and a half.

Bright Phoebus won the Albany Stakes easily. There was some delay at the start, caused by Monotony, who finally got away in front. When well down the straight, Taral rushed Bright Phoebus to the front, and won in a canter by four lengths.

The field ran closely bunched all the way, with Tuscan showing slightly in front. In the last few jumps Griffin shot Brambleta filly out, and won in a head race by half a neck. April Fool, Tuscan, Luconia and Chicot were in the order named, heads and necks apart.

The Jerome Handicap was won by Rubicon easily by two lengths. Straight was second, a length and a half before Monaco. Chicot was third, $500. Beany was paid $120.50, third, $120.50. Tuscan led $19.90 third.

The All-Aged Serial was won by Monotony easily by two lengths. Chicot was second, a length and a half before Monaco. Chicot was third, $500. Beany was paid $120.50, third, $120.50. Tuscan led $19.90 third.

W. J. GAYNOR SEES MR. HILL.

Calls on Him To Day in Major Hinckley's Room at the Murray Hill Hotel.

THE JUSTICE WILL ACCEPT.

That Announcement Made by the Democratic State Committee's Chairman.

AND THE ADMINISTRATION IS O. K.

Senator Hill Hears that Its Influence Will Be Used to Elect Him.

Justice William J. Gaynor's attitude towards the Democratic State ticket is no longer a matter of doubt. He is reported to have given Chairman Hinckley, of the Democratic State Committee, assurance that he will accept the nomination for Judge of the Court of Appeals, and this afternoon he paid his respects in person to Senator David B. Hill.

What was actually said and done at their meeting is known positively only to themselves and Chairman Hinckley, who was present and satisfied that he will remain on the ticket for Court of Appeals Judge. That is all I am at liberty to say now on the subject.

At the time Major Hinckley was in conference with Senator Hill. This is the tip Justice Gaynor gave to the Evening World's man: "All the information must now come from New York. It is all in their hands over there. I have nothing to say, and will have nothing to say. They are the ones to see. I can say nothing. Everything has been left to them."

"I wish to deny, however, that I saw anybody in New York last night, notwithstanding the report in the papers this morning that I was with Major Hinckley."

During the noon recess of his court Justice Gaynor came to New York and went at once to the Murray Hill Hotel. He was shown at once to Major Hinckley's room, where Senator Hill was then waiting in expectation of his arrival.

Justice Gaynor, Senator Hill and Major Hinckley were together for some little time, and then the Justice came down alone and started for Brooklyn. He positively refused to talk for publication, and would not even admit that he had seen Senator Hill.

It is thought the meeting between Senator Hill and Justice Gaynor was arranged yesterday by Major Hinckley when the latter went over to Brooklyn and saw the Justice.

Major Hinckley was asked later if he would make public Justice Gaynor's letter of acceptance, and he replied: "Not to-day." However, the Justice was an interesting rumor became current at the Hotel Normandie this afternoon soon after Senator Hill's return, and it professed among other things to account for Justice Gaynor's visit to Hill.

It was to be expected that as Justice Gaynor sometimes writes editorials for his friend St. Clair McKelway, of the Brooklyn Eagle, he was afraid he would be credited with having written the editorial which appeared in that paper yesterday demanding that Hill withdraw from the race for Governor.

According to the rumor, that editorial made Gaynor hopping mad. He concluded that it would be attributed to him, and in order to head off such an accusation sent word to Major Hinckley that he had decided to accept the nomination for Judge of the Court of Appeals.

St. Clair McKelway called upon Justice Gaynor in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, to-day, and when still according to the rumor he was told of the result of his editor's article, and he was told that McKelway, James L. and Orange O'Neil.

NEW YORK - 9 BALTIMORE - 6

The Giants Take Another Game from the Pen-nant Winners.

TIERMAN'S HIT SCORED THREE

The Crowd Mobbed Burke on the Field and Twice Blocked the Ball in Play.

PLAYERS WANT AN ACCOUNT.

The Von Der Horsts Have Kept the Gate Money, Which Should Have Been Banked.

(Special to the Evening World.) 'NION PARK, BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 5.—Under a heavy escort of police the New York team and the accompanying omnibuses filled with rosters reached the grounds at 2.30. The Chief of Police insisted upon a squad of police riding on the conveyances because of yesterday's imbroglio. Burke was perched on top of the players' vehicle, waving the milk-white flag as defiantly as yesterday.

One of the most marked characteristics of the team has been the light-heartedness and camaraderie that have prevailed ever since they left the Polo Grounds for their Western trip. Sept. 7, Cheerful Charley Farrell and Jack Doyle are addicted to singing, and the bus usually trundles through the streets to a merry tune struck up by these two. The team and the correspondents accompanying them join in the chorus with a will, to the astonishment of the natives along the route.

Yesterday, "Mamie, Come Kiss Your Honey Boy," was rendered with great effect, and to-day, "Linger Longer, Lou," was the selection. This merry humor is all and wormwood to the local rosters.

Yesterday's game seemed to have a dampening effect upon the Orioles' admirers, who did not flock to the grounds in the same proportions to-day. The local press and the rosters themselves are beginning to accuse the pennant winners for their spoiled-child attitude, and when McGraw began to hear the talk around him he concluded he had ridden his high horse long enough and confided to Jennings that he would cover things up to-day as usual.

President Nick Young's criticism that McGraw's playing yesterday was the dirtiest seen on a ball field in years finds many echoes, as does his criticism of the game itself, which he declares New York won by superior all-around playing.

Burke, while practicing in left field, was interfered with by a lot of spectators and was soon surrounded by an angry mob. The police rushed over and the New York players formed a cordon around him and pushed the crowd back. The local managers here should have followed this demonstration.

The Baltimore players said at 2.30 P. M. that if the Von Der Horsts do not turn over the receipts of these two games to Ward and Hanlon, as the elected representatives of the players, they will not leave for New York to-night.

All day long Supt. Arthur Bell, who was selected by the players to look out for their monetary interests, has waited upon the pleasure of the Von Der Horsts, but he has not been able to get any satisfaction. Dan Brothurs says the boys want the money banked as had been agreed to by both teams, subject only to the joint check of Hanlon and Ward in payment of expenses incurred during the series.

The whole Temple Cup series is for the benefit of the players, and in New York they would have to accept criticism denouncing the use of the grounds, have washed their hands of the whole affair, and should have to pay for the ground to be used in the matter is a matter of general surprise.

No doubt the cast upon the honesty of the Von Der Horst brothers, but their mode of conducting business does not reflect credit upon the players. The Orioles seem to think when they return from New York that they should be confronted with a big bill of expenses which have been incurred without their full knowledge.

All Mr. Bell desired was a certified check, showing exactly what money had been received, and which will be followed in New York.

The Baltimore order was New York, Kelly, H. Reiser, J. Brothurs, J. B. Davis, H. H. Graw, J. Ward, J. Van Halren, C. Kelly, J. F. Firth, J. M. Meek, J. P. Messers, H. H. Emale.

At 3.15 P. M. the second game of the Temple Cup series began with New York at the Empire Stadium. The game was a hot one, and was stopped at a storming cheer.

That inning-Burke hit the first ball pitched for a fly to left. Tierman, who was on base, caught it and tossed it to Gleason on the bag. No runs.

Went to first on balls. Keeler swung to center. Brothurs fled to Burke, but he was not able to get a special catch, capturing McGraw by a foul bunt. Kelly hit the ball. The double play evoked great applause. No runs.

That inning-Doyle struck out. Van hit a hot one to Jennings, who fumbled. Van was safe. Gleason threw wildly to first and Van dashed around to third. Fuller fled to McGraw. No runs.

Brodie to base on balls. Retts hit a home run. (Continued on Seventh Page.)
