

MR. SAGE SUED FOR $350,000

Named with Ex-Comptroller Loew and Mr. Obermayer as "Negligent Directors."

PLAINTIFF J. H. HAMMOND

He is Receiver for the Defunct German-American Real Estate Title Guarantee Company.

Russell Sage, ex-Comptroller Edward V. Loew and Charles J. Obermayer, who is connected with a Brooklyn Savings Bank, are defendants in a suit for $350,000 brought by John Henry Hammond, receiver of the defunct German-American Real Estate Title Guarantee Company.

Hammond charges that these three, as negligent directors, managers and members of the finance committee of the company in 1897 to 1900, wasted and lost $350,000 of the company's money by making excessive loans on flimsy securities.

Details of the Charges. The papers recite that the company was incorporated for the business of insuring real estate titles in 1886; that the law provided that the company must keep two-thirds of the capital invested in certain securities as a guarantee fund, and that the latter provision was violated and the business was so badly conducted that $350,000 was lost and the company became insolvent.

It is recalled that there is one claim of $4,000 against the company for a defect in a title insured by the company, and there is "more than $25,000" due the stockholders.

Mr. Loew was President, Mr. Obermayer secretary and all three were directors and members of the Finance Committee managing the concern.

Mr. Sage was not at his office when an Evening World reporter called.

"All Humbug," Says Loew. Edward V. Loew when asked about the suit, said:

"It is humbug; all humbug. When I got out of the company, June 3, 1901, it was in the condition. Mr. Sage withdrew a little later. If there is anything wrong now it is due to the management of the very men who are back of this suit."

"Why do they single out Mr. Sage? It is because he is an old man and very rich? There are twenty-one directors and six members of the Finance Committee. Why are they not sued? Mr. Sage did nothing except what was for the best interests of the company. He loaned his money to the company, and lost it."

SCHOOLGIRL HAS ODDLY VANISHED.

Louise Smith, fourteen, disappears after call at home of a friend at Twenty-fourth Street and Second Avenue.

Dressed in her Sunday best pretty Louise Smith came from East New York to Manhattan on Decoration Day to visit a friend.

She spent a short time at the friend's house, then walked out of it to vanish utterly.

Because she was only fourteen and inexperienced, her parents, grief-stricken by her absence, fear harm has come to her. After three days of searching without getting any trace of the girl, they have come to the conclusion that she was kidnapped.

They fear that some one who saw her unprotected on the street abducted her by use of strategy. That she may be returned to them they have appealed to the police and public for aid.

The police have sent out a general alarm and a special detail of detectives is watching the neighborhood of Twenty-fourth street and Second Avenue, where the girl was last seen.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith live at No. 21 Sheff. street, East New York, and their daughter has been kept close at home, except for her attendance at school. She was one of the most popular pupils in the East New York school, and many of her schoolmates have been a source of their district in the hope of finding her at the house of some playmate or friend.

Louise went to the house of Mrs. McGloin, at Twenty-fourth street and Second Avenue, on Decoration Day, and left about 2 o'clock.

She wore a dark blue waist and skirt, the latter with lace trimming, a diamond brooch, diamond earrings, and a red straw hat. She is dark, weighs about 60 pounds and is 4 feet 6 inches in height.

KIDNAPPED TAYLOR CHILD RESTORED TO PARENTS.

Father Brings Home Daughter Stolen by Her Aunt Four Years Ago.

MARGARET TAYLOR AND HER FATHER. (Photographed to-day by an Evening World photographer.)

When the Kaiserin Maria Theresia docked at Hoboken to-day a bright-faced little girl skipped down the gangplank, holding to her father's hand, and peered curiously into the waiting crowd on the pier.

She was Margaret Taylor, eight years old, who was kidnapped four years ago in Cincinnati by a maiden aunt, and only now restored to her parents through the good offices of Gov. Nash, of Ohio and Ambassador Choate at London, through whose efforts she was located in Bardighera, Italy.

The child sought in the crowd for her mother instinctively. "I didn't know anything about mamma until papa told me of her," lisped the little one. "I want to see her ever so much. I know I will love her and it will be nice to have a mamma like other little girls."

Mr. Taylor expected to find his wife at the pier, but when she did not put in an appearance he took Margaret to the Astor House, to await Mrs. Taylor's arrival from Cincinnati.

When little Margaret was borne her father's sister became greatly attached to the child. She almost appropriated the care of it, and Mrs. Taylor resented her husband to provide a separate home. Then as the little one grew up she went frequently to visit her Aunt Clara. One day Miss Taylor took her off with her.

"We learned after three years and a half had elapsed," said Mr. Taylor, "that Miss Taylor had gone to London, where she had interested the British Women's Temperance Association in her, and she was taken care of by Mrs. Ormiston Chant until the latter became suspicious of her through articles telling about Margaret's kidnapping. Mrs. Chant wrote to Gov. Nash."

"In some way she learned that she was discovered, and though she was in poverty she found means to escape to Bardighera, Italy, where she was arrested through the efforts of Ambassador Choate. Mrs. Chant informed us that Miss Taylor was so attached to little Margaret that she starved herself. When the adjustment was taken in London in order to provide well for the little one, I cannot forgive her for the anguish she has caused us, but some of the bitterness is relieved by her excessive love for the child."

Speaking of Postum Food Coffee, a lady in Toledo, O., says: "For over five years I have used Postum Coffee entirely in place of the ordinary coffee or tea."

"I used to have stomach trouble and every time I drank a cup of ordinary coffee suffered the greatest distress. My troubles left when I left off coffee and began using Postum."

"The most severe test I know of was when my husband was down with gastric typhoid fever. His stomach would retain nothing; we tried milk and various other drinks. Everything we put into his stomach would come up in less than three minutes. After the third day of this kind of work I concluded to give him some Postum Coffee. He drank it and relished it and retained it, and for four weeks he lived on Postum and nothing else to speak of. You can depend upon it that Postum gained some good friends, for husband would have died if it had not been for the nourishment afforded by Postum Coffee." LIEUT. VANDERBILT TALKS ABOUT CAMP

Young Millionaire Tells of His Impressions at Peekskill Where He is Performing a Soldier's Duty.

Lieut. Vanderbilt doesn't care to say much about himself in connection with the regiment. At the State Camp to-day he consented, however, to give his impressions.

BY LIEUT. CORNELIUS VANDERBILT.

If a man is able, he certainly should join the National Guard. It is a most pleasant kind of work. Its value to a young man is great.

There's something fine about it. You know how the sight of soldiers affects children? Well, it affects the soldiers themselves the same way.

I find great enjoyment in the regiment. Aside from the thought of duty there is much satisfaction in belonging to the guard. To a young man it gives a sense of responsibility that is a good foundation for a successful life.

A finer vacation than we're having would be hard to plan. I am having a most delightful time. I gave up a European trip for it, and I'm not sorry. The marching trips at the last of the week may be a bit hard, but I guess we'll get through all right. Our boys are pretty husky.

Cornelius Vanderbilt got out of bed at 5 o'clock this morning, making what is perhaps a new early rising record among New York's millionaires.

But the strange part of young Vanderbilt's performance was the fact that he was completed by law to get up. It is all because the young millionaire got a touch of the soldier fever. He joined the Twelfth Regiment of the State National Guard and was at once elected second lieutenant of Company G. The regiment went into camp at Peekskill Saturday for a week and the lieutenant's devotion to soldiering took him along. His life in camp may be as interesting to those who know millionaires only from afar as it is to him.

There was a touch of work for Lieut. Vanderbilt to-day. He has not been long in the service and Sumner thought best to let him learn a little about camp life from observation before making him much work. To-morrow the lieutenant is slated for a rousing day, however. He is to have active command of the guard and the holding of the company street. He will also join for another important regimental office while in camp—officer of the day. This will be an exceptional honor for Lieut. Vanderbilt is the lowest ranking officer in the regiment.

Since Lieut. Vanderbilt joined the Twelfth his company, G., has been recruited to its full quota of 100 men. There is also a waiting list of nearly a dozen. The lieutenant is liked greatly by his men on account of his unaffectedness and unvarying kindness. It was said by another officer of the regiment that Lieut. Vanderbilt displayed the marked characteristics necessary to the ideal officer—kindness, persistence and authority tempered by democracy. He is not mingling with his men as one of them. He allows them to crack jokes with him occasionally, and is by no means austere.
