CLANCY'S WIFE FACE TO FACE IN COURT WITH THE FIANCEE OF THE MAN HE SHOT.

by a court officer. Instantly the wife resumed her seat, her eyes cast upon the floor, a flush of red covering her face.

Her color changed, she became pale and restive and arising from her seat she said: "I am not here."

After giving his name and address Clancy said he lived in Long Island City thirty-three years, where he one time kept a hotel. This is the story Clancy told:

"I could never meet Clark without having him in mind. Our troubles originated two years ago, when one day he slapped me across the face with a newspaper. I said: 'What are you afraid of him, because I was a sick man and always under the care of a physician.'"

"Clark said: 'I am a doctor, and I had done up a lot of fellows and that I was the next on the list to get my dose.'"

"On the day of the shooting I walked with my friend, Charles Smith, along East Thirty-fourth street toward the city hall. I had some of my own oil light, but this is no good. It was Clark. I folded my arms so that I could not see him. What are you swearing at? Clark said to me: 'I'll not swear; I'm a sick man; why don't you let me alone?'"

"With that I was walking away. He grabbed me, whirled me around and struck me with a pistol. He illustrated how he fell. He slipped from the witness chair and fell face forward on the floor."

"I struggled to arise," continued the witness, "but I only could get to this position," struggling to his knees with one hand on the floor.

"Shot in Self-Defense. "When in this position I glanced upward and saw Clark coming at me. I felt I was powerless. I screamed 'For God's sake, Jack, don't kill me!' The trial judge, Mr. Clark, said to me: 'With that I noticed Clark had his hand on his hip pocket. I reached around there for my own pistol and shot at random. I didn't know at the time that I was going to hit Clark with a bullet, but I felt my life was in danger. That is all I know of the shooting.'"

On cross-examination Clancy admitted that he had been in trouble with the authorities on several occasions. Once he was sentenced to a few weeks' imprisonment. He denied that he had broken a policeman's jaw with brass knuckles or knocked down a man with a black jack. He denied also that he had paroled a man named Clark, who was in the Haymarket on Sixth avenue four years ago.

The trial was adjourned until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning.

COLLEGE COMPLEXIONS Can Be Ruined by Coffee.

Nothing so surely mars a woman's complexion as coffee-drinking. A young college girl of Hyattsville, Md., says: "I never drank coffee up to the time I went to college, and as long as you are not going to publish your name will admit that I was proud of my pink-and-white complexion; but for some reason I began drinking coffee at school, and when vacation time came I looked like a wreck. Was extremely nervous and my face hollow and sunken. After questioning me about my diet, mother gave me a cup of strong, rich coffee at breakfast, though formerly she had objected to the habit; but the secret came out in a few weeks, when everybody began to comment on my improved looks and spirits. She said she had been steadily giving me Postum Food Coffee and I did not know it."

"My color came back, much to my delight, and I was fully restored to health. I will return to college without the slightest fear of losing ground, for I know exactly where the trouble lies."

"Mother says the first time she had Postum made no one would drink it, for it was not palatable. But the next day she did not trust to the cook but examined the directions and made it herself. She found the cook had just let it come to the boiling point and then served it, and it was tasteless; but the beverage, made according to directions, by proper boiling, is delicious, and has a remarkable taste for more. One cup is seldom enough for father now."

"I have a young lady friend who suffered several years from neuralgia and headache, obtaining only temporary relief from morphia. Her sister finally persuaded her to leave off coffee and use Postum. She is now very pronounced in her views as to coffee. Says it was the one thing responsible for her condition, for she is now well, and the headaches and neuralgia are things of the past. Please do not publish my name. Name can be given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich."

ALBANY, May 25.—Harry L. Knickerbocker, for several years chief clerk in the department of the State Board of Regents, resigned from that position a month ago on account of ill-health, it was stated at that time.

It developed to-day that he was short in his accounts $3,902.22.

The money had been taken in small sums from time to time, since 1896, from the postage account, which was under his supervision.

Full restitution was made by relatives when his resignation was accepted. He was a young man of excellent habits and comes of one of the best families in Albany.

Secretary Parsons, of the State Board of Regents, to-day made the following statement: "Some time ago a shortage was discovered in the postage account of the University amounting to $3,902.22 and running back to 1896. Full restitution has been made and the employee who was responsible for the shortage is no longer connected with the University."

MRS. CLANCY BELIEVES HER HUSBAND INNOCENT. BY MRS. JOHN F. CLANCY. (Wife of man charged with murder.) I know full well my husband is innocent of a deliberate murder. I am confident the jury will believe as I do, but will the great public understand that my husband is innocent? That is the question I find myself absorbed in every hour of the day. My husband is a good man. He has proved himself a good man, and if his reputation had not been established I am sure my father would never have consented to our marriage. When John was arrested charged with killing John Clark, we were engaged, and my father immediately went to all of his friends and acquaintances to learn all he could of my husband's character. The investigation convinced father and our wedding followed.

KILLS HERSELF TO JOIN SOLDIER SON. Mrs. Greenburg, Who Mourned Her Pet, Killed by the Tags, Unnerved by Sight of a Boy in Blue. The sight of a soldier in uniform brought to Mrs. Chiva Greenburg such poignant recollections of her soldier son, who died recently in action in the Philippines, that she threw herself from the third-story window of the tenement at No. 4 Franklin street to-day. The woman died later in the Hudson Street Hospital. Mrs. Greenburg was the wife of a wealthy flour dealer of Newark, N. J. Her only son, Joseph, enlisted in the army about a year ago and was sent to the Philippines. He had never been away from home before and his mother thought of him constantly. For a time after he reached Manila letters from him arrived by every mail from the Orient. Then came a letter saying that he was going on a campaign against the Tagals and the mother suffered anguish for many days. After that a long silence. The mother suffered anguish for many days. At last a letter, written in a strange hand, arrived in Newark. It bore the news of the death of Joseph Greenburg in a battle with the Tagals. The writer of the letter, a soldier, spared none of the details of the strike on mother, and her reason for it. Thinking that charge of some might benefit her, Mrs. Greenburg came to New York to visit her sister-in-law in the Franklin street house. She was sitting at the window this morning when a man in the army uniform entered Mulberry lens Park and sat on a bench in full view. The sight brought back to the mother the sorrow of her life, and with a cry of despair she leaped from the window.

A Story Is Always Good until a better one is told. Lard was the best cooking agent people knew anything about until Wesson Cooking Oil was put on the market. This oil is purely vegetable. For cooking, frying and shortening its superiority over lard and its substitutes is daily demonstrated in the best homes. The present high price of lard is making itself felt in those kitchens where Wesson Cooking Oil has not yet been introduced. A 25-cent can contains two pounds of oil and goes twice as far as an equal amount of lard. Most dealers can supply it—any cook can use it. If your dealer does not keep it send us his name and your address and we will deliver it, together with a book of over 100 good recipes. SOUTHERN COTTON OIL CO., 11 Broadway, New York.
