

STRICKEN DEAD IN ROADHOUSE.

William Livingston Flanagan, a Wealthy Brewer, Dies Suddenly at Grand View Hotel After Automobile Ride.

ILL, HAD BEEN PUT TO BED.

Doctors Had Seen Summoned, but Arrived Too Late to Save Patient, Who Was Prominent in Several Big Business Enterprises.

Friends of William Livingston Flanagan, the millionaire brewer and hotel proprietor, are mystified by his sudden death in the Grand View Hotel, at One Hundred and Sixty-first street and Fort Washington avenue.

On Saturday afternoon Capt. Flanagan with four friends started out for an automobile trip. The party dined at the Hotel Monument, at Eighth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-third street, and then rode through Westchester and the Bronx. Returning, they turned off into Washington Heights and stopped at the Hotel Grand View for supper. Mr. Flanagan was not feeling well and retired to a room. His two men companions, who registered as Phil Perry, of Coney Island, and Jack Dowle, had dinner in a private dining-room. Later Mr. Flanagan became so ill that Dr. Longeraus was summoned. He did not think there was anything serious the matter and after leaving a prescription he departed.

Physician Was Called.

Mr. Flanagan remained at the hotel over night. When he got up he collapsed and was put to bed again. His brother-in-law, his physician, Dr. George A. Saxe, of No. 75 East Nineteenth street, were summoned. Before they arrived Mr. Flanagan was seized with an intense pain in the heart and sprang out of bed, but before he could move across the floor he sank down and died almost instantly. When Dr. Saxe arrived later he said Mr. Flanagan had died of heart disease. The coroner of the Bronx was notified.

For the past year and a half Mr. Flanagan had lived in apartments in the Metropolitan Opera-house block with his niece, Miss A. Franklin. He was married, but had been separated from his wife for some years. A son, William L. Flanagan, Jr., twenty-one years of age, survives him and will inherit the most of his fortune.

Mr. Flanagan was a partner in the brewing firm of Flanagan, Nay & Co., president of the H. Clausen & Sons' Brewing Company and managing director of the New York Breweries Company, Limited of London. He was President and principal stockholder of the Hotel Marie Antoinette Company and two hotels in Baltimore, and was the owner besides of much real estate in the vicinity of Sixty-sixth street and Broadway.

Prominent in Many Ways.

Capt. Flanagan was forty-five years old. He was the senior officer of the Second Battery, N. G. S. R., with which he had been connected for many years. He was an enthusiast in military matters and was regarded as an authority on ordnance matters. His opinion was often sought by the Army Department. During the Spanish-American war Capt. Flanagan was in command of a battery at Camp Black, but did not succeed in getting to the front for active service. He enjoyed the friendship of President Roosevelt, who appointed him on his staff, when Governor. In March, 1901, Capt. Flanagan gave an elaborate dinner and vaudeville entertainment in Mr. Roosevelt's honor at the Marie Antoinette.

Two years ago Capt. Flanagan went to the gold cure institute at Carmel, N. Y., to recuperate his shattered nerves. He was a member of the Military Order of Foreign Wars, Fencibles, American Yacht and Army and Navy clubs, trustee of the Museum of Natural History, the Botanical Gardens, Metropolitan Museum of Art and member of the American Geographical Society. Capt. Flanagan will be buried with military honors.

THIEVES ARE BUSY OVER THE BRIDGE.

Brooklyn Receives Its Usual Sunday Visitation and Police Receive Many Complaints.

Burglars put in their usual busy Sunday in Brooklyn yesterday. Reports of minor robberies have been made from all over the city. The most daring attempt made by thieves was in the edition of Levy Rosenzweig, at No. 147 Metropolitan avenue, in the Williamsburg section.

They forced his door and robbed the cash register of $10. They blew a safe in the back room, but could not open the inner door, and went away leaving behind a varied assortment of burglar's tools. The robbery occurred in broad daylight.

James Martin, of No. 149 Conover street, reported to the police that a thief entered his room yesterday afternoon and stole $500 from the pocket of a vest lying on the bed.

During the absence of William Dowling from his home at Twenty-third street and New Utrecht avenue yesterday afternoon, thieves entered the house and stole jewelry valued at $500.

FATAL TROLLEY ACCIDENT.

CAPT. FLANAGAN, WHO DIED SUDDENLY AFTER AUTO RIDE.

DEATH IN SECRET BOY KEPT A YEAR.

He Fell on the Ice, Didn't Tell Parents, Blindness Came, with Mortal Sequel.

An injury sustained a year ago while skating which he concealed from his parents several months until he became ill and a physician was called in, resulted yesterday in the death of William Kammer, of Jefferson street, West New York. Several months before his death the boy also became blind from the results of the fall.

Last winter he and some companions were skating on an ice pond near his home.

He sustained a bad fall, but, boy like, tried to laugh it off and kept it a secret from his parents.

Several months later he complained of severe headaches and falling eyesight. A physician said the lad was suffering from concussion of the brain. He admitted for the first time that he had fallen and hurt himself.

WARSHIP DEAD NOW SEVEN.

RESCUED CAPTAIN AND CREW ARRIVE.

Wrecked on Cape Hatien, They Were Saved and Brought Here by Tramp Steamer.

On the tramp steamer Palomo, just arrived from Hayti, was the shipwrecked captain and crew of ten men of the Italian bark San Luigi. The San Luigi sailed from Malaga on Nov. 4 last and made a fair passage until she was off the battery of Hayti. A gale arose and the bark was blown on the Cape Hatien reef and wrecked. Persons on land rescued the captain and crew, and they were cared for by the Italian consul, who paid their passage to Italy.

On their arrival here the men were sent to Ellis island to await the arrival of the Italian Consul in this city, who will see that the seamen are taken care of until a steamer sails for Italy. The captain is Vincenzo Cappello.

Big Railway Accident List.

$1 and $1.50 Crepe Mistrals At 55c and 75c

TWO crepe fabrics stand at the very front of popular favor, and Crepe Mistral is one of them. To secure the most favored of fabrics at half price or near it, is quite remarkable right in the front of the season; but such is the offering we make today.

The leading manufacturer of these goods found that he had decided too much of even a good thing, and he made a proposition to close out to us his surplus of fifteen thousand yards; and we jumped at the chance—and so will you.

The crepe is in a beautiful open weave—a thread of mohair spun with the wool gives it a snap and sparkle that is most effective. Self-colored stripes are woven in the ground, singly, and in clusters of twos and threes.

More than half the lot is in black, the favored coloring.

The collection is in two widths as follows:

$1 Quality, 40 inches wide, at 55c a yard

In black, cream and navy blue.

$1.50 Quality, 45 inches wide, at 75c a yard

In black, cream, navy blue, royal blue, cadet blue, brown, tan, gray, reseda and cardinal.
