MOTHER SEES MOLINEUX.

Visits Him at His Cell in the Tombs and Cheers Him in Talk That Lasts an Hour.

TWO NEW WITNESSES APPEAR

Counsel for Defense Decide to Put Woman on Stand to Swear She Saw Another Man Mail Poison Package.

Mrs. Edward L. Molineux, mother of Roland B. Molineux, visited her son in the Tombs prison this afternoon. She arrived in a carriage at 12:30 o'clock and remained with him about an hour.

Of the two new witnesses who at the last hour have appeared with stories that may help Molineux against the evidence placed on the one told by a woman. She is the wife of a Brooklyn policeman. She says she saw the poison package mailed and that it was not mailed by Molineux. It has been decided to put her on the witness stand.

The other story is told by a Newark detective named John F. Hopkins. It relates to a man with a red beard. This is what the detective says: "In December, 1898, I was in the employ of John Gregory, of the New Jersey Detective Agency, and was working on a case for him in connection with the Crescent Drug Company, on Broad street.

"I was hired by the drug company, through Mr. Gregory, to watch the employees in the drug store, and gave Mr. Gregory reports of what transpired.

Red Beard Appears.

"On Dec. 20 a man came into the store and inquired the price of malted milk per bottle and by the dozen. He wore an Alpine hat, long black coat, dark gloves and a short Van Dyke beard of a reddish color. As far as I can remember, his eyes were between gray and blue, and I judge his height was about five feet nine or ten inches. He was of medium build. It was on Tuesday, Dec. 30, 1898, he came in first.

"Then he went out and that was the last I saw of him until the next day about the same time, when he came into the store again and asked the price of a bottle of bromo-seltzer. He asked me what was the price of six bottles with the discount off, and finally bought an 18c. bottle.

"In the afternoon I was sent out on an errand to Smith's, the wholesale druggist on Broad street, and on my way down, just at West Park street, I saw this same man come out of Hartgen's jewelry store. He walked sideling to the sidewalk to the curb and rubbed up against my leg.

"I stood and looked at him as he went by, and the reason I watched him was that I met him twice in the store and recognized him as the same man. He seemed to be in a great hurry and looked neither way nor the other. He was the identical man that I saw at the bromo-seltzer store."

"Another witness who, it is said, will be brought forward, is a woman, the wife of a bottle of bromo-seltzer. She was seen in the store next to the one where Molineux bought the poison package, and she is positive that the man was not Molineux and that she can identify him. Neither she nor Hopkins, however, offered any explanation as to their alliance during the trial.

Assistant District-Attorney Osborne is inclined to belittle the reports of the appearance of these two witnesses.

Osborne doubts Story.

"I do not believe," he said to-day, "that any surprise will be sprung by the defense, but if this woman comes forward I will act promptly. We have made a strong case and do not see how it can be broken down. Molineux was admitted on the stand that he hated Cornish and Hertzog and that he had made a special study of poison."

Ex-Gov. Plunk is out of the city to-day, but his partner, Ex-Judge Olcott, said the woman's statement was examined with great care, and that many points in it have been absolutely verified.

"I have talked to her," said Mr. Olcott, "and I am sure she is telling the truth. That is, I am quite sure that she believes she is telling the truth. I have talked to her neighbors and have learned that she told them the same story during the first trial of Molineux. She is a woman of unimpeachable respectability. I have talked to her minister, to whom she told the story, and to her doctor, with whom she discussed the case. We were communicating with her sister in Wisconsin to whom she mailed a package on Dec. 23, 1898, and the post marks on that package wrapper show that it was mailed at the same time the poison package was mailed and from the same place, the Post-Office Building."

Says She Will Testify.

"Will you put her on the witness stand?" Most decidedly we will. As soon as the handwriting men have told their story we shall call this woman up with the evidence necessary to corroborate all she says."

DEVEY LOSES GAME AND VOTE

Agreed to Let Pinochle Decide Whether He Should Vote for the Opponent of His Candidate.

LUCK CHANGED FOR BILL.

He Was Ahead at the Start, but When His Adversary Melded 150 Trumps at One Fall Swoop It Was All Over but the Voting.

It is noised around the Ninth Assembly District that William S. Devey, as the result of losing a game of pinochle will have to vote against his candidate for the Assembly, Richard Butler, tomorrow. Rumor has it that he was hustling around to-day trying to get a Republican to vote for Butler.

Devey, with Butler, Peter J. Garvey and Dr. W. J. Stewart, was out in the district electioneering last night. At 1 o'clock this morning they dropped into the cafe at 202 Ninth avenue, which is a great resort for the Sheehanites of the west end of the district.

There was a big crowd in the cafe and Devey invited them all to take refreshment at his expense. He introduced Butler to the Sheehanites and got several of them to promise that they would get out and hustle in their precincts for the Tammany candidate on Election Day instead of simply voting for him as they had intended to do.

A pinochle game in the back room attracted the attention of Devey. There were two players, the proprietor, who is a Democrat, and one of the patrons of the place, a red-hot Republican from New England, who eats pie for breakfast and thinks that Grover Cleveland and William J. Bryan wear horns and cloven hoofs.

Devey got into the game and learned that the Republican was going to vote for Allen.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said the Chief. "They tell me you're a good pinochle player. I don't play much of a game myself. If I beat you will you vote for Butler?"

"No," replied the Republican, "but I'll vote for Butler if you beat me, provided you promise to vote for Allen if I beat you."

"You're on," said Devey, winking at the crowd. Incidentally it should be remarked that Devey is reputed to be one of the best pinochle players on the West Side.

Devey counted 401 on the first deal, leading both of his opponents by more than 200 points. He saw a Butler vote in sight and bought drinks for the house.

"I get votes all ways," he said. "When I can't talk 'em into voting for Dick I beat 'em into it playing pinochle with 'em."

Then Devey's luck changed. The proprietor of the place ran out in the next two deals, leaving Devey with 752 points and his opponent with 757. In the last hand the Republican counted out just as Devey was about to mull 150 trumps and win the game.

"I'll live up to my agreement all right," he announced as he was leaving, "but I've got Republican friends enough in the district to get one of 'em to vote for Butler and make up for me."

This is the story as they tell it in the Ninth.

Another heiress to the Levi P. Morton millions was born to-day. Mrs. William C. Eustis, Gov. Morton's daughter, gave birth to a girl baby at the home of her father, No. 831 Fifth avenue.

Edith Morton married William C. Eustis, now third Secretary of the United States Embassy in London, on April 20, 1900. The ceremony was performed in Grace Church by Bishop Potter and was an affair of wide interest.

Mrs. Eustis is the eldest daughter of Mr. Morton's former Governor. She is a decidedly brilliant woman and already has achieved considerable prominence as an authoress.

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, Nov. 3.—Charming weather brought out a strong attendance this afternoon, unusually large for a Monday. The track was in superb shape and the card was one of the best of the meeting though the fields were unusually large.

Aqueduct is a dangerous track, its turns are short and sharp and it is notorious that not until today an accident had happened. In the first race Tanbark crested over into the fence and threw McCreery, his jockey, into the field. The boy was badly injured.

In the second race there was an awful mix up on the turn. Five horses fell and threw their jockeys. The thousands in the grand stand could not tell how it happened. All they could see was a great cloud of dust with struggling legs and heads of horses and jockeys appearing and disappearing. It looked like a wreckage, and the women in the grand stand screamed in chorus. But Providence interfered, and all of the boys came back to the judges' stand shaken up and badly frightened, but safe and sound of limb.

The stake feature to-day was the Woodcock and the drawing of books, which had a splendid field, including The Musketeer, Potente, G. Whittier and other fast sprinters. The fourth race, a handicap at a mile and seventy yards, also had a splendid class of entries. This race was a stake in itself.

There was a new drawing of books to-day and thirty-eight layers continued laying the odds.

FIRST RACE.
Seven furlongs. Betting: Snark, white, jockey, St. Hill, Fin. Str. Place. True Blue, 105, Jones, 1 23 24 20 8 8 Maiden, 110, W. Miller, 1 21 26 10 4 4 Maiden, 100, A. B. Smith, 8 29 28 8 3 3 Maiden, 100, Hollander, 10 21 21 10 4 4 Alack, 103, O'Brien, 10 25 74 41 15 15 Alopa, 110, McCreery, 2 25 81 40 15 15 Blue Boy, 103, Redman, 10 21 21 10 4 4 Lee Kline, 105, Hapley, 15 13 10 4 4 15 Devereux, 105, Redman, 10 21 21 10 4 4 Tangible, 105, McCreery, 5 49 12 100 40 40 Tour, 100, W. Daily, 12 14 13 60 20 20 Belvino, 105, McCreery, 14 17 14 20 20 Starling, 105, McCreery, 11 13 15 25 10 Queen Carnival, 100. Cummins, 105, 17 16 16 40 12 Tour, 110, Oakley, 3 25 17 100 30 Glimmer, 105, McCreery, 12 14 14 20 20 Blanket, 103, Danick, 14 14 14 20 20 Start poor. Won handsly. Time—1:24 3/4.

In the opening event Tangible ran away and went over the fence, and there was a long delay waiting for a new jockey, as McCreery was injured. When the gate finally went up Blanket and Glimmer, two of the well-backed ones, were left at the post. Snark went to the front soon after the start, and starting after a jockeying up by two lengths True Blue set the pace three lengths in front of Maiden.

SECOND RACE.
One mile and seventy yards. Betting: Harrison, white, jockey, St. Hill, Fin. Str. Place. Gallant South, 102, 8 6 2 5 7 5 2 Watkins, Overton, 97. McIntire, 105, 5 21 34 12 5 5 Dark Planet, 105, Rice, 9 7 24 4 8 8 5 Tangible, 102, Coburn, 12 14 14 20 20 Tangle, 102, Shea, 10 29 25 7 5 2 Hedge, 94, Gaborner, 12 14 14 20 20 Blue Boy, 103, Redman, 10 21 21 10 4 4 Hedge, 99, Larson, 11 11 9 55 20 20 Starling, 105, McCreery, 14 17 14 20 20 Frankon, 108, Salling, 4 14 14 100 49 Ithian, 101, Gannon, 12 13 14 20 20 Blue Boy, 103, Redman, 14 14 14 20 20 Epidemic, 97, Bolson, 3 39 14 20 10 Start good. Won easily. Time—1:43 3/4.

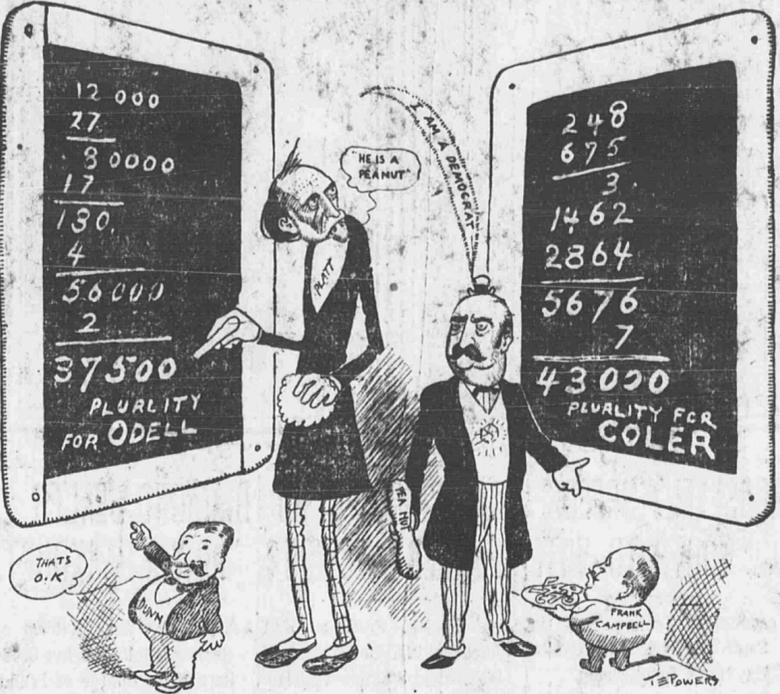

The expected came to pass in this race. Five horses fell with their jockeys in an awful mix-up on the turn. First two horses, Harrison and Coburn, but the usual cloud of dust, sprawling riders, protruding and tangled legs and screaming women, prevented any one from seeing what had occurred. The horses that fell were Harrison, Coburn, Epidemic, with Bolson, Glimmer, with Salling, Ithian, with Gannon, and Frankon, with McIntire. Three of the boys, Redfern, Bolson and Gannon rode back with Patrol, Judge Hall uninjured. The other three, Harrison, Coburn and Epidemic fell until they fell. Then Harrison and Coburn rode head and head to the turn where Gallant Smith joined them. In the run home

W. L. ELKINS HURT IN CRUSH

Building Collapsed in Broad Street, Philadelphia, and Millionaire Was Injured by Being Caught in Big Crowd.

TWO MEN LOST THEIR LIVES.

(Special to The Evening World.)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 3.—William L. Elkins, the traction magnate, was seriously injured here this afternoon by being caught in the crowd which surged about the ruins of the new section of the Lane Title Building, which collapsed. In the falling of the building two men were killed and one injured.

An addition was being made to the building at the corner of Broad and Sansom streets and had reached the third floor. Without warning the steel columns buckled and the mass crashed into the cellar.

A delay in the receipt of building material caused the majority of workmen to quit several days ago and for that reason the list of dead was small.

Elkins Caught in Crowd.
Mr. Elkins was near the corner when the building collapsed and was caught in the great crowd which gathered about the wreckage.

The arrival of ambulances caused the people to scatter, and in that way Mr. Elkins was injured. He was knocked down and stepped upon and when picked up was dazed and nearly unconscious.

After being attended in a drug store he was sent to his home, where several doctors attended him.

The doctors said that Mr. Elkins might be suffering from severe internal injuries. It had been planned to send him to a hospital but to this he objected.

Errecting a Handsome Tomb.
Mr. Elkins recently started the erection of one of the handsomest tombs or mausoleums in the country. When his friends heard of his narrow escape to-day they were inclined to have misgivings.

HEAVY BETS ARE LAID ON ODELL.

Some Large Amounts Were Placed in Wall Street To-Day at Prevailing Odds of 2 to 1.

Halle & Stieglitz bet $5,000 on Coler against $10,000 offered by Flower & Co. to-day.

W. B. Nivins announced that he had placed $15,000 on Odell at 2 to 1 in various amounts with different takers. Wilson, Watson & Herbert put up $5,000 against $10,000 on Coler.

Charles N. Minzenheimer got 2 to 1 with $5,000 in Coler money, while Fred Brooks bet $5,000 on $10,000 on Coler with Fred Oakes.

Another bet in Wall street was one of $9,000 to $4,500 that Odell would be re-elected Governor.

Wasserman Brothers took the Odell end, while the Coler money was put up by Norton & Street.

On the curb, where most of the bets are made with stage money, practically no bets of importance were made.

The Odell men claimed they had plenty of money to bet, but could not get the Coler men to put up.

S. B. Vonler Smith, of No. 52 Wall street, offered to bet $500 to $1,000 that the next Congress will be Democratic.

W. B. Nivins renewed his offer to bet any part of $10,000 at 2 to 1 on Odell.

CARLISE CLAIMS BIG COLER GAINS

Chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee Winds Up Campaign with the Prediction that Odell's Opponent Will Carry Eight or Ten Up-State Counties.

Puts Erie in the Democratic Column by 3,000—Leader Murphy Repeats Claim That Coler Will Have 112,000 Plurality in Manhattan and Bronx.

John N. Carlisle, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Democratic State Committee, said this afternoon:

"I am not predicting any landslide for the Democratic ticket, but I do predict an overwhelming majority for Coler in Greater New York and general gains all through the State. We will carry from eight to ten counties outside of Greater New York, including Erie and Albany counties. We will carry Erie by 3,000. We will carry the city of Rochester, but I have doubts about Monroe County.

"There is no reason to believe that Mr. Coler will have a plurality of less than 35,000 when we consider that in addition to Erie County we have the following up-State counties sure: Rockland, Columbia, Albany, Schenck, Seneca, Chemung and Hamilton. We will carry Nassau County. We have a good chance to carry Schuyler County and we will make big gains in Rensselaer and Westchester with a chance of carrying the latter."

TAMMANY'S BIG CLAIMS.
The following election forecasts were given out at Tammany Hall late this afternoon:

LEADER CHARLES F. MURPHY—My returns are all in, and I am assured that they are conservative estimates of the vote. I figure on 112,000 for Coler in Manhattan and the Bronx. I know that this is nearly twice as large a plurality as is conceded by the Republicans, but the figures to-morrow night will prove that I am not far out of the way. The Democratic vote in this borough alone is going to be a stunning surprise to our opponents.

CONGRESSMAN GEORGE B. MCLELLAN—It will be a landslide for Coler. I wouldn't like to say what I think his plurality will be. People would think I was exaggerating. I think it sufficient to say that there will be a landslide.

EAST SIDE FOR COLER.
FLORENCE J. SULLIVAN, Tammany leader of the Eighth Assembly District—The east side is for Coler. It makes no difference whether the voters are Republicans or Democrats, generally. They know Coler down there, but they do not know Odell. It is going to be a landslide.

ALDERMAN TIMOTHY P. SULLIVAN, leader of the Sixth District—I'm not in a position to venture any figures for the city or the State, but I can say that in the Sixth it will be unanimous. You'll have to look pretty hard to find an Odell vote in the Sixth.

DOUGH BAGS ARE PASSED OUT.
The sinews of war was distributed at Tammany Hall to-day. Just what sums of money were given out to the district leaders is not known exactly. Semi-official figures give the sum allotted to each election district at $50. This would make $45,700 put into the hands of the thirty-five district leaders of Manhattan and the Bronx for use on election day, but the figure is probably a low one.

In districts where there is to be a hard fight it is understood that the supply of money at the disposal of the Tammany workers is to be generous. The organization has the biggest campaign fund it has enjoyed for years, and Murphy is disposed to spend it with a lavish hand in order to get out a vote approximating one of the old Tammany sweeps.

Few of the district leaders appeared at the Wigwam in person. They were too busy in their headquarters arranging for the battle to-morrow. But their lieutenants all looked immensely pleased as they left the committee rooms with the dough bags in their pockets.

REPUBLICANS KEEP UP COURAGE.
At the Republican Club Committee Col. Robert C. Morris, President, said:

"I am more than confident of Gov. Odell's re-election; I am sure of it. As for Mr. Murphy's statement that Coler would get 112,000 in Greater New York, it is so extravagant as to be preposterous. Everybody will recall that Richard Croker on the Saturday before last election announced confidently that Shepard would carry New York County by 47,225. Low got 5,000 majority. That ought to be enough to make any one understand Mr. Murphy's boast."

No figures were given out by the Republican managers. George R. Manchester and Phil Dillon joined in the talk, and it was given out that the stories of Richard Croker's indifference were told for effect, the fact being that Croker was staying at the Hotel Carlisle, in London, so that he could be within touch of his lieutenants in Tammany, and he is keeping close watch on the situation, employing a cipher code by which to communicate by cable with Murphy and the rest, and he has been directing Murphy's conduct of the campaign.

CAMPBELL JUMPS 15,000.
BATH, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Frank Campbell, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, who returned from New York City last night, said to-day: "Since my return I have raised my figures of the Democratic plurality in the State from 35,000 to 50,000. The Republicans will not get over sixty thousand plurality up the State, and the indications are that Coler will get 65,000 plurality."

ODELL STILL CONFIDENT.
NEWBURG, Nov. 3.—Gov. B. B. Odell will remain here until after the election. He said to-day that he is confident that the Republicans would carry the State by not less than 50,000 votes.
