

Uptown Office, B'way and 34th St.
WORK WANTED!
WORK WANTED!
20 Words, 10 Cents.
All Situation Wanted Female Advertisements Reported in the Evening World Without Extra Charge.
Over 500,000 Circulation Secured.

Uptown Office, B'way and 34th St.
TO LET! TO LET!
TO LET! TO LET!
14 Words, 30 Cents.
All Home, Room and Apartment Advertisements Reported in the Evening World Without Extra Charge.
Over 500,000 Circulation Secured.

PRICE ONE CENT.

NIGHT EDITION

WINNERS AT GRAVESEND.

The Rich Tremont Stakes Captured by Phil Dwyer's Great Colt.

APPLIGATE FINISHES THIRD.

FIRST RACE—
Patrician First.
Redskin Second.
SECOND RACE—
April Fool First.
Mirage Second.
THIRD RACE—
Handspring First.
Refugee Second.
FOURTH RACE—
Keenna First.
Bright Phoenix Second.

RACE TRACK, GRAVESEND, June 1.—The best card of the meeting was offered by the Brooklyn Jockey Club today, and fully six thousand persons took an exceedingly disagreeable journey to the track.

The board walk in front of the track was something frightful, the heat rising from it in volumes, and it is no exaggeration that the thermometer would have registered 115 degrees there.

There were very few cool spots inside the track. The stand faces east, and there are only small windows in the rear. The betting-ring, being shaded and open on all sides, was the coolest spot at the track.

The track was in excellent shape today, and very fast. The features of the card were the Tremont Stakes, for two-year-olds, and the Souleward Handicap for three-year-olds.

Roy El Banta Anita, who was examined for a severe cut across the fetlock tendon of the off fore leg, is much better today. The accident was caused by the colt striking his leg on the Saratoga meeting. The leg was swollen terribly and the horse suffered acute pain, but is now much easier.

Trainer Sam Hildreth stated that he would give the colt a rest until the Saratoga meeting. The leg was swollen terribly and the horse suffered acute pain, but is now much easier.

THE GROOMS SHAKEN UP.

Brooklyn's Batting Order Changed, with Corcoran Second Man Up.

TOMMY BURNS IS LAID OFF.

His Recent Poor Batting the Cause for Anderson Playing in Left Garden.

A CANE FOR TOM KINSLOW.

Brooklyn Admirers Present Him with a Token—Colcolough Pitches Against Kennedy.

(Special to The Evening World.)
EASTERN PARK, BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 1.—The usual half-holiday crowd was out this afternoon to witness the first game of the season between Jake Beckley's ball tossers from the Smoky City and the Bridgegrooms.

The scorching sun, which had hovered over these grounds for hours, finally disappeared at 3 o'clock and the rosters on the 25-cent seats, who were suffering from the heat of the afternoon, took off their jackets and a number of them had fans in their pockets which they produced and were then ready for the game.

The sun reappeared at intervals and the heat was intense, not a bit of air stirring.

Tom Kinslow, who is catching for Pittsburgh at present, was formerly an old Brooklyn player in left field. Tommy Corcoran, who has been hitting the ball lately, formerly batted fourth, but he batted after Capt. Griffin today, while La Chance batted third.

Francis Lynde Stetson, President Cleveland's law partner, is in this city in connection with the bond contract for Mr. Stetson with the United States Ambassador to-morrow.

NO McLAUGHLIN JURY YET.
Schlesinger Goes Off and Rothchild on His Bond.

The efforts to fill the jury-box for Inspector McLaughlin's trial were resumed this morning in the Court of Sessions. Justice Barrett was absent, having been overcome by the heat, but he is so anxious that no time shall be wasted in this trial that he insisted upon holding court this morning, and at 9 o'clock the trial was resumed.

Brooklyn. Among those who escaped were some of the worst boys in the school. Six or seven were trusted messengers, who were allowed liberty occasionally and returned.

Yesterday afternoon twenty boys from two different departments were allowed to leave the school to go to the city and have a little fun. The keepers had confidence in most of the boys, and only kept them at intervals from a distance.

Suddenly, as if by a prearranged signal, the boys dropped their books and balls and ran to the woods, towards Englewood. The remaining boys gave up the struggle when the stretch reached. Stephen then went to the front, but was speedily overtaken by Patrician, who drew away from Redskin, but was three lengths behind.

Sister Mary cut out the pace, followed by Patrician. In this order to the far turn, where Stephen J. raced to the front and joined Sister Mary. King Michael, who had been fast, and Sister Mary gave up the struggle when the stretch reached. Stephen then went to the front, but was speedily overtaken by Patrician, who drew away from Redskin, but was three lengths behind.

Patrician, who drew away from Redskin, but was three lengths behind. Stephen then went to the front, but was speedily overtaken by Patrician, who drew away from Redskin, but was three lengths behind.

NO TRESPASSING ALLOWED.

British Pioneers Cannot Play in Astor's Yard. Movements of Various Americans in England's Metropolis.

LONDON, June 1.—The report that Mr. Wilson Waldorf Astor is trying to sell Cliveden, his magnificent English estate, is incorrect. On the contrary, Mr. Astor is making important alterations and improvements at Cliveden.

He is often seen on the river in his steam launch, and he still refuses to allow parties to land at Cliveden and picnic in the woods, which the Duke of Westminster, the former owner of Cliveden always permitted.

The Aldermanic Committee on Railroads has already submitted a report to the Board, which will be acted upon at the next meeting, in favor of the granting of the franchise to the Third Avenue Company, which already has tracks on Amsterdam avenue, and which will be able to make connections with the upper part of the city, avoiding St. Nicholas avenue, where the property owners are opposed to any railroad.

The Metropolitan Traction Company is an applicant for the privileges similar to those of the other companies and to give to the Third Avenue Company, and Alderman Hall and President Jeroloman have submitted a minority report in favor of that company.

There is a division of opinion in the board itself, some members being in favor of the one company and some of the other. While the franchise has to be sold by auction and disposed of to the highest bidder, the board, by defining the route, can make it practically impossible for one of the companies to compete.

The fact that this was the final hearing before the board, before the whole Board brought out a crowd that filled the Aldermanic chamber, several women among the spectators.

John D. Crimmins, representing the Metropolitan Traction Company, with a number of other property owners, was present to present the claims of the Crimmins syndicate, while Edward Lauterbach, for the Third Avenue Company, and many supporters of that company, and other speakers, were present on the other side.

John D. Crimmins, representing the Metropolitan Traction Company, with a number of other property owners, was present to present the claims of the Crimmins syndicate, while Edward Lauterbach, for the Third Avenue Company, and many supporters of that company, were present on the other side.

John D. Crimmins, representing the Metropolitan Traction Company, with a number of other property owners, was present to present the claims of the Crimmins syndicate, while Edward Lauterbach, for the Third Avenue Company, and many supporters of that company, were present on the other side.

John D. Crimmins, representing the Metropolitan Traction Company, with a number of other property owners, was present to present the claims of the Crimmins syndicate, while Edward Lauterbach, for the Third Avenue Company, and many supporters of that company, were present on the other side.

John D. Crimmins, representing the Metropolitan Traction Company, with a number of other property owners, was present to present the claims of the Crimmins syndicate, while Edward Lauterbach, for the Third Avenue Company, and many supporters of that company, were present on the other side.

John D. Crimmins, representing the Metropolitan Traction Company, with a number of other property owners, was present to present the claims of the Crimmins syndicate, while Edward Lauterbach, for the Third Avenue Company, and many supporters of that company, were present on the other side.

John D. Crimmins, representing the Metropolitan Traction Company, with a number of other property owners, was present to present the claims of the Crimmins syndicate, while Edward Lauterbach, for the Third Avenue Company, and many supporters of that company, were present on the other side.

TRACTION COMPANY'S FIGHT.

Trying to Keep the Franchise from the Third Avenue Line.

GIANTS PLAY IN NEW PLACES.

Burke's Illness Causes a Mix-Up in the Fielding Positions To-Day.

DAVIS ILL, BUT IN THE GAME.

Doyle at Short, Wilson on Third and Murphy in Left Field the Order.

PEITZ'S DOUBLE SCORED TWO.

(Special to The Evening World.)
POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, June 1.—Dams' tune continues to keep her face reverted from this Giants. Shortly after Capt. Davis arrived at the Polo grounds this afternoon, a message arrived informing him that Eddie Burke was ill and not able to leave his bed. In consequence another shift in the already sadly crippled Giants was made necessary.

Although ill and suffering from a very lame shoulder, Capt. Davis, after a good deal of skirmishing about, decided to go into the game himself and hold down first base as best he could.

Chris Von Der Ahe's outfit from St. Louis were the Gothamites opponents and "Der Prowa" presented their strongest team. They smiled gleefully as they heard of the Giants' crippled condition, and congratulated themselves that at least they had struck a "good bluff" to push along.

Miller trotted out the great Brettenstein, he of mighty left-handed shoots and curves. Meekin was sent in to endeavor to win out for the home team.

Despite the Giants' crippled condition and the unbearably hot weather, a big crowd turned out to help root out a victory. It seemed as though the sun had turned his entire attention to the Polo Grounds, and everything fairly sizzled under the scorching rays.

Miller trotted out the great Brettenstein, he of mighty left-handed shoots and curves. Meekin was sent in to endeavor to win out for the home team.

Miller trotted out the great Brettenstein, he of mighty left-handed shoots and curves. Meekin was sent in to endeavor to win out for the home team.

Miller trotted out the great Brettenstein, he of mighty left-handed shoots and curves. Meekin was sent in to endeavor to win out for the home team.

Miller trotted out the great Brettenstein, he of mighty left-handed shoots and curves. Meekin was sent in to endeavor to win out for the home team.

Miller trotted out the great Brettenstein, he of mighty left-handed shoots and curves. Meekin was sent in to endeavor to win out for the home team.

SHOT BOTH THE HORSES.

They Had Fallen into an Elevator Shaft at the Waldorf.

Arthur Jones, a driver for Beineke & Co., wholesale butchers at 196-198 Fulton street, lost two of his horses while delivering a load of meat to the Waldorf Hotel to-day.

The delivery department of the Waldorf is at the end of an entrance to the hotel on Thirty-third street. A large elevator runs up from the basement flush with the sidewalk.

Jones did not notice that the elevator was down, and drove both his horses directly into the shaft, where they became so tightly wedged in that it was impossible to extricate them.

Managing Director G. W. Weaver, of Beineke & Co., was sent for, and after he had ascertained the impossibility of getting the horses out alive requested Police Officer Charles G. Bittner, of the Thirty-third street police station, to end the sufferings of the animals by shooting them. The officer did so, and the two carcasses were removed. The horses were valued at $400.

At noon to-day another horse attached to a delivery wagon also fell down the shaft. The horse got out after a great deal of trouble with but slight injuries.

Jennie Astor, a beautiful woman, nineteen years old, lying at her home, 622 Second street, Brooklyn, from the effects of a stone thrown by a small boy. It struck her on the temple, fracturing her skull.

The young woman was riding on a Graham avenue car yesterday afternoon on her way home. When passing the boy, who was on the corner with Becker hurled a stone at the car. It struck the young woman on the temple, fracturing her skull.

The young woman was riding on a Graham avenue car yesterday afternoon on her way home. When passing the boy, who was on the corner with Becker hurled a stone at the car. It struck the young woman on the temple, fracturing her skull.

The young woman was riding on a Graham avenue car yesterday afternoon on her way home. When passing the boy, who was on the corner with Becker hurled a stone at the car. It struck the young woman on the temple, fracturing her skull.

The young woman was riding on a Graham avenue car yesterday afternoon on her way home. When passing the boy, who was on the corner with Becker hurled a stone at the car. It struck the young woman on the temple, fracturing her skull.

The young woman was riding on a Graham avenue car yesterday afternoon on her way home. When passing the boy, who was on the corner with Becker hurled a stone at the car. It struck the young woman on the temple, fracturing her skull.

The young woman was riding on a Graham avenue car yesterday afternoon on her way home. When passing the boy, who was on the corner with Becker hurled a stone at the car. It struck the young woman on the temple, fracturing her skull.

The young woman was riding on a Graham avenue car yesterday afternoon on her way home. When passing the boy, who was on the corner with Becker hurled a stone at the car. It struck the young woman on the temple, fracturing her skull.