

"MILLER SWINDLED THE POLICE AND I KNOW HE HAD $100,000 IN JEWELRY."

A RESOURCE OF STRENGTH AND ENERGY

PAIN'S CELERY COMPOUND
Harry D. Elks, Giens Falls, N. Y., writes:
"Early last spring I found that I was tired and languid, my appetite was failing, and I was becoming run down generally. I was advised to take Paine's Celery Compound, and after using it I never felt so well in all my life as I do now. It braced me up, gave me strength and vigor and made a new man of me. I recommend it to all persons who have tired and languid feelings, to all athletes, and to all who work hard mentally."

FAVOR CANAL PLANS. ANNIVERSARY OF BIG STORM
Gov. Roosevelt Receives Approval
Messages from Many City Bodies
One Year Ago the City Was Full of Snow-To-Day It is Overrun with Mud.
ALBANY, Feb. 12.-Gov. Roosevelt was today informed that the following commercial organizations of New York City have approved of the plan to expend $5,000,000 in the improvement of the canal system: Chamber of Commerce, Produce Exchange, Cotton Exchange, Coffee Exchange, Canal Boatmen's Association, Real Estate Exchange, Merchants' Association, Merchants and Manufacturers' Board of Trade.

DRIVER KILLED BY TRAIN.
Engine Hit Milk Wagon at Brooklyn Crossing and Man Wounded, but Horse Escaped.
A Long Island Railroad train hit a milk wagon at Aberdeen street and Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, this afternoon.

TROLLEY CAR HELD UP.
Conductor and Passengers Fought at Hoboken and Two Arrested.
Two negroes tried to hold up a Bergen County trolley car between Hackensack and Englewood, N. J., last night, but were beaten off by the conductor and passengers. Several women on the car were panic-stricken.

WOOD'S SARSAPARILLA
Let the smallest miricle gain judgment in your body and your whole system will be benefited. The miricle is in the blood. It gives the blood its strength and then the blood gives the system its strength and effects a cure.

WOULD HAVE MADE MILLIONS.

"If the police had let Miller alone a few weeks longer fifty more employees would not have been able to do the work. One man or woman in the South would risk $10 and get the dollar premium, and following her letter would come $50 more."

came a second knock. It was nothing but a tap. She opened the door, and in the dumb-water crouched the figure of a man. "Hi!" he said, placing his finger on his lip. "Look!" He held out an afternoon newspaper, which my wife took, and he disappeared as mysteriously as he had appeared.

SLEUTHS EASY TO ELUDE.

We talked the matter over until long after midnight. I should try to make a conclusion as to the plan. At the front of the house we saw several men who my wife insisted were detectives. They guessed myself as best I could and went downstairs to the yard. It was then I saw my wife followed by a man in a blue uniform. I thought she was being helped me over the 7-foot board fence and I hurried away as cautiously as possible.

DETECTIVE RAN AWAY.

"You are dealing with a desperate man. You are annoying me, and unless you run up those stairs again I'll shoot you." He jumped. His face became pale and he ran up the stairs, stumbling at the top.

KISSED BY THE KAISER.

Big Welcome to Prince Henry of Prussia at Berlin on Return from Orient.
BERLIN, Feb. 12.-Prince Henry of Prussia, brother of Emperor William of Germany, arrived here to-day from the Orient. He was welcomed at the railroad station by His Majesty and a large suite.

BIG CLUB RUNS BEHIND.

The Metropolitan Will Annex Its Members $20 to Meet the Current Expenses.
The Metropolitan, or Millionaire's Club, is running behind in its finances. At the annual meeting Saturday it was stated that the initiation fee of $20 and $10 a year dues were insufficient to meet expenses.

"TIPPED" TO ESCAPE.

When the indictment was found against me our washerwoman, Mrs. Lennox, and I were talking over the matter. She had just $200 in her pocket. I have left because I know the "tip" was to be dishonest. Miller is taking in thousands of dollars every day for the "tip" which he is not giving.

HAD $10,000 IN JEWELRY.

"The publication of the fact that when Miller was arrested he had but 75 cents in his pocket makes me smile. Miller got no small portion of the money that the syndicate made. I honestly believe that when I saw the man last he had at least $10,000 in jewelry on his person. Besides that he always carried in his pockets tremendous sums of money, which he displayed for effect whenever it was necessary."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER HAS A MILLION.

Miller must have gotten out of the scheme $1,000,000. How much more I do not know.

MILLER HAS CAUGHT AT HIS OWN GAME.

One of the funniest things, though, was Miller's own downfall. He swindled at his own game. He swindled a woman while she was there. A woman came in one day and deposited $200. That was when Miller was arrested. The next day she brought in her husband. He deposited $200 and the good wife received the same amount. Miller introduced her husband. That same day the wife withdrew her $200, and a later day she withdrew the same amount. Miller introduced her. He got the $200 commission for her deposit. And so it went on. Miller swindled at his own game. He swindled a man and wife for $200, but this man and wife got $200 each. Miller introduced a new fellow, but with their money they got $200 each. Miller swindled at his own game. He swindled a man and wife for $200, but this man and wife got $200 each. Miller introduced a new fellow, but with their money they got $200 each.

MARRIED AN ARMY LASSIE.

Miller never got any money out of Lyons because of one thing interested in the concern. The bank refused to let Miller have any more money. It was when that Miller branched out as a Napoleon financier. He was a good boy in the neighborhood. He went to church, he taught Sunday-school, and altogether, he was the real thing in the neighborhood. His scheme of making a reputation by marrying a Salvation Army lassie. It will be seen that Miller got the confidence of his pastor, the trustees, and later the money of his neighbors. His scheme of making a reputation by marrying a Salvation Army lassie. It will be seen that Miller got the confidence of his pastor, the trustees, and later the money of his neighbors.

VICTIMS MULTIPLIED.

As Miller's business grew so did his popularity. He had to enlarge his office, and it took days to receive the mail. He had to enlarge his office, and it took days to receive the mail. He had to enlarge his office, and it took days to receive the mail.

FAKE PILES OF GOLD.

Here is one of his schemes. He had a box in his desk, which, when open, might be seen by his customers. There was pile after pile glittering and yellow. But one day I made the discovery. The piles were artificial. He had a box in his desk, which, when open, might be seen by his customers.

HAD $10,000 IN JEWELRY.

"The publication of the fact that when Miller was arrested he had but 75 cents in his pocket makes me smile. Miller got no small portion of the money that the syndicate made. I honestly believe that when I saw the man last he had at least $10,000 in jewelry on his person. Besides that he always carried in his pockets tremendous sums of money, which he displayed for effect whenever it was necessary."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER HAS A MILLION.

Miller must have gotten out of the scheme $1,000,000. How much more I do not know.

MILLER HAS CAUGHT AT HIS OWN GAME.

One of the funniest things, though, was Miller's own downfall. He swindled at his own game. He swindled a woman while she was there. A woman came in one day and deposited $200. That was when Miller was arrested. The next day she brought in her husband. He deposited $200 and the good wife received the same amount. Miller introduced her husband. That same day the wife withdrew her $200, and a later day she withdrew the same amount. Miller introduced her. He got the $200 commission for her deposit. And so it went on. Miller swindled at his own game. He swindled a man and wife for $200, but this man and wife got $200 each. Miller introduced a new fellow, but with their money they got $200 each.

MARRIED AN ARMY LASSIE.

Miller never got any money out of Lyons because of one thing interested in the concern. The bank refused to let Miller have any more money. It was when that Miller branched out as a Napoleon financier. He was a good boy in the neighborhood. He went to church, he taught Sunday-school, and altogether, he was the real thing in the neighborhood. His scheme of making a reputation by marrying a Salvation Army lassie. It will be seen that Miller got the confidence of his pastor, the trustees, and later the money of his neighbors. His scheme of making a reputation by marrying a Salvation Army lassie. It will be seen that Miller got the confidence of his pastor, the trustees, and later the money of his neighbors.

VICTIMS MULTIPLIED.

As Miller's business grew so did his popularity. He had to enlarge his office, and it took days to receive the mail. He had to enlarge his office, and it took days to receive the mail. He had to enlarge his office, and it took days to receive the mail.

FAKE PILES OF GOLD.

Here is one of his schemes. He had a box in his desk, which, when open, might be seen by his customers. There was pile after pile glittering and yellow. But one day I made the discovery. The piles were artificial. He had a box in his desk, which, when open, might be seen by his customers.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told Miller what this press agent said, and then produced proof that the cashiers of both banks had spoken of him as a Napoleon financier. The reporter then printed my statement and Miller's acknowledgment that he had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank. He had no account at either bank.

DEPOSITOR TURNED TABLES.

The reporter turned the tables and he helped the now along until Miller threatened to call the police. Then the reporter took the chairman to the District-Attorney's office and there made a charge against the syndicate. That was the first complaint against Miller, and Mr. Steele, the then District-Attorney, grabbed it eagerly. I was included in the complaint with Miller, though why is still a mystery, except that it was at the suggestion of the reporter.

MONEY PAID TO "CAPPERS."

"It is impossible to give any idea in cold type of the amount of money that came in daily and the commissions paid to 'cappers.' So profitable did the commission business become that even washerwomen left their tubs to talk to their friends about the gold mine. Doctors 'worked' their patients, as I have already said. "I have seen the ministers and the doctors and the washerwomen and the bootblacks and the butchers and the bakers and the candlestick makers all fighting in that building to lead in the lambs. Every one had but the one idea—to collect the 5 per cent. on the 'come-on's' deposit."

HAD GREAT POLITICAL PULL.

"There is no doubt in my mind that Miller had behind him in his swindling career more political backing than any schemer, swindler or gambler that this country has ever seen. He had as clients, to my knowledge, politicians of the highest rank, Senators, Assemblymen and leaders of both parties. The line of his political influence could be traced from the strongest man of the State down to the smallest ward heeler, all of whom were indirectly in his pay. That is, they received their bribes either in dividends of 10 per cent. a week or in commissions for bringing customers to him."

MILLER CARRIED BLUFF TO THE END.

Now on that day when the reporter left he mentioned my name in his story. He did the same thing on Tuesday, when all of the New York papers were devoting whole columns to denouncing Miller and his band of thieves. That, of course, brought me prominently before the public. My name was registered in the District-Attorney's office for reference. So far as the police were concerned, I had no more fear of them than would a well-to-do farmer, who knows that the gambling place where he is employed pays for protection.

STORY DIDN'T HOLD.

But this is what makes me wild with rage when I think of it—the reporter made copious notes, left me and went to Miller. He told