SUES SWEETHEART WHO CROSSED OCEAN TO WED.

Murta Paid Miss Warner's Ticket, but Rival Won Her.

Alice Warner.
John Murta, of Perth Amboy, has begun suit before Justice Stricker, of that place, against Alice Warner, his former sweetheart, for breach of promise to marry.

Murta claims that Miss Warner promised to marry him several years ago in Europe. When she reached this country the young lady changed her mind and repudiated the engagement. Next week she will be married to Joseph Morro.

Murta and Miss Warner met in Europe, where they became engaged. Murta thought he could earn money enough to support a wife in America, so he came to this country and settled in Perth Amboy. It was understood that as soon as he could save enough money he was to send for his sweetheart.

He worked night and day for six months and by practicing the strictest economy laid aside enough money to get married on. It was a happy day for him when he mailed his sweetheart a ticket to bring her to this country. When she arrived he met her at the steamer and took her to the home of friends in Perth Amboy.

When the subject of marriage was broached Miss Warner pleaded for delay, but the wedding was finally set for Easter Monday. A few days ago Miss Warner told Murta she cared for him no more and would not marry him, but that on her wedding day Joseph Morro would be the bridegroom.

This was more than Murta could stand, but instead of inviting his rival to a duel he began a law suit. Murta says it is not so much to get damages as to recover the money he spent in bringing his fiancée from Europe and maintaining her after she arrived here. Miss Warner is eighteen and pretty. She had been in this country before.

ARDISLEY, March 31.—The new golfing box or Scotch bungalow, for Andrew Carnegie, near St. Andrew's Golf Club, has been completed and Mr. Carnegie has made an inspection of it. The building, which is surrounded on all sides by clusters of tall maple and cedar trees, is a peculiar structure of one half stone of an odd color, and the other part frame work.

The plans were drawn by Mrs. Carnegie and it was built especially for little Miss Carnegie, as her playhouse, although it will be used by the family.

Mrs. and Mr. Carnegie and their daughter were at St. Andrew's Golf Club last year, when they happened to wander up Echo Hill, among the blackberry brambles, to pick wild flowers. Gaining the summit of the hill, Miss Carnegie and her mother were entranced with the view of the valley far below. Mrs. Carnegie asked her husband to build a golf box there and he immediately gave the order.

The house is 10x20 feet, two stories and a half high, with a picturesque roof exterior after golfing boxes in Scotland. One feature of the building is a detached observatory, with glass windows for the winter and screens in summer.

The house contains twelve rooms, with a large dining room, parlor, smoking-room and music hall. It is furnished with red furniture and the whole price cost about $20,000.

The Carnegie family will entertain their friends at golf teas quite largely during the season and little Miss Carnegie will reign solely as the mistress.

WALLER SAYS HE OBEYED ORDERS.

ACCUSED OFFICER TELLS OF NATIVE TREACHERY. Says Gen. Smith Inspired All Acts Except Order to Avenge Ninth Infantry Massacre.

MANILA, March 31.—Major Littleton W. T. Waller, of the Marine Corps, testified in his own behalf to-day at his trial by court-martial on the charge of killing natives of the island of Samar without trial. He graphically described the hardships the marines endured owing to the treachery of the natives and the attempted robbery of arms, and said he was not aware that the guide, Victor, was a notorious and infamous insurgent captain who had led insurgents at Ibaay and Balanagita, otherwise he would not have allowed Victor to go with the party.

The Major also said he carried out Gen. Smith's orders entirely and never went beyond them, except in the last paragraph of the order which he issued on taking command of the marines, calling on the latter to avenge the slaughter at Balanagita of their comrades of the Ninth Infantry in the Chinese expedition.

Every other act Gen. Smith absolutely inspired.

THE POINT OF DIFFERENCE. (From the Chicago News.) A young heiress with a penchant for farming was explaining at length the many difficulties she encountered in pursuing her fad. "I really am a farmer," she protested, and then added, regretfully, "although it must be confessed that almost all I plant I lose."

"There's differing from me," courteously rejoined her table companion, a rising young physician, "for I find in my case that all I lose I plant."

BOY, BY SELF-SACRIFICE, MAKES HOME FOR SISTER.

With $100 Saved Up, Young Stanley Polaski Wants to Care for Baby.

The shadows in the young life of Stanley Polaski are giving place to sunshine. Until very recently there has been in all his sixteen years only tragedy—homely and unheroic wretchedness. Stanley wants to make and keep a home for his baby sister, Josephine, an orphan through the suicide of both her father and mother. The child, who is but two and a half years old, has been in the Brooklyn City Nursery for two years and Stanley now wants to get her out so that he may care for her himself.

Today he went into the Greenpoint avenue police station in Brooklyn and told his story to Sergt. Quigley. He said that he had formerly lived at No. 102 Dupont avenue, Greenpoint, with his father, mother, two brothers and the little sister.

A week after the birth of Josephine, when Stanley was not yet fourteen years old, his father, wearied with the bitter struggle for life, out of work and despondent, killed himself. The unfortunate mother struggled as best she could for six months more, trying to take care of her little family. Then she drank carbolic acid. Stanley was left as the head of the household. He saw no hope of keeping the family together. Relatives in Manhattan took the two younger boys and Josephine went to the Nursery. Stanley moved over to Manhattan and found work in a button factory.

But he did not forget his little sister. Often he went to see her, and he kept telling her that very soon she must come to the home that he was making for her. She did not understand, but she smiled and prattled, and this made the struggle and the making easier for this boy who was giving up all the pleasures which most youngsters of his age find so indispensable.

By and by he had saved $100—every dollar of it the token of a sacrifice. He had his job and a chance of promotion, so he went to see Sergt. Quigley to-day. "I'm big enough to take care of her now," he said proudly, with his eyes shining, "and I know it will be better for her than if she stays in that institution. What I want to know is how to get her out."

WORLD IS HOLDING MENTAL BALANCE.

WE ARE NOT GOING MAD AND WILL NOT.

Hooper Doctor's Declaration Set Aside by Facts Presented by New York Experts.

New York experts in mental diseases and physicians who have made a study of insanity join in opposition to Dr. W. B. Hooper, of Indianapolis, who asserts that the world is growing mad rapidly, and that the entire human race will be crazy within 20 years.

The Hooper doctor says that the food fanatics are already insane, that the Christian religion carries insanity with it, and that prevailing educational methods fit pupils for padded cells and strait-jackets.

Dr. Leonard Corning, who has written a book to show that fast living tends toward insanity, derides the theories of the Indianapolis physician and says that Americans will be the last to lose their reason. He adds that religion serves as an outlet for the emotions, and in that way tends to promote sanity, and he believes that the forcing so prevalent in schools will be abandoned.

Dr. Corning adds that the great interest now being shown in art and in the study of the beautiful is the most hopeful sign of all for the future of America.
