

SHEEHAN IN A ROW.

He Tried to Expedite Voting in the Thirteenth District. Wanted Voters to Have the Option of Refusing Amendment Ballots.

"Wicked" Gibbs, Beckman, Jeroloman and Larocque Oppose Him.

A lively row occurred in the Twenty-fifth Election District about 10 o'clock this morning. This is one of the largest election precincts in the district, the registration books are, and Leader John C. Sheehan found there was some danger that all the Tammany votes would not be counted.

He ordered his captain in this district, James McShane, to facilitate matters by insisting that voters need not take the Constitutional Amendment ballots unless they wanted to.

In this way it was hoped that the Tammany vote could be run through more expeditiously, for this district is one of the most important strongholds of the Wigwam.

The poll clerks and the Republican election inspectors objected to the proposition, and insisted that each voter should take all the ballots and return them properly folded.

Mr. Sheehan summoned Mr. Sheehan to his aid, and just at the same time Frederick S. Gibbs, the "Wicked One," and Col. Theodore Hamilton came along, while Candidates Henry R. Beckman and John Jeroloman happened in at the same time with Joseph Larocque, Chairman of the Committee of Seventy.

For ten minutes there was as fine a display of election oratory as one would care to listen to. Meanwhile all voting had been stopped.

The "Wicked" Gibbs got out his pocket manual and read the law to the inspectors and likewise the riot act. He said every voter should be compelled to take all the ballots to the booth and return them properly folded, or the vote would be thrown out.

Mr. Sheehan and the Tammany captain stood up for what they regarded as the rights of the voter and insisted that he could take as many or as few ballots to the booth as he liked, so long as he voted something, and that meant the Tammany ticket.

The Squad Club workers were out in force, and they up the inspectors and Commissioner, and it looked for a while as if the 23 voters of the election district who still remained unheard from would be shut out entirely.

The inspectors took a vote on the question and it resulted in the inspectors voting to go on, and the Tammany voters clamoring bitterly against the delay.

The question at issue was not decided, however, and every man who voted took as many ballots as he chose.

If he said he would not take them all, his vote was challenged, and he was compelled to swear it in.

He would then go into the booth with his Tammany paper and be out again inside of two minutes.

Receivers for an Association. WASHINGTON, Nov. 4.—Judge Cox, of the District Court, to-day appointed Andrew Lipscomb and Thomas H. CAPT. SLIGOW A PICKPOCKET?

Strauss Says the Republican Robbed Him at the Polls. John J. Sligow, a Republican captain at the polls, 299 William street, in the Second Assembly District, was arrested at noon today charged with picking the pockets of an elector whom he was trying to convert.

Policeman Buckley, who stood at the polls, was attracted by a great racket near by, and saw a man with a blue badge fleeing down William street pursued by a constable.

The policeman gave chase and overtook the blue badge, which was worn by Capt. Sligow. The purser said that he was Florence Strauss, employed in the City Court. He declared that as he approached the polls to vote, the captain had greeted him most warmly, trying to win his vote for the Republican ticket.

During this conversation Strauss declared that the captain swapped a bag full from his pocket.

Capt. Sligow was considerably incensed, and Justice Ryan put off the hearing until the captain could become sober.

Special Detective Thompson, of the West Forty-seventh street squad, accompanied a Republican inspector, of the Fifth Election District, of the Nineteenth Assembly District, in Justice Court this morning on a charge of being a pickpocket.

Thompson appeared in court yesterday against a disreputable-looking woman who said she was Lucile O'Hare, and who was committed for trial in $1,000 bail on a charge of having stolen the property.

O'Hare said she had been living with the woman for the past eighteen months. He is a forger in the Street-Cleaning Department. While he was at work Saturday his trunk was broken open and the jewelry stolen. Thompson found it necessary to arrest her, as it was the woman who had picked the jewelry.

After her arrest she confessed her guilt and said that Craig was her accomplice. Thompson arrested him at his home last night. Justice McMahon held him for further examination.

Bodily Hurt by a Cable Car. Thomas E. Vaughn, forty-five years old, of 173 Second avenue, was knocked down by a Third Avenue cable car at 6 o'clock this morning at Fifty-sixth street. He was severely hurt about the head and body and was removed to Flower Hospital.

Scrofula in the Neck. "I had a bunch on the side of my neck as large as a hen's egg. I was advised to have it cut out, but would not consent. A friend suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I am glad to say that I did, and soon the bunch entirely disappeared. I can truly praise Hood's Sarsaparilla, for I know it is an excellent medicine." Mrs. Ella Billings, Red Cloud, Neb.

WOMEN AS WATCHERS

Mrs. E. B. Grannis Shows that They're a Big Success.

Appraised To, She Quietly Settles a Wordy Controversy.

Republicans Not Thrown Out of 68 Oliver Street This Year.

With a Republican watchers' certificate signed by Chairman Brookfield, a book of determination, a bunch basket and a copy of the election laws, Mrs. E. B. Grannis, the courageous woman reformer, arrived at the polling place at 65 Oliver street, at 5:49 o'clock this morning.

At 5 o'clock she announced that thirty-four had voted and that two had been rejected.

"I have been treated with the greatest consideration," she said to the "Evening World" reporter. "I had been told that two Republican watchers were thrown out from this polling place last year. So I was naturally nervous, but I am getting along finely and the election in this district is going to be honest," she exclaimed, bringing down a closed hand on the ballot-box to emphasize the remark.

"But there is one thing I want to find out about," continued Mrs. Grannis, lowering her voice to a nearly a whisper so she could not be heard by others.

"I want to know if men as under the influence of liquor they don't know what they are doing have the right to vote. There have been several such here this morning, and as none of the men made objection I said nothing."

"And also," went on the fair watcher, "I want to know if it's just the proper thing for election officers to be under the influence of liquor. I have noticed, but you can see and smell for yourselves."

But just then other watchers crowded

But just then other watchers crowded

up to the reporter, and Mrs. Grannis discreetly refrained from saying anything more about the subject.

A few minutes later a longshoreman with a bunch of ballots in his hands and a look of perplexity, wanted to know just how to fold the vote.

An election inspector started in to tell him, but a prohibition watcher declared he had no right to do so, and in a moment there was an argument in which every eye in the room, except Mrs. Grannis and the reporter, took part.

Republican and Democratic watchers waved their arms wildly, the election officers declared they would stand up for their rights and the prohibitionist made as much noise as if his ticket had some show of winning.

Mrs. Grannis simply looked on and smiled. Finally she was asked her opinion, and when she said she didn't see any reason for such a fuss the prohibitionist and the longshoreman were given the information he had asked.

Just as she said that Mrs. Grannis, as a woman as a woman, I am glad to be the first in the hall."

The other Republican watchers, the Oliver street polling place, was Maurice J. Kennedy, who said that he was one of the first to stand up for the rights of the elector, and that he thought the election would be conducted fairly.

Forty-nine of them Stricken from the Registry Lists.

Tutors, However, May Acquire a Legal Residence.

About one hundred students of the General Theological Seminary of the Episcopal Church, in Chelsea Square, marched in double file into the County Court-House at 9:30 o'clock this morning.

Forty-nine of the students had been served last night with orders issued by Justice Barrett, of the Supreme Court, requiring them to show cause why their names should not be stricken from the registry lists of the Second Election District of the Thirteenth Assembly District.

The orders to show cause, which were secured upon the affidavits of Peter J. Garvey, of 412 West Twentieth street, on the ground that the students named were not legal voters, were made returnable at 10 o'clock, but at that hour Justice Barrett had not put in an appearance.

It is claimed by the students that last year thirty-seven from the seminary voted without question and that of that number twenty are now registered and studied in the forty-nine ordered to show cause today.

Justice Barrett arrived at 10:50 o'clock and the argument began.

Ex-Judge Arroux and Lawyer Canfield argued in behalf of the students. It was contended that they occupied a different position from the students of most educational institutions, inasmuch as they paid their board aside from their tuition and many of them resided in the city year round.

Counsel for Garvey, who brought the action, contended that under the Constitution no one could gain or lose a residence by entering a seminary of learning.

So far as the cases of Tutor Shepard and Assistant Prof. West were concerned, Justice Barrett said there was no question that they had a right to vote, and in their cases he refused the mandate.

As to the others, Justice Barrett said that under the Constitution they had not gained a legal residence at the Seminary. He refused, however, to grant the mandamus ordering the names stricken from the lists, because he said action should have been taken sooner.

He said the students could vote if they chose to swear in their ballots, and take their chances on punishment if it developed that they had no right.

At that case Justice Barrett expressed the opinion that the student had no right to vote, and ex-Judge Arroux said that the other students would refrain from voting.

Justice Barrett's suggestion, ex-Judge Arroux is to prepare the cases of three of the students for appeal to the Court of Appeals for future government of such cases.

TRIED TAMMANY TACTICS. Leader Murphy and Healers at Work in the Fifteenth District.

In the Eighteenth Election District of the Fifteenth Assembly District Building Inspector Peter Murphy, Tammany's district leader, is charged with attempting to enforce Tammany methods early in the day.

He went behind the rail in the polling booth and began to instruct the inspectors, Terry Breslin, a Republican watcher, protested, in order to prevent a row the policeman on duty ordered Murphy out.

Several attempts were made to reform the Republican and to reform the Tammany, but the latter, who stood the attacks until 1 o'clock, when both were demolished.

Republican claim it was the work of Tammany healers and that no efforts were made by the policeman on duty to prevent it.
