DEVERY UNDER $1,000 BAIL NOW.

First Deputy Commissioner of Police William S. Devery was arraigned in the Court of Special Sessions before Justice Jerome this afternoon on a warrant charging him with oppression.

He was ready for examination, but on the request of the District Attorney an adjournment was taken to Sept. 25.

Bail was fixed at $1,000 and was furnished by Michael Lyons, the Delmonico of the Bowery, Devery's life-long friend.

The warrant was issued at 1 o'clock and was at once placed in the hands of Policeman Langan, of the Centre Street Court Squad, for service.

He was instructed that he was not to go out and hunt down his superior, but to find means of letting him know that there was a warrant out against him.

The offense charged against the Deputy Commissioner is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine or imprisonment, or both. Conviction would result in forcing him from the Police Department.

Devery Gives Himself Up.

It was 3 o'clock when Devery arrived at the Criminal Courts Building. He was accompanied by his lawyer, Abram Elkus, and by Sgt. Sugden, his confidential man. The courtroom was crowded with politicians and officials in the criminal courts.

Justice Jerome, whom Devery has often referred to as a "little tin soldier," looked up with a joyous smile as the big Deputy Commissioner entered.

Devery was pale and agitated. He returned the smile of the Justice with a defiant frown.

Mr. Elkus stood near the bar, while Devery sat at the table with the reporters. He refused to say anything about the warrant, which had been served on him just outside the door.

Justice Jerome read the complaint. As he reached the end of it Mr. Elkus motioned for Devery to stand up.

The Deputy Commissioner went forward briskly and stood at the side of his lawyer, shifting from one foot to another and pulling at his mustache.

Devery Under Bail.

"Is the prisoner ready to proceed with his examination?" asked the Justice, giving just the slightest emphasis to the word "prisoner."

"We are," responded Mr. Elkus.

"Then call Onelli," said Justice Jerome.

Back from his seat, where he had been gloating over the discomfiture of his Chief, came Onelli, the policeman. He walked like a soldier and had difficulty in concealing the satisfaction he felt.

As he took his seat in the witness stand, he cast a look of triumph at Devery, who dropped his eyes.

At this point Assistant District Attorney Gans announced that he was not ready to proceed with the examination.

Mr. Elkus wanted to go ahead, but Justice Jerome said he would grant an adjournment.

After a conference between the lawyers the date was fixed and Justice Jerome named the amount of the bail, $1,000.

Devery, Sergeant Sugden, Lyons and a number of Devery's friends went from the courtroom to the Indictment Bureau, where the bail bond was made up and signed. Then Devery departed with his lawyer and his confidential man.

At the same time, Policeman Onelli left the building by a back door. His face was wreathed in smiles. Of all the satisfied men con-

Devery was missing from the procuring of the warrant, he was the most satisfied.

On his way uptown Deputy Chief Devery stopped at Police Headquarters long enough to tell the reporters that he would not say anything about his case until after it had been decided in court.

The Warrant Issued.

Justice Jerome heard the testimony upon which the warrant was issued in a secret session held in his chambers.

BIG MIKE SWATS PADDY DIVER.

THE MEN WERE ONCE BOSOM FRIENDS.

Exchanged Compliments at the Polls and a Fierce Fistic Encounter Ensues.

"Big Mike" Callahan, of the Bowery, "handed out" a hot one to "Paddy" Diver in front of No. 158 Canal street this afternoon.

The men, once bosom friends, met in front of a polling place at that number when the fight for the leadership of the Second Assembly District was at its height.

"Ain't you a fine fellow to work a game like that against me?" thundered Diver, as he saw Callahan marshaling the forces of his enemy, Foley, on both sides of the polling place and cutting off the Diver voters' chances to drop their ballots.

"Arrah, gowan!" blustered Callahan. "You never done nothin' slick in politics, did you?"

Diver's face crimsoned, his eyes flashed.

"Say, Callahan, you're a ————!" he yelled.

"Big Mike's" fist shot out. Big! It struck the former Judge in the face.

Diver "came back" and a rough and tumble fight ensued until the two men were separated by friends aided by the police.

Diverites Give Up.

Before the polls had been open two hours there were over fifty fist fights around the different polling places. One arrest was made, Francis J. Finn, of No. 32 Oliver street, defied a policeman and was locked up in the Oak street police station.

At 4 o'clock Daniel O'Rourke, one of Diver's close personal friends and henchmen, after going through the district said: "Foley will win by 1,000 votes. The Judge hasn't a chance as it looks now."

ANARCHISTS ASK DELAY.

Chicago Prisoners Have Habeas Corpus Hearing Postponed.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The Anarchist habeas corpus hearing has been adjourned until Monday next at the request of the prisoners.

Fear of mob violence should the Anarchists appear on the streets was the chief influence with the prisoners in allowing their attorneys to make the motion which will keep them behind the bars another week.

The court was acceptable to the Court, so the attorneys and others interested because of the dissemination to transact business during the period of the nation's deepest mourning.

Emma Goldman received the news of the postponement with her customary jibes and declared that she feared no mob. She is still incarcerated in the woman's annex of the Harrison street police station. The hearing of her case was set for Sept. 19.

the force by openly defying his burly superior, was the chief witness, and it is upon his charge chiefly that the warrant was issued.

Confirmatory testimony was given by a dozen police witnesses whose identity is kept secret for the present.

A conspicuously missing witness was Pagan, the official stenographer at Police Headquarters. It was Pagan who took notes of the proceedings at the O'Neill and Marrinan trials, and his testimony was of great importance.

When sought for to-day he could not be found.

Devery Was Missing.

It was said at Headquarters that he was on his vacation and Commissioner Murphy promised that he would be produced at the Criminal Courts Building if he could be found.

When he did not appear by noon it was concluded to go ahead and issue the warrant without his testimony, which is of a documentary nature and accessible at any time.

Some incidents in Devery's official life are reported on Page 7 of this edition.

NO CHANGE IN THE CABINET.

POST SAYS ALL MEMBERS WILL BE RETAINED.

President Roosevelt Considers by This Step He Can Carry Out McKinley's Ideas.

A special despatch to The Evening Post from Washington says that President Roosevelt has requested Secretary Gage to continue in his office.

"It is also most pleasant to state that the rest of the Cabinet have been requested to accept reappointments, for the present at least. And all have accepted, although some of them have accompanied their acceptance with the statement that they might feel compelled for personal reasons to retire at some time in the future, after everything had got into thorough running order."

Mr. Hay's acceptance occasioned some surprise, as he has been among those expected to resign immediately. His acceptance is understood to mean that the new President has made a point with aim of retaining the public confidence in the pledge that the McKinley program should be continued without a break. As the foreign policy of the Government is the point at which some of the distrustful have balked about taking Mr. Roosevelt at his word, this earnest of his sincerity of purpose is the strongest he could have given.

MONTREAL POLICE HOLD SUSPECT.

(Special to The Evening World.) MONTREAL, Sept. 17.—There is no doubt whatever that the police are convinced that Joseph Albert Valenti, alias Bianchi, the Italian, who was arrested on Friday and since kept in close confinement, came here with sinister motives toward the Duke of Cornwall.

The news of his arrest only leaked out by accident, as the police were trying to keep the matter quiet while making investigation.

COURT DECIDES THURSDAY WILL BE A LEGAL HOLIDAY.

Justice McAdam, of the Supreme Court, to-day judicially declared that Thursday will be a legal holiday. The question came officially before Justice McAdam when a sale of property had been fixed for that date.

Justice McAdam says that the proclamation issued by President Roosevelt setting aside Thursday as a day of prayer and mourning on account of the funeral of the late President, brings the day within the definition of a legal holiday.

THREATS TO KILL EMMA GOLDMAN.

Letters Sent to the Woman Anarchist in Jail Make Her Anxious.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Emma Goldman to-day received two unsigned letters, the writers of which threaten to take her life at the first opportunity. One of them, postmarked Washington, D. C., says: "If you ever are a free woman's bullet shall strike you just where it struck the President. Your devilish tongue shall incite no more the murder of good and honorable men."

Miss Goldman said of the letters: "They may do it; you can't tell." She affected a laugh, but anxiety and a tinge of fear were plainly visible in it.

ASSASSIN PLEADS "NOT GUILTY."

Trial of Czolgosz Set Down for Next Monday in Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Sept. 17.—Justice Lewis for Czolgosz, the assassin of President McKinley, this afternoon entered a plea of not guilty.

He reserved the right to withdraw that plea.

Czolgosz again refused to plead and he was taken back to his cell. The trial of the case was set for Monday next.

Crowds docked to the County Court this morning long before Judge Emory assumed the bench, expecting that Leon Czolgosz would be arraigned to plead in the first degree in shooting President McKinley.

They waited in vain, as nothing was done during the morning session of court. District-Attorney Penney this morning issued to Loren Lewis and Robert C. Titus, ex-Supreme Court Justices, formal notices of their assignments by Judge Emory yesterday as counsel to defend the murderer.

The notice was served personally upon ex-Judge Lewis at his office, but at Judge Titus's office it was stated that he was in Milwaukee.

Special despatches from that city received in Buffalo this morning quote Judge Titus as saying that he would not act as counsel for Czolgosz unless imperatively ordered to do so by the Court.

Czolgosz is confined in the basement of the County Jail. He can be taken to and from the court room through a tunnel which leads under Delaware avenue. He is the only prisoner in the big structure and he is watched day and

RAIDERS MAKE ANARCHISTS MOVE.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 17.—A Commercial Gazette special from a staff correspondent says that thirty armed men raided a settlement of Anarchists at Guffey Hollow, Westmoreland County, Sunday night, and forced twenty-five families to take their departure from the town before daylight. The raiders surrounded the houses and terrorized the Anarchists by firing Winchester and revolvers.

Vast Throng, Eager to Gaze Upon the Face of the Martyred President, Swept Away Police Barriers and Trampled Upon the Weak.

Fifty women and children were trampled and severely bruised in the great press of the multitude at the Capitol, anxious to get a last look at the dead President. Some of the women most severely hurt were taken into the rotunda, where the body lay in state.

Many of the women who had fainted were lifted over the heads of the crowd. Some of the injured were treated at the Emergency Hospital; the rest were able to go to their homes.

Impressive ceremonies were held over the body. Bishop Andrews delivered the funeral oration, and many of the listeners were moved to tears. After the services the multitude viewed the face of the dead.

Mrs. McKinley was so weak that her physicians decided it would be imprudent for her to attend the services at the Capitol, and she remained in her room at the White House under the immediate care of Dr. Rixey. She was feeling a little better late this afternoon.

RISKED LIFE AND LIMB TO DO TRIBUTE TO M'KINLEY.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The opening of the doors of the rotunda of the Capitol in order to permit an inspection of the body of President McKinley, caused a rush of the vast throng that had been congregated on the east side of the building since early morning.

The result was that many women and children were badly hurt. The crowd brushed by the police cordon stationed at the foot of the steps as though it had been chaff.

A terrible congestion on the Capitol steps and at the entrance door followed. At the latter point there was such extreme pressure that numbers of women fainted.

Many who thus became helpless were lifted up bodily and carried out over the heads of the crowd, while others, less fortunate, were trampled under foot and seriously bruised. Of the latter twelve or fifteen were taken into the Capitol.

The room immediately under the rotunda, where the President's remains lay, was a temporary hospital,

THRONGING FOR FAREWELL LOOK AT MARTYRED DEAD.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Impressive were the services held over the dead President in the rotunda of the Capitol to-day, where the representatives of all of the foreign governments, the Cabinet, and officials of every branch of the United States Government and a great crowd stood with bowed heads.

In the invocations uttered by the representatives of the Church were included the widow, to whom the bereavement had come so suddenly, and who has borne her loss with sublime fortitude. But she heard not. Worn and weak from the terrible ordeal, she was in her room at the White House, attended by her physician and relatives, her strength finally ebbing to that point where it was considered dangerous to permit her to go to the Capitol.

In the Rotunda. Absolutely no attempt had been made to drap the interior of the vast rotunda, and save for the black structure in the centre and a small organ and the floral pieces set against the walls beneath the eight historical paintings, the place presented its usual aspect.

The catafalque was exceedingly simple in design. An oblong platform about 9 by 12 feet and raised but six inches above the floor, supported the bier, which was the same plain, strong structure that has been used at the Capitol since Lincoln's day for state funerals.

New, rich, black broadcloth covered it completely, as well as the platform and a small reading stand, and the only signs of ornamentation about it were the heavy black tassels and the artistic drapery of the cloth.

The catafalque occupied the centre of a circle of perhaps forty feet in diameter. At that point was placed a circular row of ornate chairs, and a dozen of such rows sufficed to fill out the space remaining in the rotunda, excepting the four broad aisles running toward the cardinal points of the compass.

Floral Offerings. The floral offerings were many and beautiful in design. Conspicuous among the many pieces was the great white shield of immortelles six feet in height bearing the inscription in purple flow-ers "Tribute from the Army in the Philippines," above the Eighth Army Corps insignia in red and blue.

Many white roses as were the years of the dead President was the offering of Col. Bingham and the White House employees. A beautifully simple wreath of laurel came from the Nineteenth Ward Republican Committee of St. Louis.

A sheaf of palms with broad purple and white ribbons and surrounded by a laurel sheath, came from the Sister Republic of Guatemala.

The Chinese residents of Philadelphia sent a tall white shaft of flowers with a purple ribbon bearing the words: "Our Friend at Rest," and some quaint Chinese characters in gold.

A glorious wreath of purple orchids, filled in the centre with spreading palms, bore on a silver plate this inscription: "To the Memory of William McKinley, President of the United States, Whose Noble Character and Republican Virtues Will Leave Behind an Everlasting Trace in the History of the American World. JOLIO A. ROCA, 'President of the Argentine Republic.'"

The casket was borne into the rotunda of the Capitol at 10 o'clock, persons occupying seats rising.

The Marine Band played "Nearer, My God, to Thee," as the casket was lifted out of the hearse and carried up the east steps of the Capitol.

Schley Pays Last Honors. The Cabinet, the Diplomatic Corps and the Navy followed one another into the rotunda in rapid succession. Admiral Schley was among the Naval officers present. They were followed by the White House Corps, and they in turn by the Senate. After these came the Supreme Court.

President Roosevelt entered at 10:50 o'clock. He was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, and they were quickly followed by members of the House of Representatives, Senator Frye, Speaker pro tem, of the Senate, and Speaker Henderson, of the House.

At 10:57 the religious services were begun by the singing of Cardinal Newman's hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light." It was sung by the choir of the Metropolitan M. E. Church. The hymn was followed by this prayer by Rev. Henry B. Naylor, D. D., Presiding Elder of the M. E. Church of the Washington District: "Rev. Dr. Naylor's Prayer. 'O Lord God, our Heavenly Father, a bereaved nation cometh to Thee in its deep sorrow! To whom can we go in such an hour as this but unto Thee? Thou only art able to comfort and support the afflicted. 'Death strikes down the tallest and best of men, and consequent changes are continually occurring among nations and communities. filled with screaming women, lying upon improvised couches. One of them had a broken arm and another had suffered internal injuries, which caused excruciating pain.

The office of the Captain of Police also was used to accommodate the injured, as were several other places about the building. It is estimated that no fewer than fifty women and children were injured to some extent, but most of them were able to go to their homes. A few were taken to the Emergency Hospital.

Invocation for the Widow.

"But, O Lord, we deplore our loss to-day; sincerely implore Thy sanctifying benediction. We pray Thee for that dear one who has been walking by his side through the years, sharing his triumphs and partaking his sorrows. Give to her all needed ————, and the comfort her stricken heart so greatly craves. And under the shadow of this great calamity may she learn as never before the fatherhood of God and the matchless character of His sustaining grace."

"And, O Lord, we sincerely pray for him upon whom the mantle of Presidential authority has so suddenly and unexpectedly fallen. Help him to walk worthy the high vocation whereunto he has been called. He needs Thy guiding hand and Thine inspiring spirit continually. May he always present to the nation and to the world divinely illumined judgment, a brave heart and an unshaken character."

Safety of Government.

"Hear our prayer, O Lord, for the official family of the Administration, those men who are associated with Thy servant, the President, in the administration of affairs of government; guide them in all their deliberations to the nation's welfare and the glory of God."

"And now, Lord, we humbly pray for Thy blessing and consolation to come to all the people of our land and nation. Forgive our past shortcomings; our sins of omission as well as our sins of commission. Help us to make the Golden Rule the standard of our lives, that we may do unto others as we would have others do unto us; and thus become indeed a people whose God is the Lord."
