

WOMAN WED NINE TIMES.

Mrs. Boyden Claims to Be Champion Wife and Widow.

NEWBURG, Ind., Jan. 2.—Mrs. Polly Boyden lays claim to being the champion wife and widow of the world. She has been married nine times during her fifty years of life, and is willing to wed again if the right man comes along. George Boyden, her last helpmeet, committed suicide last Friday.

Mrs. Boyden is one of the prettiest women in the town. She would pass for thirty easily. She was born Castleman. One husband died, one committed suicide, and seven were divorced or got divorced. One, George Boyden, married her twice and was twice divorced. He committed suicide, too.

Henry Fuquay was Polly Castleman's first husband. She was twenty then. They were divorced and she married James H. Robinson. This marriage was just as unfortunate, and for the second time divorce followed.

Then Joseph Fuquay, cousin of her first love, tried it. He succeeded no better. Result: Divorce No. 3. James White came fourth on the list. The couple quarreled on their wedding day, and after a few months of it White leaped into a chert. Husband No. 5 was Samuel Walters. In three months she divorced him.

Washington Ewing, Polly Castleman's sixth matrimonial venture, turned the tables. It was he who got the divorce after a few months' unhappiness. George S. Boyden dared to become No. 7. He was smitten despite his much-married bride's terrible record for divorce. He proved his love by living in peace with her for fifteen years. Then his wife could stand it no longer and she got her inevitable divorce.

The eighth partner was Samuel Wood. At last, Polly Castleman seemed happy. But death stepped in when the divorce courts still. The widow was inconsolable till George Boyden came a-courting for the second time.

Alan, one month was all. George Boyden gave up the struggle and jumped down the well. His wife—so soon to be a widow again—let down the bucket, but he refused to seize it and he hauled back to life again. And so he died.

"I don't see any reason why I shouldn't marry again," said the widow to-day. "If the right man comes along, I'm young and not bad looking, and I can make a good wife to any man who will let me have my own way. The great trouble with the average husband is that he wants the whole thing, and to this I object."

BIG RESERVOIR BURSTS.

Reading Tracks Flooded Near Philadelphia and Trains Delayed.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—The Queen Lane reservoir has burst, and water is rushing from the basin in torrents. The Richmond branch of the Reading Railroad is flooded and all trains for New York are forced to go out by the subway.

Thieves Respected the New Year.

Capt. Titus, of the Detective Bureau, remarked to-day that he had received no reports of stolen pocketbooks or watches in the great crowds which thronged the streets during the New Year celebration. A fact that he considers remarkable.

MURDERESS WEEPS OVER HER BOY AS SHE IS LED BACK TO A CELL.

Mrs. Ertell Wants to Pay the Penalty of Her Crime and Makes No Defense.

Love for her seven-year-old boy is the predominating influence over Mrs. Margaret Ertell, who murdered George Deges, her Greek lover. She is now in Raymond Street Jail awaiting trial for her crime.

It was her love for the boy, whom she had deserted with his father, that led to her arrest. When she was arraigned in the Adams Street Court, charged with her terrible deed, she confessed it without emotion.

"I killed him and I'm not sorry," she said. "He insulted me and we quarrelled. I shot him twice and I'm ready to answer for the crime."

When she was being led away she was confronted by her husband and her bright-eyed boy. Of her husband she took small notice, but when she saw the boy her breast heaved and she rushed toward him, clasping him in her arms and sobbing convulsively as she kissed him again and again.

"My God!" she cried. "My child! That was all she said, and when her husband spoke to her, offering her legal aid, she said: 'Don't speak to me; I don't deserve it. If I wanted a lawyer I could get one, but I don't. I simply killed the man who ruined my life.'"
