

AMERICAN WIFE OF KING HUMBERT'S ASSASSIN SAYS HE IS A COWARD AND AFRAID OF A MOUSE.

HE HATED KINGS.

Gaetano was a Socialist, and hated Kings and Queens and capitalists, but he never spoke of killing any one.

Of late I noticed that he was very quiet, but I took no special note of it, as he was usually moody except when he played with Madeline.

The letter was full of expressions of love for me and Madeline. He left me on May 22 and sailed for Havre on the steamer La Gasconne.

I am an American girl. My name was Sophie Noel. We were married while I worked with him three years ago in a silk mill here in West Hoboken.

HOW I MET MY HUSBAND.

I first met my husband in West Hoboken. I came on here on a visit from my Chicago home and met him while in West Hoboken.

I have always had a peculiar fondness for the study of languages. He wanted to learn English and I, Italian. We met for mutual instruction. In that way the attachment grew and we were married.

My husband was one of the best that ever lived. He comes of excellent family. He has one brother, Lorenzo, a merchant in Florence, and another brother, Angelo, a Captain in the Italian army. He has a sister, whose name I do not remember, married in Florence.

In the old country my husband occupied a good position. He was an excellent workman, and probably the best in the firm of the Hamel & Booth Company, in Paterson.

When he came here, where he came from, what a man has been or is family connections, do not count. He earned $2 a week.

ASSASSIN'S EDUCATION.

He was a man of the most refined tastes. He had received a good education, and had all the instincts of a gentleman. He showed this in his polite and quiet and in many other ways.

It is this that makes me marvel that he could commit such a deed. It is not his fault, rather, it is mine. He was not a man of a degree of effeminacy. He was a man of domestic tastes.

In fact, he was made rather a laughing stock by the neighbors on account of his love for Madeline, our baby, now eighteen months old.

He talked sometimes about travels, and said this country would become as bad as foreign countries in time, and talked as if other people talk every day in the week to whom no attention is paid.

HIS FATAL ASSOCIATES.

I didn't know he was connected with any societies and never saw any of his Socialist companions. They must have driven him to this dreadful deed.

He had been talking ever since we were married about going back to Italy. His mother left several thousand dollars when she died at Prato. He often spoke of going back to get it. But he said it might embarrass his mother if he took the money, which was in the hands, from him, and so he let the money be.

In this year he decided to go home and to visit the Paris Exposition. He was going was perfectly open. There was nothing suspicious about it. He went on May 17 sailing on La Gasconne. He wrote to me from Paris and sent me several books.

He stayed in Paris about ten days and then went on to Prato.

He intended to go to Milan and see to take a trip through the Monte Carlo. He was to be in Milan for ten days, and then to visit the Paris Exposition. He had had no intention at that time to kill the King.

KING SLAYER'S LETTERS.

I received several letters from him from Prato. The last one came last week. In it he wrote that he intended to return home the first week in September.

Julio Munelli, a friend of his in Madison street, Hoboken, also received a letter from him last week. In it he told how he was with his friends and how he was with his brother and said he would return early in September. He excused himself to Munelli for not making a parlor call.

He wrote to another young man in Hoboken, whose name I do not remember, to the same effect, and asked after little Madeline in that letter.

WIFE'S LAST LETTER.

I wrote to him about once a week. Whether they found any of my letters or him I do not know. These letters may be read by all the world. They are almost entirely about domestic affairs.

I am told a letter from a woman was found on him when he was arrested. I didn't write it.

I don't know of any woman in New York who might have written such a letter.

GIRL ANARCHIST UNKNOWN.

I never heard of Ernesta Crevalle, the leader of the Paterson Anarchists. I never met any of his so-called Socialist friends.

MRS. SOPHIE BRESCI, Wife of King Humbert's Assassin. From the only photograph published in any newspaper. Given exclusively to The Evening World by Mrs. Bresci.

MURDERER'S FAREWELL.

When he had me farewell he gave no indication that he might never return, or that something serious might happen.

He was very sorry to leave Madeline, but I am sure he never expected anything to happen. I am positive he never intended to die as he did.

I believe his deed was the result of a sudden impulse. He became excited, and did it on the impulse of the moment.

I am afraid I will never see him again. What do they do with them in Italy? Do they shoot them or hang them or what?

I know that they will never let him go anywhere, and I am sure he is insane or will become insane. He must have been insane when he did this.

I will never see him again. I cannot stand to see him. I do not want my child to know anything of this, and I could not bear to stay here much longer.

BRESCI A MUSICIAN.

He was somewhat of a musician. He played a little on stringed instruments, the guitar and the lute. He was very fond of hearing music.

I will write somewhere. I cannot stand to see him. I do not want my child to know anything of this, and I could not bear to stay here much longer.

POLICE CHIEF INERT.

No Anarchists in Paterson Says Grant, and He Reads the Papers, Too.

Chief of Police Grant, of Paterson, doesn't know there are any Anarchists in Paterson. He said so in an Evening World reporter this morning.

Grant was asked, "Do you know of the existence of Anarchist organizations in Paterson?"

"No, only through the newspapers," was the early response.

"But they hold meetings here," suggested the reporter.

"I don't know of the existence of any Anarchists here, and neither do more than any Anarchists."

"Have you received any reports from the Federal authorities at Washington as to the number of Bresci's probable accomplices?"

"No."

"Where are the headquarters of the Anarchists?"

"All over the country," he replied.

GIRL ANARCHIST SAYS ASSASSIN IS A HERO.

Ernesta Crevalle, the girl Anarchist leader of Paterson, defined her principles this morning as follows:

"This is not a free country. Nowhere are the poor poorer or the rich richer."

"It is not the hereditary kings we would abolish. It is an oppressor, he is President, 'our' or 'parent.' Our oppressors are the wealth dictators."

"What is the use of the ballot to a woman? We outnumber men, but we will never be permitted to vote."

"Anarchy is pictured in blood and fire. We must have strong measures."

"Killing a king makes people think. Every monarch in Europe will go to bed tonight resolved to ease up the burden of his household, if not of his whole country."

"King Humbert is dead. If Angelo Bresci did it, it was for the best. Humbert never did any good."

"Why never think of what follows. A bad ruler should be removed. 'Glorious' good' Carnova's' splendid! The Empress of Austria? No, we war not on women."

"It was a fearful thing," Lord Salisbury said, "to contemplate the depth of human villainy beneath the smiling surface of society, and which threatened the destinies of society in the early future."

The assassination could not be considered private revenge, it was nothing but that moral right for humanity which is the power and cause of modern civilization, and had time and again led men to the commission of the foulest crimes and atrocities the very essence of society if it could not be arrested."

He did not propose to speak of remedies for such a state of things. Modern society had erred on the side of leniency. The address was adopted both in the House of Lords and in the Commons."

WILL CARE FOR HIS FAMILY.

Paterson anarchists will take care of the wife and daughter of Gaetano Bresci, the assassin of King Humbert.

Ernesta Crevalle, their woman leader, announced this in an Evening World reporter in Lotta's saloon, at 208 Straight street, Paterson, today.

"Why should Mrs. Bresci despair or grieve?" she said to the reporter. "She should be proud. She is the wife of a hero, whose devotion to our cause has led him to offer his life."

"She need not fear. She will never suffer or want. Our society never sees the families of its heroes suffer. Every Anarchist, not only in Paterson but in every city, town and community of the world, will cheerfully contribute to her support. Already a fund has been started. How much it is I will not say, but it assures her of comfort. She need not fear."

"We rejoice that as much is being said of anarchy now. It is what we want. It spreads our doctrines better than the papers we have and the pamphlets we circulate. Many will read our words to you, think of them and then become of us."

"I repeat again that the society in Paterson did not know that Bresci was to take the life of the King."

"We never know when any great deed like that is to be done. We are anxious to make us distinguished from the contractors. We have no head or governing power. We have simply an administration. Everything done by us is done individually. One member never divulges what his plans are."

"Our society never says 'Do,' but we say 'Well done.'"

ON TO PEKING NOW.

Shot Himself in Central Park.

A man was found dead on a bench in Central Park, near Seventy-second street and Eighth avenue, this afternoon, having shot himself with a revolver. A letter was found on him addressed to the hotel at the Steamboat Hotel at Asbury Park.

The man was about thirty years old; feet 5 inches tall and weighed about 100 pounds. He was of light complexion, smooth-shaven face.

It's pouring bargains, and it pours on the just and unjust alike.

Here is what we call a "bus" lot of trousers—the landing place for all remnants.

The aristocratic $9, $8 and $7 trousers along with the more plebeian $6 and $5 "pants" all get there when the assortment of sizes becomes "broke up."

A couple of thousand or more pair in all.

Imagine their feelings at being sold for $2.50 and $3.50—$2.50 for waists measuring under 32 inches; $3.50 for 32's and above.

But "misery loves company" so we have taken all the fag ends of our suit sale and pitched them in along with the rest.

Matched coats and vests, $5; odd coats, $3.50; odd vests, $1. Trousers at all three stores.

Coats and vests at our Prince Street store only.
