Dunraven Writes a Letter Which May Become Public Later.

DOESN'T CHANGE HIS VIEWS.

Secretary Canfield Says Its Term Preclude Possibilities of a Contest on This Side.

REGATTA COMMITTEE REPORTS

Impossible to Sell Thursday's Race Over—Both Insisted on Protest Decision.

Mr. A. Cass Canfield, of the America Cup Committee, received a letter from Lord Dunraven this morning. The letter reached there at 7:40 o'clock but it was 11 before Mr. Canfield got it.

He notified Commodore J. D. Smith of the receipt of the letter. Its contents he would not divulge, but he said that it did not change Dunraven's stand towards future races.

It was thought probable by yachtsmen at the club that the letter was a protest from Dunraven regarding the statements that have been made in the press and the Cup Committee regarding his withdrawal.

Mr. Canfield said that the letter would not be made public until next week, as he was going out of town to-day, and that he would not submit the letter to the committee until his return.

Mr. Kersey left for Newport this afternoon. It is thought Lord Dunraven may join him there. Messrs. Oddie, Griswold, Smith and Canfield also went to Newport on the 1 o'clock train.

There is a conference to be held to-day, although none of those mentioned would say anything of the reason for the trip. The following letter was posted on the bulletin-board of the New York Yacht Club this afternoon:

To the New York Yacht Club: Having read the America's Cup Committee report on the international race, and although none of those mentioned would say anything of the reason for the trip, the following letter was posted on the bulletin-board of the New York Yacht Club this afternoon:

My Committee, before taking evidence on the protest, made an unsuccessful endeavor to bring about a settlement by mutual agreement; but each contestant preferred that the protest should take its course. The protest has and instead must be decided by the committee.

As regards the protest, the third race, the Regatta Committee has no latitude, since the new conditions demand that the protest be decided by the Cup Committee, and therefore the race had to be sailed under the original terms.

Respectfully, THE REGATTA COMMITTEE. Capt. Hank Huff, whose experience in racing with British yachts embraces the command of challenger and defender, and includes courses and conditions on each side of the ocean in an interview sums up the whole matter very tersely in practically these words: "When you lose to the Englishman you are a 'good sportman' when you win, he quibbles and is a hard loser."

The Cup Committee will hold no more communication with Lord Dunraven, and regard to racing this year, and Chester Griswold, of the Regatta Committee, said that no business was done at the informal meeting of last night, and the committee knew enough about the races and no further discussion was necessary.

"Dunraven doesn't want to play," said Mr. Griswold. "We have made every offer and every concession that we could make in justice to ourselves."

"Everything pleased him until his boat was beaten, and then he found fault with everything," said Mr. Griswold.

The Regatta Committee is now busy making out a general report of the races. It will be in readiness some time this afternoon.

Lord Dunraven stayed at the house of H. Matland yesterday last night, and left at 10 o'clock this morning when an "Evening World" reporter called. He sent word that he should absolutely refuse to see any more reporters during his stay in this city.

The Cup Committee will probably hold an informal meeting this afternoon. Every effort which has been made to secure a series of races here, off Marblehead or over a course to be laid off anywhere Lord Dunraven may select is futile. Mr. Iselin has offered to sail Defender against Valkyrie under conditions which he leaves to Valkyrie's racing owner, the Earl of Dunraven, but from the moment Valkyrie indignantly withdrew from Thursday's race it was evident that her racing sticks were to be pulled out of her. In other words, Lord Dunraven had enough, and quit.

Speaking of Dunraven's desired guarantee of a clear course, an old yachtsman had this to say: "As well might he ask for a guarantee of the cup itself, so far as fairness is concerned. His childish withdrawal is only emphasized by the absurd request. No power on this earth could either"

As well might he ask for a guarantee of the cup itself, so far as fairness is concerned. His childish withdrawal is only emphasized by the absurd request. No power on this earth could either

THIS IS WORTH WHILE.

Here Are a Few of the Remarkable Stories to Be Read in Tomorrow's "World."

Of all the correspondents who tried to force their way to the scene of the Armenian atrocity only one succeeded in passing the Sultan's guards and in entering the region of terror. This fortunate correspondent is the special commissioner of the Sunday World. His story will be told in the Sunday World to-morrow. It is a story which should be read by every man who is interested in the history of civilization's slow growth. It is illustrated most convincingly although there is but one picture, which shows an Armenian gentleman, a survivor of the Sassoon massacre. His body is exposed so that some of his wounds are visible. Among the wounds are eighteen sword cuts, or spear cuts, fastened together with several hundred stitches.

The Sunday World's solution of the Greater New York problem will be published to-morrow. Should the idea suggested be adopted, New York and Brooklyn will be really one great city, the problem of rapid transit will be solved, also the park question and the question of school accommodation for children.

You will read in the Sunday World of the approaching death of a royal lunatic, and of the great scandal which will follow. It involves the King of Belgium, who is accused of squandering ten millions of his sister's money. You will read in the Sunday World the extraordinary and horrible tale of Anna Jungnitsch, a peasant girl in Saxony. This unfortunate creature went mad after reading Swift's essay on a plan for disposing of Irish children. This essay, which was published in the writer's insanity by a short time, advocated as a horrible satire on English injustice that Irish infants be fattened and eaten, thus solving the problem of poverty in Ireland and providing the English with excellent food. Anna Jungnitsch, who was a girl of 15, read the writer's insanity by a short time, advocated as a horrible satire on English injustice that Irish infants be fattened and eaten, thus solving the problem of poverty in Ireland and providing the English with excellent food.

The Republic is described and illustrated in the Sunday World. It appears that summer engagements are a thing of the past. This sad news is communicated in the Sunday World also, and proved.

If you are good at hunting, go to Oregon and look for the $20,000 in gold dust which is known to have been buried there by a murderer.

There is a very beautiful picture of Mr. Robert Fitzsimmons's beautiful wife in the Sunday World. The picture of the new clock dial, the picture of the instrument for studying the people in the moon and the picture of the boy who rides a bicycle very well without any aids, are all on the same page and all very interesting. The picture on the same page of the clergyman who is coming to New York in a wagon to conduct a conference is worth studying also.

There is a necktie in New York worth more than six thousand years old. Frenchmen are begging Count Castellane for a little of the good money, but he is too busy buying works of art to spare any.

There is a picture of a woman blowing away the scenery to make room for a trolley line. All these things and others you will read about on one of The World's numerous pages.

A new flying machine has been made to go through the air, roll along the land or swim on the water. It looks just like a motor duck.

There is a man in New York who will make a Scovell of the most common place young man for a small sum. He is told about in the Sunday World, and on the same page there is a lot more pleasant reading about the meaning of diamonds.

Mr. Nym Crinkle criticizes his own play in the Sunday World. It is a happy thing for a man to be able to write a play and at the same time to have brains enough and impartiality enough to criticize it.

If you have an alcohol habit look out for yourself and leave drink alone. If you read the Sunday World and look at page 22 you will find out about the alcohol habit and be able to tell whether you have got one or not.

There is a good long story about World's review of books in the Sunday World, and another about the King of Spain. The frilled lizard in London and the new Matar of Chitral are interesting items in the Sunday World's collection.

If you don't know what you think about the news get the Sunday World. There, on page 28, you may see Martin Washington, Mrs. Cleveland and Queen Victoria in skirts and bloomers and take your choice. It is needless to say that Mrs. Cleveland looks much better in bloomers than Martina Washington or Queen Victoria does. That is probably due to the fact that she belongs to the bloomer age.

Archbishop Gross supplies in the Sunday World the good news that the church does not object to Sunday beer drinking in moderation.

There is a doctor in New York who makes an informal profession of drinking alcohol. Read about him in the Sunday World.

Read, above, all the Sunday World's article on Russian cruelties, written by Count Tolstol.

Jeannette G. Gilder in the Sunday World reviews a book of Ernest Horn. Her review of books by good men are always worth reading.

Eugene Sandow Arrives. Eugene Sandow, the "strong man," arrived with his troupe on the Caspian Express, from Liverpool to-day. He was an extreme girth case of "comfort," he said, as he stepped ashore. He opens with a show in Chicago shortly.

Premier Brand California Wines. Superior to those imported. See everywhere.

GETAWAY DAY AT SHEEPSHEAD.

Meeting Not a Financial Success, Yet the Racing Has Been Clean.

GROWD SMALL; WEATHER COLD

FIRST RACE—Saragossa First, Sir Excess Second.

SECOND RACE—Prince Lief First, Carib Second.

THIRD RACE—Darion First, King Michael Second.

RACE TRACK, SHEEPSHEAD BAY, Sept. 11.—This afternoon closes one of the best meetings ever held at Sheepshead Bay. The club has made no money, but large receipts were not expected and the stockholders felt well satisfied that there was no loss.

Racing will be continued at Brighton Beach Monday and Gravesend thereafter.

The weather to-day was raw and cold and there was a decided falling off in the attendance that has marked previous Saturdays.

The card was interesting, the Autumn Cup and the Great Eastern Handicap being the features.

The track was in first-class condition, the wind blowing from the south, preventing fast time.

Sir Walter worked a mile and a quarter at Brighton this morning in 2:09. This stable is emulating the celebrated "Lucky Baldwin" in an effort to keep secret the form of his horses.

MANHATTAN FIELD, Sept. 11.—Less than five thousand people appeared here to-day to witness the championship meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union—the meeting which for weeks had been looked forward to as the particular event which would give a line on the American athletes who one week from to-day are to join issue with the cracks of the London Athletic Club.

The weather was such as to give promise of record smashing in a fashion to dazzle the Englishmen, a majority of whom, by a special invitation, occupied positions in the grand stand, where they had a clear view of the runners in every event. What surprised the visitors more than the attendance was the fact that not a single inch of bunting was displayed.

It had been announced that the first event, the 100 yards run, which Crum was heralded to break, would be run the first heat at 2 o'clock sharp. At that time, however, the officials were standing before a camera, to be followed immediately afterwards by the Englishmen.

There was an array of officials, whose names would fill several columns, and all of them are well known in the athletic world. Chief among them was the referee, "Father" William B. Curtis, N. Y. A. C., and the judges, J. H. Booth, N. Y. A. C.; Bernard Killian, A. C. S. N. E.; E. Milligan, A. C. S. N. E.; J. Walsh, P. A. C.; W. McDermott, Maryland A. C., and Assistant District Attorney Barlow, N. Y. A. C.

James E. Sullivan, who arranged for the meeting in advance of the big meet next Saturday, and who held all the association's coffers, seemed to be all over the field at the same time. Robert St. John was the chief timekeeper; Charles J. McCarry, A. C. S. N. E., marshal, and E. P. Prall, referee of cycling; W. H. Robertson was the starter.

The first event, the 100-yard run, continued to attract a large crowd, and the other entries were E. W. Jarvis, Pittsburgh A. C.; W. H. Jennings, Jr., South Orange F. C.; D. E. Coyne, Syracuse A. C.; T. I. Lee, N. Y. A. C.; Irvine, Brookway, W. M. Goodwin, Louisville, Ky.; C. H. W. Richards, N. Y. A. C.; C. W. Stage, Cleveland A. C.; and the first three to run in the final, Jarvis, Lee, and Richards, who were all well matched.

The second heat had for starter Crum, Jarvis and Lee. With each of the first two heats, Crum was the favorite, and he was expected to win. The race was run in heats, the first three to run in the final, Jarvis, Lee, and Richards, who were all well matched.

LOST EVEN HIS TEETH.

Lang Didn't Bat on Valkyrie, but That Wasn't His Fault.

John Lang, an Englishman of sporting proclivities, who arrived here last Saturday on a Cunard line steamship to see the Defender-Valkyrie races and back his opinions with pounds sterling, is at the Hotel Copenhagen, B Vector street, awaiting a remittance so he can get home again.

He didn't drop his roll on Valkyrie, but he enticed so much over her quasi victory of 47 seconds last Tuesday that he didn't know where he was at when he woke up early the next morning in the hallway of the tenement, 28 Vector street, missing his hat, shoes, watch and chain, all his money, his false teeth and his voice.

Lang woke up the tenants, but couldn't make them understand with his toothless talk and they took him for a burglar and fired him out. Some one sent him to the Church street police station, where he finally explained matters by writing.

He was directed to his hotel, where the landlord is graciously taking his word in the mean time for bond.
