ARE PROF. G. D. HERRON AND MISS CARRIE RAND MARRIED?

MISS CARRIE RAND

Odd Entry in Hotel Register Starts a Query - The Professor Maintains Silence on His Return from Boston.

Are Prof. George D. Herron and Miss Carrie Rand married?

On the room slip at the Empire Hotel, where Miss Rand is stopping, there appears this record:

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Herron, Chicago, Feb. 19, 1901.

The clerks at the Empire absolutely refuse to say anything concerning the matter, but it is certain that Prof. Herron, Miss Carrie Rand, her sister and Mrs. Rand registered at the Empire on Feb. 19 from Chicago.

The register recording the arrival of the party has been withdrawn from the desk. It bears also this other record, dated April 6: 'Mrs. Herron, Chicago, Ill., 740 P. M., 1901.'

'Let me explain that register,' said the clerk in an Evening World reporter.

'That is not Mrs. Herron. I mean, you know Mrs. Herron obtained a divorce from her husband in Chicago, and we did not know these parties when they registered here in February.'

'They registered, George D. Herron and the Rand party, and Prof. Herron's name remains. We made a mistake on the book and I signed that name Mr. Herron to keep our books straight. That is all.'

That was all, the clerk was asked.

Clerks at Empire Say the Record "Mrs. Herron" Was Placed There to Correct an "Error in the Books."

Wentworth, a stenographer.

To an Evening World reporter Mr. Wentworth said:

'Dr. Herron will see no newspaper man. He will neither confirm nor deny the charges, so unjust, so cruel, made against him. He believes in taking an attitude of silence, assured that the attacks of his enemies will soon pass away.'

Mr. Wentworth expressed much surprise when informed that Dr. Herron and Miss Rand were registered at the Empire.

'Was Mrs. Herron here April 6?' he was asked.

'What Mrs. Herron was it was registered at the Hotel Empire?'

'I don't know.'

'What was the number of Dr. Herron's apartment at the Empire?'

'That was also the number indicated as Mrs. Herron's room April 6,' said the reporter.

'There is some great mistake,' said Mr. Wentworth.

'Do you think the professor was married secretly?'

'No. Miss Rand, her mother and sister occupy room No. 92 at the Empire.'

FRANKLIN FIELD, PHILADELPHIA, April 25.—Splendid weather favored the annual relay carnival of the University of Pennsylvania this afternoon, which attracted all the famous college athletes in America.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 27.—Richard Murphy, the youngest son of ex-United States Senator Edward Murphy, Jr., came into the Albany City Court this morning with Miss Elizabeth W. McConbie.

He asked hurriedly for City Judge Severance.

When the Judge appeared a whispered conversation was held and immediately after the couple were united in marriage.

Both returned to talk.

Go to Be at Grand Dinner.

Recorder Goff, William E. Puffer and Charles N. Alden, of New York, will go to Jersey City to-night to attend the W. G. Grant birthday banquet in the Union League Club.

Gov. Voorhees and Supreme Court Justices of New Jersey will also attend.

Dr. Greene's Nervura Cures Children

A. O. Smith, Northfield Centre, Vt., says: 'My little daughter Eva had St. Vitus Dance with all its horrible symptoms. We and our neighbors thought her case hopeless. The most skillful physician I could get failed to help her. I commenced giving her Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. The first bottle helped her, the second made a marked improvement, and the fourth cured her. She is now the picture of health.'

L. C. Reed, Hegewisch, Ill., writes: 'My little son Luke was very nervous after having scarlet fever. He could not hold his right arm and leg still. Our physician's treatment made him worse. I got one bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and before it was all taken the St. Vitus Dance was gone. It is wonderful the way the medicine worked.'

Mrs. J. W. Olin, Perry, N. Y., says: 'Our baby Kenneth was two years old and so nervous that he could not sleep. Neither would he eat scarcely anything. One bottle of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy cured his completely, and I cannot say enough in praise of this wonderful medicine.'

Mrs. B. B. Bowie, Lisbon Falls, Me., says: 'My daughter Lena, five years old, was taken with the St. Vitus Dance. She was so bad that she could not feed herself, nor could she use her left hand, and could not talk so we could understand her. She could not walk without falling down. After taking two bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy she was entirely cured.'

Mrs. Herbert E. Harrington, Box 274, Adams, Mass., says: 'After two years with our local doctors, we took our little boy Royal to a specialist and he told us that Royal had epilepsy and was incurable. He lost his speech for six weeks and continued having fits as he was taken in a night. We saw Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy advertised in the paper so we got a bottle and gave it to Royal as directed. In three days the fits left him, and we have seen nothing of them since.'

Mrs. H. H. Watson, 153 Bloomfield St., Worcester, Mass., says: 'My daughter Ethel May had twenty-six convulsions in two years. Her appetite was very bad; she could not sleep nights, her limbs would draw up, and she suffered, oh, so much! She was as yellow as saffron and weak and delicate. Our local doctors gave her up. But, thanks to a wonderful medicine, she is now perfectly well and healthy. This remedy is Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and it has completely cured my little girl.'

JAMES RYAN received a fractured skull Nov. 20, 1898; died the next day at Gouverneur Hospital after his case had been diagnosed an alcoholism.

PATRICK WALSH fell in a fit May 15, 1897; attended by ambulance surgeon from Roosevelt Hospital, who left him on the sidewalk for a Bellevue ambulance.

at which he was present, the bullet that is said to have killed Grogan was shown him.

On cross-examination he said that he did not see the bullet until Dr. Durrell removed it. There was no description of it written at the time of the autopsy.

'Was anything done at the autopsy to show the bullet was a .32-caliber?'

'I have an impression that it was a .32-caliber revolver.'

'At the time of the autopsy?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Did you see the bullet?'

'Yes, sir.'

The cross-examiner representing the prisoner, called to the scene of the crime in the cemetery at Mount Auburn.

Dr. Durrell said that when the bullet was shown to him he was not sure of the time of the autopsy it fitted loosely. The revolver and the bullet were placed before the doctor, he fitted the leaden pellet, as was done at the autopsy.

Eastman gains by the Evidence Given Concerning It.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 27.—From present appearances the trial of Charles R. Eastman, of Harvard, charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, Richard H. Grogan, by shooting in the city July 4 last, will not only run into next week but will occupy the entire week if not more.

The bullet which killed Grogan was introduced today and identified by physicians who performed the autopsy. A hard fight is expected between the opposing counsel over the identification of the bullet. After the men who have handled the bullet have told their stories, Sergt. Petty, of the New York police force, and other firearms experts will testify regarding the weapon from which the bullet was fired.

Dr. Thomas Durrell, County Medical Examiner, testified that on the night of July 4 he had a conversation with Eastman at the Clark estate. Mrs. Eastman and Attorney Clark and two Cambridge police officers were present. He asked Eastman how the shooting happened and Eastman replied that he had the old revolver in his hand and was trying to turn the cylinder when the pistol went off.

Eastman added that he heard a cry from Grogan. He started toward his brother-in-law and heard the click of his revolver. He saw in Grogan's face 'a deathly look,' and started to run.

When he realized, however, that Grogan was seriously hurt, he went back. He then wounded brother-in-law in the house.

Referring to the autopsy of July 4,

THE NEW YORK BREAKS SHAFT.

American Liner Will Not Arrive Here Until Next Tuesday.

The American liner New York will not arrive at this port today as scheduled.

She is limping across the Atlantic with her port shaft broken and will probably arrive next Tuesday.

News of the New York comes from Queenstown, where the captain of the Campania reported that by met the New York at noon Wednesday in mid-ocean and that the New York signaled that she had broken her port shaft.

The New York reported that all on board was well and she was proceeding at a fair speed with one engine.

The New York sailed from Southampton tonight at noon last Saturday.

She has broken the identical shaft that was renewed at Newport News after her trip from Southampton ending Monday. It is reported that an ammonia condenser in the steam-making plant exploded, killing an assistant steward and a steerage passenger and injuring twenty-four persons.

On the next day, while some miles from this port, the fall-shaft of her port engine broke in two places near the propeller. The chief engineer, the chief and assistant engineers, washed the propeller so that it could not fall into the sea.

The liner came on under her starboard engine only at a speed of from twelve to fifteen miles, and was sent immediately to Newport News, where a spare shaft was fitted in position, and she sailed again from New York on April 26.

William Fitzgerald, a fashionably-dressed young man, charged with passing bad checks, was today arraigned before Magistrate Meade in the West Side Police Court and remanded for examination until Monday afternoon.

He was arrested on complaint of Thomas Healy, a restaurateur at Sixty-sixth street and Columbus avenue, on whom he passed a check for $5 drawn on the Hamilton Bank. It purported to be signed by the Fitzgerald Brewing Company of Troy.

Fitzgerald said he was closely related to the owner of the brewing company. In court he denied the story that when he was arrested letters from a prominent society woman were found in his possession.

Representatives of the Hotel Savoy, Shanley's and several other places were in court anxious to press complaints against him. At the Hotel Savoy he was known as William H. Fitzgerald, at the Hotel Albert as William W. Fordham and at the Hotel Albert as William Feeney.

Several diamond rings disappeared from a fashionable Irving place boarding-house about the same time as did Fitzgerald, who left an unpaid board bill.

FIRE IN CROCKER MANSION.

Electric Wires Start a Blaze That Is Soon Extinguished.

There was a fire in the mansion of George Crocker, the California millionaire, at No. 1 East Sixty-fourth street, at 11 o'clock last night.

The family did not return when an odor of smoke was noticed in the butler's pantry, where the woodwork was smoldering from an imperfect electric wire insulation. Word was sent to an electrician and a fireman was sent over with an axe to cut away the woodwork and extinguish the blaze.

DOUGLAS AND TRAVIS WIN.

Brilliant Play in Lakewood's Big Golf Tourney.

(Special to The Evening World.)

LAKESIDE, N. J., April 27.—The golfers competing today in the Lakewood open tournament had ideal weather for their sport, the sun was warm and bright and the links were in superb condition. In addition to the semi-finals and finals for the three cups an eighteen-hole handicap is being played, in which there are eighty-two entries.

The feature of the day was the match between Walter J. Travis, the present amateur champion, and George C. Dunlop, winner of the recent Pineburg open tournament. Dunlop held the lead in the grand stand during the first nine holes. He was a little nervous on the start and Travis won the first hole by 6 to 5. Then the hostilities settled down and played good golf. Travis was two up at the fourth hole and honors were even at the sixth and again at the turn.

The other match which received attention was the contest between Philby S. Douglas and W. M. McCawley, which was the most absorbing played and resulted in a victory for Douglas by 2 up and 1 to play. The scores follow:

Walter J. Travis, Golden Gate, 18—20.

George C. Dunlop, Country Club, 18—20.

Philby S. Douglas, 18—20.

W. M. McCawley, 18—20.
