

KILLED IN HIS HOTEL.

John H. Engelbrecht Murdered and Robbed at Secaucus.

Found in His Barroom with His Throat Cut from Ear to Ear.

Three Men Arrested on Suspicion at Lewis's Hotel, Carlstadt.

SECACUS, N. J., May 6.—John H. Engelbrecht, a saloon-keeper and also the owner of a small hotel, was found murdered in his barroom this morning.

Three men arrested on suspicion of being Engelbrecht's murderers are locked up at Lewis's Half-Way House, Carlstadt, and a search is now being made for a Frenchman, who, after daylight, was seen in a blood front from his hands at the pump in front of Lewis's place.

Beside Engelbrecht's body was a little black dog which was owned by the dead man. Frank Burger and Louis Tuit are known to have been the last two men who were in the saloon last night. They will probably be summoned before the coroner when he holds his inquest.

It was 5 o'clock when a driver for the Peters Brewing Company visited Engelbrecht's saloon. He found one of the doors leading to the saloon open, but not thinking anything of this entered the place. He was horrified to find Engelbrecht lying dead on the floor of his saloon, with his throat cut from ear to ear. Beside the dead man was a broken shotgun.

The driver immediately left the saloon and notified George Engelbrecht, a brother of the dead man, who is a constable in Secaucus.

There was blood spattered all over the place, which indicated that Engelbrecht had made a fierce struggle with his murderer before the latter succeeded in cutting his throat. That he made a good defense was evident from the manner in which his clothes were torn. The gun which lay beside him on the floor was of no use to him, as the trigger would not work.

An investigation disclosed that the murderer evidently meant robbery and was surprised by Engelbrecht. All of Engelbrecht's valuables as well as the money in the cash drawer were stolen. The police of Hoboken were notified about 8 o'clock. The murder probably occurred several hours before Engelbrecht's body was discovered. As soon as the case was reported a watch was put on all roads leading out of Secaucus, but no trace of any stranger was found.

The murderer, after robbing the body of his victim and his saloon, it is believed, hastened to Hoboken and left for New York in a ferry-boat. He had plenty of time to escape before the police learned of the crime.

The hotel, which is known as the Sunnyside Hotel, is near the Paterson plank road. Engelbrecht was thirty-five years old. One of his brothers is a lawyer in Hoboken.

There were no guests in the hotel last night, and nobody heard the struggle between Engelbrecht and his murderer. The place at night is very lonely. Engelbrecht's father died in Hoboken a short while ago and left considerable money. It is not known whether the murderer was aware of this fact or not.

Coroner Volk, of Hoboken, came to Secaucus this morning to view the bloody razor near the body beside the gun. The coroner also ascertained that Louis Bauer, an old man who is nearly deaf, and lived in an attic over the saloon, which was not yet completed, was asleep during the struggle between Engelbrecht and his murderer, and did not know anything of the murder until the brewer's driver told him.

After cutting Engelbrecht's throat the murderer evidently beat his victim's head, as his skull was crushed in. The body leading to Hoboken was found Engelbrecht's vest. The pockets were turned inside out. The pockets were turned inside out. The pockets were turned inside out.

Against a door leading to the attic where the old man Bauer lived were piled chairs and tables. The murderer was put there by the murderer in order to prevent the old man from getting down stairs if he heard the struggle. A revolver which was owned by Engelbrecht was found in the corner of the room. It is believed that the murderer did not think of this or was not able to reach it in time to secure the pistol to defend himself.

Engelbrecht's body was taken to Coroner Volk's morgue and was viewed this afternoon and a jury will be impaneled to hold an inquest.

WHO STABBED O'BRIEN?

He Says an Unknown Man-Police Think It Was an Old Enemy.

James O'Brien, thirty-two years old, of 104 Bayard street, is lying at Gouverneur Hospital from the effects of a stab wound received last night by an unknown man.

O'Brien says he was standing alone at White and Walker streets, about 11:30 o'clock, when an Italian came up and, without a word of warning, stabbed him in the leg, then plunged the knife into his abdomen and fled. He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital and another officer questioned the people in the neighborhood. They entered and searched the place.

A woman out of the third floor came to open the door and they burst it in. He told them that a strange man, with a knife in his hand, had just been there a short time before and begged her to let him in as there was a crowd following him. She was afraid and locked the door. She heard the man go downstairs again.

The police do not believe that the stabbing was done by an Italian. They think it is the work of some old enemy.

MADE A DASH FOR A LAWYER.

Exciting Scene in a Police Court in Long Island City.

Samuel H. Lehman, a wealthy butcher, of 236 East One Hundred and Sixth street, died before he had a lawyer.

Lehman's wife, Henrietta, was arrested on complaint of his wife, who accused him of abandonment.

Henrietta Lehman resides with her sister, Mrs. Zehden, on Titus street, Astoria. She is good looking and about twenty-two years old. Her husband is six years her senior. They were married three years ago and have one child, a boy, named Samuel, who is now five years old. The defendant's wife, frequently absented herself from home, and her husband, who is a wealthy butcher, was in the habit of visiting her at the Hollander Hotel, 10 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, near the corner of the street.

Lehman brought suit for divorce and also for a return of his property. He also brought a civil action against Lehman to recover $100,000 for the value of the property which he claims to have been in the hands of Sheriff Tammen. The court, however, refused to grant him a writ of habeas corpus.

Justice Tutty declined to compel Lehman to pay for the cost of the trial, and set the hearing on the charge of abandonment for May 11.

Mrs. Zehden, who is the sister of Mrs. Lehman, is a widow and a lawyer. Her husband was killed by a street car.

WAS MRS. ORTON ABDUCTED?

Police Think She Eloped with True's-Driver Hayes.

Lewis Orton, a young farmer of Dover Plains, N. Y., and his sister, Mrs. Orton, of West Twentieth street, called on Judge Hendon today, and had sent out a general alarm for young Orton's wife, Sarah, aged nineteen, who disappeared Sunday morning from the house of another sister, Mrs. Polk, on Cortlandt street, with her husband, a driver named William Hayes. The husband, however, declared that his wife, indeed, Hayes, and that he had never seen her since she disappeared. The police believe that the young woman has eloped with a young truck driver named William Hayes, who is a native of the town and has been here ever since.

Friday night Hayes called on Sadie's mother, who lives on Cortlandt street, and the foot of West Forty-second street, but was not allowed to see Sadie. It is said that he has been in the town for some time, and if any attempts should be made to find her, he would kill her.

Another brother of Herbert, named Mayor Gilbert F. Collins and Senator William Stuber, of Hoboken, appeared for the prisoner.

SHE IS NOT CANTONI'S WIFE.

The Broker's Injunction Against Mrs. Forster Sustained.

Sued Him for Big Damages Despite Her Promise Not To.

Salvatore Cantoni, a member of the Stock Exchange, with offices at 25, 26 and 27 Wall street, scored a victory in a decision rendered by the General Term of the Superior Court to-day. It affirmed an order granting a permanent injunction restraining Eliza Forster from suing or prosecuting him in violation of an agreement which she and Cantoni made May 21, 1892.

Miss Forster, it is alleged, had falsely charged Cantoni with being the father of "certain children" and had promised to marry her and to make good on a $100,000 note which she had given to him. To avoid scandal and purchase peace, Cantoni, as a settlement, had Miss Forster whereby she agreed to give up all claims and not to sue him or prosecute him in any way.

Nine days after this agreement was entered into, it is alleged, Miss Forster brought suit against Cantoni in the Superior Court, to recover $250,000 damages. The court, however, refused to grant her the relief she sought.

Justice Freeman, who wrote the opinion of the court, held that Cantoni had shown that he had reasonable cause to believe that his suit could be maintained, and that he had acted reasonably in the premises. He also held that the agreement between the parties was binding and enforceable.

WHEN HETTY GREEN DIES.

Three of Her Millions Will Go to a Farmer and a Watchman.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—Capt. John Howland, a night watchman on one of the wharves, and his brother Jotham Howland, a farmer of Napa, will each inherit a large share of $3,000,000 held in trust for them by Mrs. Hetty Green during her life time.

Mrs. Green's father was Edmund Mott Robinson. The Howlands were nephews of Robinson's wife, Robinson, more commonly known as "Blackhawk." Robinson was a wealthy dealer in ship's stores, of New Bedford, Mass. He made a large fortune of over $10,000,000. He left $7,000,000 absolutely to his daughter, Hetty Green, and $3,000,000 was left for her for life and after her death to the Howland heirs.

Both Hurdled Side by Side.
