TANGLED MATRIMONY

Mrs. Johnston Makes Bigamy a Plea for Dissolving One Tie.

Married Bogert While Drunk, Although Then Bogert's Wife.

Since Then She Has Wedded Johnston Whom Bogert Is Suing.

Judge Gildersleeve, of the Superior Court, today tried the suit brought by Mrs. Kate Johnston, of Nyack, to annul a marriage she entered into with William O. Bogert, on Aug. 21, 1887, on the ground that she had another husband living at the time of the marriage. The first husband's name was Henry Unger, to whom she was married in 1876, but with whom she had not lived for several years prior to her marriage to Bogert. After her separation from Unger she lived with her parents in West Fourth street.

In her complaint Mrs. Johnston had made no mention of being intoxicated when she married Bogert, and her counsel asked to be allowed to amend the complaint. Judge Gildersleeve denied the motion and ordered the testimony regarding the intoxication to be taken from the record of the trial. Bogert's counsel argued that Mrs. Johnston could not stand in court, because she did not come in with clean hands. The lawyer said that if any counsel offered to put Bogert on the stand to allow him to testify that he did not know of her former marriage when he married the plaintiff, Judge Gildersleeve refused to allow Bogert to be put on the stand, as he said the only question for him to decide was whether or not Mrs. Johnston had been married to another man at the time she married Bogert.

Law Regarding Granite Dressing Hinders Paving Contractors.

It has just been discovered that a law passed last winter by the Legislature, and intended for the protection of the workmen of New York City, was so framed that it will throw many men out of employment in the city and thousands in other places.

The immediate effect has been to hold up nearly fifty small contracts for paving, on which bids have already been received.

The law was introduced by Assemblyman Tobin, at the request of the Central Labor Union, and provides that "all stone used under contracts for municipal works and improvements must be worked, dressed or carved upon the ground where the work is to be done."

In consequence the contracts for forty-six pieces of paving, on which bids were opened, are held up, and the contractors are prohibited. The aggregate amount of paving to be done is about 125,000 square feet, and the work is valued at $1,200,000. The largest jobs are for paving Front street, from Whitehall to Roosevelt, and Water street, from Whitehall to Rutgers street.

WAS THE HAND OF GOD.

So Says Contractor Molski of the Monroe Street Disaster.

Rigid Investigation to Be Made by Building Supt. Brady.

Rosie Abrams's Dead Tabby Cat Found in the Ruins.

A rigid investigation is being prosecuted to-day into the cause of the collapse of the new building at 74 Monroe street yesterday morning, which resulted in the death of nine people and the injury of nearly twice that number.

Supt. Brady, of the Department of Buildings, said to-day that he had received a report from District Inspector Carey to the effect that the Monroe street building was built according to the plans and specifications and in every way lawfully. Inspector Bernstein also made a similar report on the matter.

"It is my opinion," said Supt. Brady, "that the terrible calamity was solely due to the fact that the building was built on a soft and yielding soil."

He added, however, that when the debris had been removed he would have the foundations of the building carefully inspected.

Contractor Galligan with fifty men was still at work this morning to demolish the building, so that no bodies might remain under the debris. It is believed that there are no more there.

The Evening World, in a late extra last night, told of the recovery of eight bodies, and which is believed to be the last one, was that of Eli Abrams, seven years old, the son of Isaac and Bessie Abrams, who, with the boy and Rosie Abrams, was buried in the ruins. The boy's body was found late last night.

Deputy Coroner Cuff early this morning erected certificates for the bodies of the victims to the homes of friends or undertakers shops.

Hundreds of people crowded about the ruins, and Rowland Masterson and a squad of policemen had great difficulty in keeping them back so that the laborers could work.

When the bodies of School 36 arrived at the usual hour they were told that there would be no school before Monday.

The dead body of a tabby cat was taken from the ruins this morning. It was the only one of its kind found.

The three injured, who were taken to Gouverneur Hospital, and one at Chambers Street Hospital, will recover. Jacob Korones, the young man who was taken from the ruins alive, after having been entombed for more than nine hours, was transferred from Gouverneur to Bellevue Hospital, this morning.

The building, the owner of the collapsed building, today laid a deed transferring the property to Lena Blumberg, who is the widow of the late owner.

David Molski, the building contractor, whom the police could not find yesterday, is reported to have been personally supervised the construction.

"As to the mortar," said the rule in a had batch at time for every 1,000 bricks. I used a full barrel to every 1,000. The building will stand some $500. It will not be the fault of the building that it fell. It was the hand of God."

Inspector Williams said to-day that he had made no complaint against Police Sergeant George W. Lee, who was alleged to have been intoxicated at the scene of the disaster.

While drunk, which was in charge of the dead bodies, which lay in the school-house. When asked for information, he refused to give any, and ordered firemen not to give up any more.

"If I had my way I'd club them out of the building," he shouted. "I'm drunk and I'm going to booze when I like it and I'm glad of it."

Lee later was leading over the bar in a room in the building, where he was more busy engaged in secreting the number on his helmet than anything else.

Capt. Williams, however, is making an investigation of the case. Lee is now awaiting a decision on charges upon which he was tried in February last. His boat of a "pull" is apparently not unfounded.

The Japanese Admiral pays a weekly visit to every important station on the coast of the gulf and makes his inspection leisurely. Eight Japanese cruisers sounded the entrance to the harbor of Wei-Hai-Wei for three hours on Saturday last, and then went across to Port Arthur, where they made observations without getting within range of the guns of that place.

The Japanese fleet returned to Wei-Hai-Wei on Monday last in single line, keeping their distances apart and heading straight for the harbor. When almost within range the fleet separated and hovered around the harbor entrance.

The fort fired a few shots at the Japanese, but the latter did not reply, and continued making observations until Count Ito's flagship, the steel cruiser Hasshidaite, fired once, whereupon the fleet dispersed.

When the night clerk, Lewis D. Garney, opened the door leading from the mail-room proper to the main entrance to collect mail from a box in the corridor, he was met by a revolver pointed at his face and told him to throw up his hands.
