KILLED ON TRIP TO HIS OLD HOME.

PETER H. NORDMARK PROBABLY FELL FROM TRAIN.

Apparently Had Started from Minnesota to the Land of His Birth.

Men employed on the Bergen County branch of the Erie Railroad at East Rutherford, N. J., this morning found the body of a man lying by the side of the road.

The head had been severed and the body appeared as though a number of trains had passed over it.

From papers found in the dead man's pockets, Coroner Hoffman of Carlstadt learned that he was Peter H. Nordmark, of Lake Crystal, Minn. A bank book showed that he had $300 on deposit. There was also $18.50 in cash.

The man had a ticket in his pocket book for passage on the steamer Cymric, which sailed from New York this morning for London.

DEFENSE CLOSES IN BONNIE CASE.

Both Sides Conclude and Attorneys Prepare Instructions—Ready for Argument.

Special to The Evening World.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 10.—Proceeding this morning with the cross-examination of Dr. W. P. Carr, an expert witness for the defense in the trial of Mrs. Bonnie, District Attorney Gould asked the witness to tell how Mrs. Bonnie described her struggle with Ayres in making her statement to the police on May 20.

Dr. Carr was present when the defendant was questioned by the police, and on direct examination gave it as his opinion that Ayres's wounds could have been inflicted in a struggle such as Mrs. Bonnie described at that time.

Mrs. Bonnie said she started to run toward the window, "said the witness, "when Ayres threw his arm around her with the revolver in front of her. She grabbed the muzzle first with one hand, then another. She threw herself into his right arm. Then the first shot was fired, and after that she kept keeping off of him, she could not tell just what happened. She found herself on the floor with Ayres partially over her."

Mrs. Bonnie looked directly at the witness as he told her story, but showed no emotion.

Handing the pistol to the witness, Mr. Gould asked the doctor to demonstrate how wounds similar to Ayres's could be inflicted with pistol in his right hand and finger on the trigger.

Dr. Carr threw the hand around on the weapon so as to bring the thumb upon the trigger.

"Then you think the thumb was on the trigger?" said Mr. Gould.

"That would have been the most natural position," said the witness.

Deputy Coroner Glassebrook in testifying for the Government, said he did not see how the wounds could have been inflicted assuming that Ayres held the pistol in his hand, unless the trigger had been pulled by the thumb.

The defense again formally offered in evidence the photographs illustrating Dr. Carr's experiments. Again they were ruled out.

The defense rested at 1.30 this afternoon. District Attorney Gould placed before the jury a rebuttal, and at 2 o'clock the case was closed for argument.

The argument will be begun tomorrow. A recess was taken until 2.30 to give counsel a chance to prepare the instructions each desired giving the jury as to the law in the case.

At its meeting to-day the Board of Estimate and Apportionment heard the residents of Kingsbridge and vicinity regarding the proposed abolishment of seven grade crossings on the New York Central Railroad.

By this change it is proposed to do away with the "horsehoe" loop from about Fordham Heights to Spuyten Duyvil, and in its place have a straight line over the Ship canal and Marble Hill. This will save time and length in the route and is advocated almost unanimously by the residents of that section.

The matter was referred to the Committee for a thorough examination.

FIVE BOYS IN FIREBOMB BAND.

Williamsburg Youths Confess to Starting Blaze at Chelsea Jute Mills.

DID IT "JUST FOR FUN."

Tried Nearly Two Score of Times to Have a Fire "Worth Looking At."

To gratify their love for fire five boys have jeopardized the lives of thousands of men and girls and property valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

For the fun of it they have confessed they entered into an agreement to take turns in setting fire to rubbish in the yards of the Chelsea Jute Mills at Greenpoint, hoping thereby to set a fire worth looking at.

They are the young firebugs: George Furlong, No. 164 Manhattan avenue.

John Graski, No. 30 Box street.

John McGlynn, No. 38 Clay street.

Michael Purrowski, No. 31 Third street.

Thomas Owick, No. 12 Box street.

During nine months a series of fires about the Chelsea Mills has been a source of alarm and mystery. The Chelsea Mills is the largest rope factory in the world. It is a part of the Cortage Trust and employs thousands of men and women workers.

Last night an employee who had remained late saw Furlong stick a lighted match in a pile of jute and then hasten away. A blaze started, but was extinguished.

A fire employee notified Supt. H. O. Griffin, of the Chelsea Company, who communicated with the police of the Greenpoint station. Detective Behlin immediately arrested Furlong.

The boy confessed at once and implicated three others. They were arrested, and also confessed.

"We only did it for fun," said Furlong. "We wanted to see a fire and so agreed to take turns in lighting the rubbish. It was my turn last night. We got a match from the Chelsea Mills. I always stayed after the others left, so we could clean up, and it was easy to get a match from the Chelsea Mills."

The boys were arraigned in the Even Street Court today charged with arson, every C. Robinson, Andrew J. Adkins, Society pending an investigation by Fire Marshal Bryner, of Brooklyn.
