

NIGHT EDITION

The

World

BASEBALL and RACING

PRICE ONE CENT.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1901.

PRICE ONE CENT.

$800,000 BET ON YACHT RACE

BASEBALL

$300,000 BET AGAINST $500,000 BY KINGSLEY.

He Put Up His $150,000 Against Americans' $250,000 and Offered to Double the Bet with New Yorkers—His Offer Accepted.

Nearly $1,000,000 in two bets on the result of the Cup races will be up by to-morrow night. Walter J. Kingsley, the English newspaper man and betting commissioner for the English syndicate, has wired from Pittsburg offering to double his bet of $150,000 to $250,000, made a few days ago at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The offer was taken at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

This will make $500,000 of American money posted on the chances of the cup defender against $300,000 of English money—$800,000 in all. Such betting has never before been done or heard of.

At Pittsburg this afternoon Mr. Kingsley turned over thirty-one one-thousand pound Bank of England notes and Mr. Mustin gave a certified check for $250,000.

Another $150,000 of English money is over here looking for a second bet on Shamrock against $250,000 American money on Constitution or which-ever yacht is selected to defeat the cup.

J. Montgomery Smart, of the Produce Exchange, received a despatch this afternoon from J. H. Kingsley, the agent of the English syndicate who placed $150,000 on Shamrock at the Waldorf, saying he was ready with another $150,000 at the same odds, or half that sum. Mr. Smart immediately communicated with F. H. Brooks, of Seligsberg & Co., of No. 70 Broadway, who arranged the former wager and has since put up $10,000 against $8,000 that the Shamrock will not lift the cup.

Mr. Brooks visited the Stock Exchange and other places where sporting blood flows, and an effort is being made to raise at least enough to meet half the offer.

Mr. Brooks went to Long Branch to see some millionaire friends, after a tour of the Stock Exchange betters, which netted him only about $10,000.

He expects to meet Mr. Kingsley at soon to-morrow and close the bet.

It is understood that Bell & Co. have received a telegram from Mr. Kingsley offering them any part of a bet of $150,000 at the odds of 5 to 3 on the American boat. It is likely that Bell & Co. will combine with Mr. Brooks in placing the big bet.

Mr. Brooks says he doesn't think the odds are now quite so good as three to one on Constitution.

Previous to to-day $400,000 had been bet on the cup race. The wager to-day of $75,000 against $125,000 makes the total amount bet to date $500,000.

C. A. PEARSON IS NOT BETTING.

The following letter was received today by The Evening World from C. N. Greig, Vice-President of the Pearson Publishing Company:

"We have just received a cablegram from our Mr. C. Arthur Pearson, requesting us to deny the recent news-

(Continued on Fourth Page.)

NEW YORKS LOSE AND ARE NOW IN LAST PLACE.

SCORE BY INNINGS.

CHICAGO	1	0	1	1	2	1	0	4	0	10
NEW YORK	0	1	0	0	1	1	0	0	1	4

BROOKLYN VS. ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS	2	0	1	0	0	0	1	0	4	8
BROOKLYN	0	0	0	0	5	2	0	0	0	7

At Boston—Boston, 0; Pittsburg, 5.

LATE RESULTS AT SHEEPSHEAD BAY.

Sixth Race—Fatalist 1, Astor 2, Belgrade 3.

LEAGUE'S TAIL END FOR LOSERS

Giants and Chicago Teams Played for the "Booby Prize" at Polo Grounds—Davis Tried Pitcher "Al" Maul.

(Special to The Evening World.)

POLO GROUNDS, Sept. 2.—Only the faithful came up to the ball field under Coogan's bluff to see the baseball representatives of Gotham in action with a similar aggregation paid to represent Chicago in the League circuit.

Little honor was attached to the loser of to-day's game, providing, of course, the Cincinnati outfit, which was tied with the New Yorkers, should win its game from the Quakers.

"Sixth place or the end" was the writing the Harlem men read on the wall of their club-house before they came out on the field.

"It will never be the latter," said Davis. "Our boys have become imbued with some life and from now on we'll don't think there'll be anything like such a mournful turn on the lot this afternoon. Doyle's aggregation is an ornament in the despised place, and by my managerial crown they'll be there when this day's work is over."

But now easy is it to talk. Much easier than handling batted spheres, say you, or placing hits. Yes, it's true, for Jack Doyle had his say, too, before the game. So on that matter it was even money at post time.

No less a collection of ball-chasers than the Pittsburg pirates will be here to-morrow. That Western crowd will engage in six arguments ahead during their three days' stay. The first of the

The Batting Order.

New York	Chicago
Selbach, lf.	Hartzel, lf.
McBride, rf.	Green, cf.
Van Halteren, cf.	Dexter, rf.
Davis, ss.	Doyle, lb.
Strang, 2b.	Raymer, ss.
Murphy, 2b.	Childs, 2b.
Connel, lb.	Hickey, 3b.
Warner, c.	Kahoe, c.
Maul, p.	Menefee, p.
Umpire—Emmie.

Double events will begin to-morrow, and only rain can prevent it.

A New Giant Out.

There was a new Giant out in the early practice today. He was Al Maul, a twiler of no mean repute. The National League club know him well. He has had a job with pretty nearly every one of them. But he is a Giant now, and from the middle of the diamond this afternoon he flung up his best with the purpose of deception. Al once gained a knock of using both wings, and he did it pretty well, but side shows had to be cut out of today's order of events and Al was obliged to depend solely on his starboard wing.

Al seemed enthused by Maul's impudently, and he did a practice stunt with his left, and the few hundred spectators on the grand stand observed much amusement.

"Nobody would expect Doyle to be able to tell who would comprise his outtry before the game. The Chicagoans are somewhat dilapidated, you know."

First Inning.

Hartzel rolled one out for a bag. Selbach was under Green's lift. Davis grounded Dexter's pop-up. Doyle stepped off a double, but Hartzel got home. Strang flung Kaymer's roller over. One run.

Green struck Selbach's high one. McBride's slash netted him a corner. Hartzel was where Van's bomb fell. Davis got a base on his triple. Doyle alone finished Strang. No runs.

Second Inning.

Childs connected for a bag. Hickey took the count of three and set down. Davis made a pretty stop of Kahoe's hurler and got it to second just in time to force Childs. Strang did right with Doyle's grounder. No runs.

Murphy sprouted to second on his line. Doyle's grounder had been a John Gangel lived up to his name by putting one up for Kahoe. Murphy got to third on this. Raymer boosted one for Kahoe, too. Maul was instantly installed a favorite when he cracked out a single that scored Murphy. Selbach followed with a one-timer. Raymer handled McBride's one. One run.

Third Inning.

Hartzel died via the Murphy route and Green got a life because Strang's blunder got away from him. Sammy's bad throw gave Dexter a base, too. Green and Dexter had been a double steal when Doyle tore off a single that allowed Green to cross the plate. Doyle's was caught asleep at first by Warner. Davis took hold of Raymer's pop-up. One run.

Van's attempted bunt was an easy pop-up for Hickey. Davis boated one for Hartzel. Raymer helped retire Strang. No runs.

Menefee had only to pitch four balls in the inning.

Fourth Inning.

Davis assisted Childs out. Hickey landed on the sphere for a bag. Murphy

(Continued on Fourth Page.)

TO-DAY'S NEWS TOLD IN TABLOIDS.

BOAT RANS FERRY SLIP.
The New Jersey Central ferry-boat Lakewood crashed into her New York slip with tremendous force this afternoon, breaking large wooden planks in the wagon run of the ferry-house and overturning flagging. A cabman was knocked down and injured.

BROOKLYN WOMAN A SUICIDE.
Marie Hildebrand, forty years old, committed suicide to-day at her home, No. 2470 Third avenue, by taking carbolic acid.

POLICE SEARCH FOR GIRL.
The police were asked to-day to make a search for pretty sixteen-year-old Edna Purcell by her father, William O. Purcell. She went out yesterday and did not return to her home at No. 13 West One Hundred and Nineteenth street.

ELECTRIC VEHICLE CO. SED.
Suit was brought in the Court of Chancery, Jersey City, to-day to have declared illegal the payment of $380,000 in dividends by the Electric Vehicle Company. The plaintiff declared that the company has already lost $5,000,000 and that the dividends were paid out of the capital stock.

MURDER SUSPECTS HELD.
Coroner Banning, of Westchester, decided to-day that neither Warner Simms nor Peter Bucken-hoff, suspects in the Swanoy Golf Club murder mystery, would be admitted to bail until after the inquest. He refused an offer of bail for Buckenhoff to-day.

AFTER THE CAZAR.
Two suspected Anarchists were arrested in the palace grounds at Copenhagen after the Czar's arrival.

STRIKE WAS USELESS.
It is charged against Shaffer, leader of the steel strike, that he ordered a strike when it was useless. The A. F. L. will hear the evidence.

PRESIDENT OFFERS SERVICES.
Secretary Hay, acting for the President, has offered the services of this country to adjust differences between Venezuela and Colombia. He also warns them not to interfere with Isthmian transit.

CORA BRADFORD HELD.
Cora Bradford, who was arrested charging with keeping girls prisoner at her house, No. 214 West Thirty-sixth street, was held without bail by Justice Jerome in Special Sessions to-day.

BORED INTO BRAIN.
As a result of an operation for the removal of a blood clot from the brain, George Joyce, of No. 505 East One Hundred and Sixty-fifth street, showed signs to-day that he will almost completely recover from paralysis of the right side.

His speech, which was lost, returned this afternoon. The operation, which necessitated the boring through of the skull, was performed at the J. Hood Wright Hospital.

SMART FORGER CAUGHT.
Michael Farrell, alias Farley, a clever forger, wanted in several cities, was arrested here to-day charged with raising checks drawn on banks in this city.

SEVEN BLOWS OUT OF BED.
A keg containing ten pounds of powder exploded in the cigar and fancy store of Reuben Ehrlich, in Newark, to-day. The proprietor, who was on the sidewalk, was painfully injured. Two women and five children who were asleep on the first and second floors were blown out of bed, but escaped serious injury.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Forecast for the thirty-six hours ending at 8 P. M. Wednesday for New York City and vicinity: Fair to-night and Wednesday; light northeast winds.

Would you win $100 on the yacht race?
See The Evening World's offer on Page 8 of this edition!

AGENT KINGSLEY TELEPHONES FROM PITTSBURG TO WORLD.

(By long-distance telephone to The Evening World.)
By Walter J. Kingsley, Agent of British Betting Syndicate.

I arrived in Pittsburg this morning and was met by a delegation of brokers, taken to dinner at the Union Club and introduced to all the members of the American syndicate which will take up British bets. I found the greatest excitement here among all classes.

I learn that Carnegie and Morgan are displeased because it has developed that the big financial men in the Steel Trust have taken up the wagers. If they are game, and tell me they are willing to cover any bet at the same odds that Englishmen will make. The money put up is in the Pittsburg Safe Deposit vaults and will be paid at the Waldorf one week after the final race.

STATE TAX BURDEN FOR MANHATTAN.

(Special to The Evening World.)

ALBANY, Sept. 3.—New York and Kings County will bear during the coming fiscal year the great burden of State taxation. The State Board of Tax Commissioners met this afternoon and added large increased valuations on these counties in equalizing real estate valuations for the fiscal year which commences Oct. 1.

The Board added to New York County the enormous sum of $29,112,812 and to Kings County $25,655,550. Last year the State Board of Equalization added $13,556,875 to New York County and $25,167,227 to Kings County.

Thus the additions this year for both counties are larger than they were one year ago. Under the equalization made to-day the percentage of State taxes which New York County will pay next year will be 90.26 and the percentage which Kings County will pay will be 12.85. This year the percentage for New York County was 90.655 and Kings County 12.39.

Richmond County will pay 98 and Queens County 176 next year, so that the real estate embraced within the counties of the Greater New York will be called upon to stand the burden of about 56 per cent of the entire tax levied on real and personal property in this State for State purposes.

This is the 694 story of the State Board meeting on the metropolis the larger share of the burden of State taxation.

MYSTERY SHROUDS FINDING OF SLAIN MAN IN THE WOODS.

The mystery surrounding the murder of Francesca Duro, the Mount Vernon hotel-keeper, promises to make the tragedy celebrated in the annals of crime.

At the very outset the police are confronted with a most puzzling and seemingly irreconcilable contradiction in the testimony at hand.

A seventeen-year-old girl — she saw two Italians pass her in Yonkers last night talking in an excited manner, and that ten minutes later, at 11 o'clock, she heard four shots fired that seemed to come from the place where Duro's body was found to-day.

A woman who lives within a block and a half of the scene of the tragedy says she heard two shots at 11 o'clock last night and that they came from the direction of the lonely spot in the woods where the murder was done.

Duro's barkeeper, on the other hand, declares that his employer did not leave the hotel in Mount Vernon until 11 o'clock last night, and what is still more amazing—the policeman on the beat asserts positively that he saw and talked with Duro a block away from the hotel at 2 o'clock this morning.

The body of a man who had evidently been murdered was found early to-day by John Van Derwende, Jr., a farmer of Valentine Hill, in a remote part of the woods about a half mile north of the Empire City race track in Yonkers.

The dead man has been identified as

Police at Work on Case of Francesca Duro, the Murdered Hotel-keeper of Mount Vernon, Are Confronted with Seemingly Irreconcilable Testimony of Three Positive Witnesses.

Francesca Duro, who kept a hotel and pool parlor at No. 15 North Railroad avenue, Mount Vernon.

John Masso, his bartender, told an Evening World reporter today that he murdered man always carried a large amount of money on his person and that he had $30 in his pockets when he left his place of business last night.

Only 50 cents were found on the body, and there is little doubt that the man was murdered for his money by some one who knew he was in the habit of carrying large amounts around with him.

Masso says his employer left the hotel at 11 o'clock to take a walk, but Police-man Walters, who was on duty on that post, says he met Duro on Mount Vernon avenue a block away, at 2 o'clock and that Duro told him he was going over to Yonkers to meet two friends.

The police believe the man was doomed to the lonesome path in the woods, where he was shot down and robbed.

The discovery of the body was credited by the finding of a White Fedora hat lying in a pool of blood in a path-way leading from the Mile Square Public School No. 4 to a settlement on the Pine Line in Yonkers, known as Sherwood Park.

About one hundred and fifty feet from the path the body was found. It was in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

There was a bullet hole in the left temple and another in the back.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing, having been torn out.

The police, under Acting Captain Woodruff and Detective Sergeant Caspary, made inquiries in the neighborhood at the nearest house, which is situated about five hundred feet from the scene of the murder.

They learned from seventeen-year-old May McGuirk, daughter of a steward at a hotel in Palm Beach, Fla., that she had seen two men passing up the path from the scene of the murder at 7:30 o'clock last night. Both were talking in Italian.

The young girl says that both appeared greatly excited. About ten minutes later she says she saw the man in such a position as to indicate that it had been dragged by the arms. It was clumsily covered with leaves and shrubbery, but the feet protruded.

That robbery was the motive for the crime was shown by a search of the man's clothing. Two pocketbooks, with their contents missing, were found, and the right trousers pocket, which had possibly contained the victim's money, was missing