

FIELD'S HEIRESS MARRIES AGAIN.

Mrs. Tree, Who Will Inherit $50,000,000, Recently Divorced, Weds Britisher.

ETHEL FIELD TREE BEATTY.

LONDON, May 24.—Mrs. Arthur Tree, daughter of Marshall Field, of Chicago, was married Wednesday to Capt. David Beatty, of the Royal Navy.

The marriage is the sequel to the divorce recently secured by Mrs. Tree's husband, who is a son of Lambert Tree, and goes far to dispel the mystery and that enshrouded it. Mrs. Tree sued on the ground of desertion, but it was hinted at the time that the real cause of the separation was an attachment between Mrs. Tree and an English army or navy officer.

Heiress to $50,000,000. Mrs. Beatty is heiress to the $50,000,000 which the Chicago merchant prince is credited with possessing. She was always the pet of the millionaire, and he became more than ever wrapped up in her after his son displeased him by his marriage to a Miss Huck, of whom Mr. Field did not approve.

After her wedding to Mr. Tree on New Year's Day, 1891, in Chicago, the young couple settled down to what seemed assured wedded bliss on the old Ashorne estate, in Warwickshire, England, which is only a short distance from the famous Avon Castle immortalized by Shakespeare. They entertained on a magnificent scale, and became part of the exclusive set headed by the Countess of Warwick, the friend of the Prince of Wales.

Discord Crept In. They were then a devoted couple and three children blessed their union, of whom but one is now living. After the first few years, however, discord crept into the home and the repugnance of husband and wife toward one another became common gossip in Warwick. It was whispered at first that the advent of an English army officer, who made no secret of his admiration for Mrs. Tree, was the cause of the estrangement. Then Capt. Beatty's name was introduced as the disturbing element.

Passed By, but Never Spoke. At any rate the situation again became an odd one. Mr. Tree was the first to desert Ashorne. He went to live on The Farm, an unpretentious place only a few miles away, taking his child with him. Mrs. Tree continued to reside at Ashorne, and her brother, Marshall Field, Jr., leased Wellesbourne, a cottage a mile away, thus constituting a social safeguard for his sister. All the parties concerned met in Warwick society at least twice a week, but neither Mrs. Tree nor her brother recognized Mr. Tree, though they rode to the same pack of hounds.

The preponderance of British sympathy went out to Mr. Tree, who was recognized as a well-bred, cultivated gentleman and a charming host and companion.

Husband Gave Up Millions. In March of this year Mr. Tree entered his suit for divorce, and it was not opposed. The only charge made was that of desertion, and a decree was speedily granted. As a result, Mr. Tree gained possession of his boy, but relinquished all claim to the wife's $50,000,000 inheritance in process.

Mrs. Beatty is getting pretty and famous for her splendid gown. Her two most intimate friends are the Countess of Warwick and Mrs. Mackay. maintenance for herself and child during the pendency of the suit. Mrs. Beatty states in her answer that her husband, George Beak, is manager of the industrial department of the Standard Security Company in this city. George Beak denies every allegation made by his former wife. Suit for abandonment had been brought against his former wife, he says, because she had positively declined to come to Louisville to live, and, in fact, had deserted him while he was living at Staten Island. The charges against his present wife were pronounced wholly untrue by both Mr. and Mrs. Beak.

MYSTERIOUS MARRIAGE. Mother Her Daughters Bridesmaid—Continuing Parties Keep Secret. Samuel McLeary, a student, who gave his residence at the Hotel Washington, was married in Jersey City yesterday afternoon by Justice of the Peace Frank P. Lehane to Miss Horatio Carroll, of Oakland, California. Mrs. Alice Carroll, mother of the bride, was bridesmaid.

There is a mystery surrounding the marriage which has not been explained. Under the laws of New Jersey, one of the contracting parties to a marriage must have a residence in the State. McLeary secured this by registering at the Washington. They would not talk about the wedding and begged that the newspaper men be refused the announcement of the union. They left at 4 o'clock for Oakland.

FORMER WIFE'S GRAVE CHARGES.

Lily Beak Alleges Fraud in Husband's Divorce.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 24.—Lily Beak, now living in Jersey City, has filed a sensational affidavit in the Circuit Court here, alleging that she was not informed of her husband's petition for divorce until the decree had been given, and that as soon as she heard of the proceedings, she began correspondence for the purpose of investigating the matter. Beak was granted a divorce by Judge Miller on March 15 from Lily Beak on the alleged ground of abandonment. Mrs. Beak charges that the divorce was procured by the fraud and collusion of her husband and the woman who was his wife. With the filing of the affidavit an answer and counter-claim of Mrs. Beak also filed, in which she again demands the charge of abandoning her husband and alleges that she abandoned her husband as he was being taken to court and was called to support her and was treated with cruelty. She asks for her husband's petition for divorce to be annulled, that she be granted the same, and that she be awarded $10 per week.

ANOTHER WOMAN IN AYRES CASE.

Police Are Looking for the New Witness.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Now the police think another woman was in the Kenmore Hotel room when James Seymour Ayres was killed. She is said to be a guest of the hotel, but the police confess they are having difficulty in proving it. Mrs. Bonine, the woman who confessed shooting Ayres, is no ordinary swimmer. Evidence of this is daily coming to life. To-day a letter written by Mrs. Bonine was made public by a school principal who had her two sons as pupils. He had asked her for an expression of opinion of home study, and this was her reply: "I would suggest that the home study consist of questions so arranged that some one at home, not understanding the present system of teaching, could ask, orally, questions concerning the principal points of the day's lessons, and let the child write the answers on a paper, to be submitted to the teacher next day, thus combining oral and written study, doubly impressing the salient topics of the past work. "If say past work, because in confining home study to review you have positive information as to how much the child retains of what is brought out in recitation. While, if his study consists of preparatory work without the guide of the teacher in perceiving points, he may form erroneous conclusions which may not, because they are the products of his own induction, be entirely erased by subsequent correction. "The process of induction which should be the principal object in teaching, can be conducted to much better advantage by the teacher, if no previous impressions have been formulated. "MRS. J. L. BONINE."
