

YOUNG BRIDE SAYS SHE WAS DECEIVED

Husband Was Arrested Three Days After Marriage—Justice Leventritt Postpones Case to Get More Evidence.

Trial of the suit for annulment of marriage of Mary Grubman, who was nineteen years old last November and who married Thomas Lamplias at the City Hall on Jan. 14 of this year, was postponed by Justice Leventritt to-day until next Wednesday that the young bride might produce evidence to prove that her marriage was "induced by fraud and deception."

Mrs. Lamplias' action was instituted by her mother. The young wife testified that she met Lamplias at a party about five months before her marriage. She says Lamplias proposed to her about fourteen days before the ceremony. He told her, she alleges, that he was a plumber making $1 a day.

After the wedding Mrs. Lamplias went to the home of her husband's parents. Three days later detectives visited the house and arrested Lamplias. He was taken to Yorkville Court and then to the Tombs. The young wife then returned to her mother, saying she never would have married the man had he told her of his antecedents.

Justice Leventritt, after the girl had told her story, examined her. "You read the complaint in this action and swore it was true?" Justice Leventritt asked.

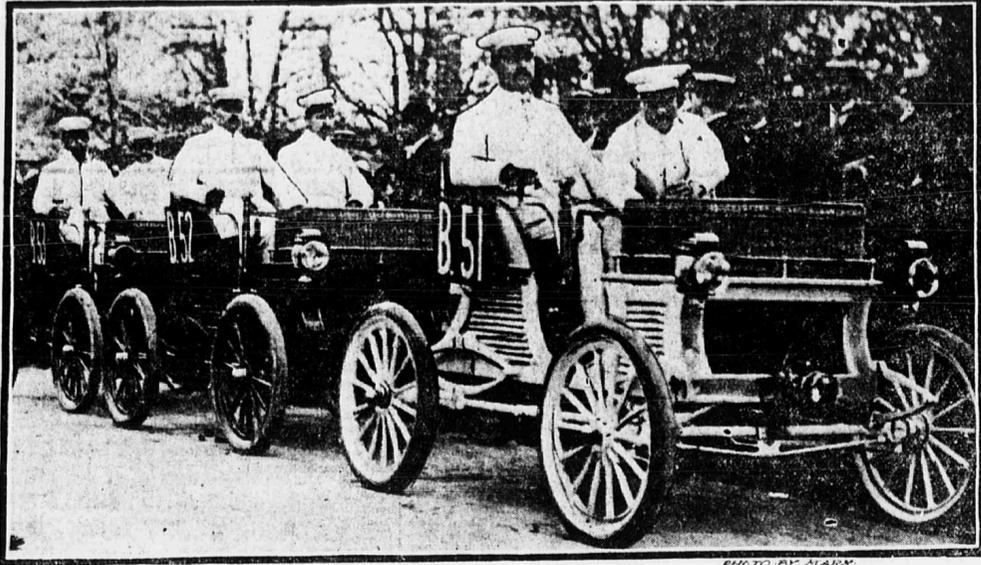

"Yes." "Well, you say in it that the defendant told you he was an honest, law-abiding and respectable man. Did he use those words?" "Well, not exactly," she said. "He was honest and honorable, for honest and hard-working."

"And you continued to associate with a man of whom you knew nothing and subsequently married him without the consent and knowledge of your parents?" "Yes, sir."

"That will do," said the Justice, sarcastically. Justice Leventritt, after the mother had testified, said he could not grant a decree annulling the marriage on such evidence.

FIFTY-TWO AUTOMOBILES OFF ON A 100-MILE ENDURANCE RACE TO SOUTHPORT, CONN., TO-DAY.

No Scorching Is Allowed, and Any One Who Finishes in Less Than the Minimum Time Limit Set Will Be Expelled from the National Association.

LINING UP TO START.

New York's millionaires are celebrating Decoration Day with a one hundred mile no-stop endurance test run to Southport, Conn., and return.

Seventy-five entries had been made, but only fifty-two machines appeared at the starting point. Among the withdrawals was Col. John Jacob Astor.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock automobiles passed through Greenwich, Conn., and made their way to Mianus, the first station, where 500 gallons of gasoline and plenty of water were in readiness for them.

The first mobile to pass the Lenox Inn in Green Ich, was B5, at six minutes to eleven, and the last one was A12, at exactly noon.

There were four that made stops for slight causes between Portchester and Mianus, where there are many steep hills.

The rendezvous was in front of the Automobile Club at Fifth avenue and Fifty-eighth street. The soldiers' and sailors' parade passing up the avenue and across Fifty-seventh street attracted the crowd away and gave the automobilists a clear start.

At 9 o'clock President Shattuck, of the Automobile Club, sent the first machine away. It was a big 12 horse-power gaso-line machine handled by W. H. Wells, who made the sensational 100-mile run over the Long Island century course a few weeks ago.

Mr. Wells was not out for speed to-day, as minimum time limit of 6 hours and 49 minutes has been fixed for to-day's course, and any one finishing in less than that time will be expelled from the National Association.

The machines were sent away under half-minute leeway. Most of those entered were gasoline vehicles, but there were a few steam machines and one electric. The gasoline motors are not allowed any stops over the entire course.

An observer was on each machine to make note of everything that happens en route.

Among the prominent participants were Al McMurtrie, W. H. Wells, Jefferson Seligman, W. N. Beach, Sidney Ripley, H. S. Chapin, C. J. Field and David S. Brown, Jr.

The animals were packed in and from the deep gashes on their backs it would appear that the tiger climbed over them until he reached the middle of the car, when he attempted to make a meal of Toby. The ensuing struggle was terrific. All of the woodwork in the interior of the car was smashed to tooth-pick sizes and the side walls and top were covered with blood.

The terrified horses, in their efforts to get away from the fierce beast that had attacked them in the darkness, crowded toward the end of the car, leaving a space through which the tiger dropped to the floor. Then it was that the injured Toby by a well-directed kick smacked in the skull of the tiger and jumped on him until the skin was rendered useless for decorative purposes.

All of the injured horses will recover.

The first action ever tried in this State, where rheumatism is alleged to have been caused by a railway accident, was concluded before Justice Kruse in the Supreme Court to-day when a verdict for $500, obtained against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company by Francesco Julianno was set aside by the Justice as against the weight of the evidence.

Julianno sued to recover $5,000 damages. He was thrown off a car at Sullivan and Broome streets on July 27, 1899. He asserted that soon after the accident he was afflicted by rheumatism, which his physician said would be permanent, and that he had been unable to walk since that time. Experts testified that the rheumatism was of long standing and not caused by the accident.

SOCIETY WOMAN BECOMES INSANE.

Wife of Thomas F. Martin, a Wealthy Brooklyn Man, Is Sent to Sanitarium After Attempting Suicide.

Through the necessary proceedings in the commitment of Mrs. Kate Martin, of No. 33 Third street, Brooklyn, to the private sanitarium under Dr. Thomas L. Wells, at No. 245 St. Mark's avenue, the story of the sudden insanity of a popular society woman and her attempted suicide came out to-day in the Myrtle Avenue Court, Brooklyn.

Mrs. Martin is the wife of Thomas F. Martin, a wealthy builder. She is thirty years old and handsome. She has been a conspicuous figure in Park Slope circles, a member of the Riders and Drivers' Club and an expert tennis player. She has three beautiful children.

Without premonitory symptoms, Mrs. Martin became hysterical. She is thirty days ago. Her husband found her raving on her bed. In her hand was a bottle that had contained carbolic acid. Her lips were burned and she was in a dangerous condition. She was hurried to Seney Hospital, where the physicians saved her by the use of the strychnine.

When she was able she was taken to Police Court in a carriage. She was committed to jail to await examination on a charge of attempted suicide, and later transferred to Kings County Hospital. To-day she was examined before Justice Naumer in his private chamber, and the charges dismissed. She was then sent to the sanitarium as an insane person.

BRIDE A SUICIDE WHILE BAND PLAYS.

Mary Toohey, Married Only a Year, Leaps Three Stories to Death While a Parade Passes House.

While a band, playing a lively air, was passing the tenement house at No. 227 East Seventy-third street to-day, Mary Toohey, thirty-five years old, the wife of James Toohey, of No. 322 East Seventy-fourth street, jumped from a window on the third floor. She alighted on her head in the street and died instantly.

Mrs. Toohey was married a year ago. She was very happy until last Sunday, when she betrayed signs of melancholia. On Monday she wandered away from her home and was not found until Wednesday night, when her husband discovered her in the incense pavilion at Bellevue Hospital.

He secured her release and took her to the home of her brother, Michael Devanny, in Seventy-third street. Devanny was in the room with her this morning when the band passed. She appeared to be cheerful and he apprehended no serious results when he went out, leaving her at the window listening to the music.

Upon his return after a momentary absence she was gone, and looking down he saw her body in the street, three stories below.

TOBY, BRAVE CIRCUS HORSE, KILLS ROYAL BENGAL TIGER.

Beast Broke Into the Horses' Car and a Terrific Battle Ensued.

The beast paid no attention to them and appearances indicate that he made his way along the car and forced himself into the opening at the end of the car containing the horses.

The animals were packed in and from the deep gashes on their backs it would appear that the tiger climbed over them until he reached the middle of the car, when he attempted to make a meal of Toby. The ensuing struggle was terrific. All of the woodwork in the interior of the car was smashed to tooth-pick sizes and the side walls and top were covered with blood.

By accident Mrs. Mary Smith, of No. 219 East Seventy-first street, a bride of a year, killed her first born, a girl, one week old, to-day. It is feared that the shock may result in the death of the unfortunate mother.

The physician who was treating Mrs. Smith had left tablets for the use of the mother and the baby. These tablets were in boxes exactly alike. In the absence of the nurse to-day Mrs. Smith gave the baby a tablet from her own supply. The little one was immediately seized with convulsions and died before medical aid could be secured.

TRIED WHOLESALE MURDER, SHE SAYS.

Mrs. Rapsky, Hard-Working and Poor, Says Husband Meant to Kill Her, Her Children and Himself.

Wearied from hard work and in terror lest her husband come home unnoticed by the policeman in waiting, Mrs. Andrew Rapsky stopped for a while from her washbuds to-day in her little home at No. 512 East Fifteenth street to tell why after years of drudgery and abuse she fled at midnight for protection to the police. Her little ones clung to her skirts as she told of her life and hardships, and although their surroundings were of the poorest, they seemed as happy as if they were in a home of luxury.

The sergeant at the desk of the East Twenty-second street station was startled in the night by a wild-eyed woman with a two-year-old child in her arms who rushed in and asked him to save her life and her five children. She was Mrs. Rapsky and she related that for the third time her husband had attempted to take the lives of all of them by turning on the gas as they slept.

A sergeant sent a patrolman around to the house, but Rapsky had left. A special policeman was then detailed to arrest the man, who is a tailor, when he showed up.

"We were married twelve years ago," Mrs. Rapsky said to-day, "and I have had to work, work all the time. Often my husband abused me—struck me and called me bad names. That was not enough, but about two months ago he began talking of killing us all. One day while I was out to work my eldest son came to the house where I was employed and said that his father had sent word for me to come home and that I would find him and all the children dead. I ran home and found him drunk, but the children safe."

A few nights after that I was awakened by the smell of gas and found the jets turned on in the next room, where he tried the same thing. When it occurred again last night I went to the police. I could stand no more."

SHOT HIMSELF AT WEDDING FEAST.

Bridegroom, Jealous of His Bride, Sent a Bullet into His Head Shortly After the Nuptial Knot Had Been Tied.

(Special to The Evening World.) NEWARK, N. J., May 30.—Disitto Novideno, thirty-five years old, a husband less than twenty-four hours, is in the City Hospital with a bullet in his head, while his bride, unconscious from shock, is in a critical condition at her father's home, No. 235 Morris avenue.

The bridegroom tried suicide at the wedding feast following his marriage, and the shot he sent through his left ear may prove fatal.

Novideno, who is a tailor, was married last night to Josephine De Satto at the home of the bride's parents.

During the progress of the wedding supper, that immediately followed, the bridegroom became jealous of his bride and left the room. He was induced to return, but as soon as the bride turned to talk to a young man sitting at her left he again got up from the table, and a few minutes later the sound of a pistol shot in another room startled the guests.

Novideno was found insensible with a bullet wound through the left ear, and the bride seeing him, fell into a faint from which she had not rallied up to a late hour to-day.

The physicians at the City Hospital could not locate the bullet in Novideno's head.

CROWD SAW WOMAN LEAP FROM WINDOW.

Mrs. Annie Bock, Suffering from Nervous Prostration, Attempts Suicide in View of Many Persons in Brooklyn.

The crowds of people who were journeying through Bushwick avenue, Brooklyn, toward Evergreens Cemetery, at 9:30 o'clock this forenoon, laden with flowers, were startled when passing the house No. 1218 at seeing a young woman leap from a third-story window.

She threw her hands out and waved them over her head as she made the leap, and then came hurtling down, her night-dress fluttering in the wind.

Spectators braced themselves and involuntarily shuddered. Charles Marx was first to recover his presence of mind. He ran in, gathered her up and carried her to the stoop, where he rang a bell that called the people out of the house.

The woman is Mrs. Annie Bock. She is twenty-five years old. She had been suffering from nervous prostration for a week. Her husband, a workman, has at night with her. At 8 o'clock this morning he was forced from sheer exhaustion to seek rest.

He carefully locked all the windows, and leaving his wife asleep went to another room. She awoke later, opened a window, and leaped out.

An ambulance surgeon from St. Mary's Hospital could find no outward injuries save a fracture of the right foot. The woman was unconscious, however, and internal injuries are feared. A crowd of 2,000 people hung about the house for hours.

"BOOZER" IS HOME AGAIN.

"Boozer" is back in the possession of her owner. She was returned to him this morning by an employee of Durand's Hiding Academy, who found her in a saloon at Sixty-sixth street and Amsterdam avenue last night.

The dog, which belongs to William Sullivan and is famous as a life-saver, was stolen in Central Park one Monday day. Last night a stranger went into the saloon on Sixty-sixth street and seized the dog. It was recognized as Sullivan's dog by the Durand employee, who got the man to give her up for $5 after threatening him with arrest.
