

SULLY WHIPS THE COTTON BEARS AND WINS BACK FORTUNE

Game Leader of the Bulls Withstands All Attacks, Winding Up the Day with March and May Options Each Seven Points Above Yesterday's Closing Prices.

Amid wild excitement on the Cotton Exchange Daniel Sully, the bull leader, walked the floor at 8 o'clock this afternoon at the closing of the market a hero in the eyes of his followers. In the six hours of see-sawing on the prices for March and May cotton Sully won back the $1,500,000 which he lost yesterday in the fearful onslaught made by the bear forces under the leadership of Theodore Price.

The market closed seven points above the final quotations of yesterday, which is a decided victory for Sully.

Some idea of the tremendous trading is shown by the following fluctuations:

Opened	March	May
Lowest	9.92	9.79
Close	9.98	9.85

Sully in High Glee.

As Sully came down the stone steps of the exchange he gave this interview to an Evening World reporter:

"While I am always glad to discuss cotton and its merits with anybody at any time, I am never willing to argue as to the future from the standpoint of a speculator. It has been my misfortune to have been seriously misrepresented on this account.

"I represent some very large interests which have been attracted to the cotton by the extraordinary absorption of the movement this year. They still think well of cotton from the marchant's standpoint. Prices are still being paid for the actual article in the South, representing the real value of the staple on the basis of supply and demand."

Opened with a Roar.

One minute before the hour of ten, when the market opened, the hum of conversation on the floor of the Exchange ceased and was succeeded by the stillness of a morgue.

Then came a roar as the brokers dashed at each other howling at the top of their voices, gesticulating with their fingers, their eyes popping out of their heads. The first quotation in March was 9.80 and a squeal of joy went up from the bears. Sully raised his hands, made motions with his fingers and the game was on.

March jumped to 9.75, 9.80, 9.82, 9.84 and 9.86, and the bulls bellowed. Then the trading switched to May, which jumped 8 points at a time from 9.72 to 9.78.

At this last quotation the bulls set up a bellow of victory, for it was seen that the market was firm for the time at least. The excitement subsided somewhat and trading went on in heavy volume, but quietly.

Something approaching a panic happened shortly after 11 o'clock, when the May option, which had been the most extensively dealt in, went off 11 points so rapidly that the indicator looked like a fast game meter. There was little or no bull support during the decline, and the rumor went around that Sully was getting tired of the bull game and was seeking an avenue through which he could dispose of his holdings without the knowledge of his rivals.

This had a tendency to make the market feverish and irregular, because of the fear that an unloading by Sully would hammer prices into the ground, but in the end the Sully crowd won out.

Decline in Liverpool.

As compared with the closing prices of yesterday the Liverpool market at noon showed a net decline in quotations on cash cotton of 24 points, and as the New York opening is generally a reflection of the Liverpool quotations at 1

EDWIN L. BURDICK, MYSTERIOUSLY SLAIN, AND HIS WIDOW, WHO HAD APPLIED FOR DIVORCE

OSBORNE QUILTS JEROME'S STAFF

Assistant District-Attorney Re-signs His Place to Accept an Offer from the Universal Tobacco Company.

Urged by a handsome offer from the Universal Tobacco Company to become its counsel Assistant District-Attorney James W. Osborne today handed in his resignation to Mr. Jerome. Mr. Osborne relinquishes a position worth $2,500 a year. He will go into private practice with Otto Hess, the new firm to have offices in the Temple Court Building.

Mr. Osborne, or as he is best known by his intimate friends and familiar of the Criminal Court Building, "Jimmy" Osborne, has been in the District-Attorney's office for eleven years, holding the record for a long stay in that department.

He was one of the party of Southerners appointed by the late John W. Fellows, former District-Attorney, and signaled his service by a peculiar bull dog tenacity in prosecuting notorious homicide and police cases. This made him many enemies.

In spite of this persistency in prosecuting convicted persons "Jimmy" Osborne held on through all sorts of administrations. Democratic, Republican and Independent.

He is a Tammany man and son-in-law of ex-Mayor Van Wyck. He has been known all along as a man who could not be "reached" and his political associates were never willing that he should be nominated for the District-Attorneyship.

After the retirement of John F. McIntyre, who prosecuted Carlisle Harniss, Mr. Osborne was selected as counsel for the State in all important homicide cases. His determination to send Roland Molinoux to the chair was particularly denounced by those who believed the young clubman innocent.

When Mr. Jerome came in he gave Osborne charge of prosecuting indicted police officials and among those he convicted were Warden Bessert and Capt. Diamond.

In regard to his assistant's resignation Mr. Osborne only remained during my regime at my solicitation. He has been anxious to go into private practice for some time, and I recognize that it would not be just to press him when he has an excellent opportunity to make a name for himself outside."

Mr. Osborne's resignation will take effect on April 1. A successor has already been selected whom Mr. Jerome declined to name.

It was also reported to-day that George W. Schurman, brother of Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University and chief of the District-Attorney's staff, would resign within the week. Mr. Schurman intends going into private practice.

THOMPSON OUT; BARNARD GETS CORBETT AND JEFFRIES SIGN.

Inspector Who Resented Suggestion of Physical Disability Is Retired at His Own Request.

The Only Condition Imposed on the College Is That the Name of the Donor Shall Be Kept Secret.

On condition that his or her name be not revealed, it was announced to-day by the trustees of Barnard College that some generous donor had given $1,000,000 for the purchase of a site upon which to erect a dormitory and two other buildings at Broadway and One Hundred and Sixteenth street, near the main Barnard building.

The name of the donor is said to be known only to George A. Plimpton, treasurer, and President Butler, of the College. "We promised not to tell," said the latter to-day, "and I can only say, therefore, that this magnificent gift comes from a friend of the institution and one who is interested in the higher education of women."

The trustees are overjoyed at this unexpected present as they have been worried over the accommodation of students. So rapidly has Barnard grown in the last few years that at least two dormitories, accommodating eighty students each, and one academic building are needed. With this amount of money on hand it will be possible to erect these buildings on the three and one-half acres which the site comprises and still have some space left for other additions.

The property purchased is bounded on the east by Broadway, on the south by One Hundred and Sixteenth street and on the west by Carmont avenue. From its location and relation to the surroundings the securing of this site makes it impossible to have Barnard flanked by any modern skyscrapers.

"I HAVE NO FEAR OF THE POLICE," SAYS MRS. PAINE

"I Have Accounted for Every Moment of My Time on the Night Mr. Burdick Was Murdered, and Do Not Expect to Be Arrested," She Adds.

WOMAN NAMED IN BUFFALO MYSTERY SPEAKS PLAINLY IN HER DEFENSE

Police Have Ransacked Her House and Found Nothing, She Declares—Man and Woman Seen Running from Burdick Home and Entering Cab Are Now Sought.

(Special to The Evening World.)

BUFFALO, March 5.—Mrs. Seth T. Paine, of No. 492 Linwood avenue, whose photograph was found in the "den" of Edwin L. Burdick after he had been found murdered, and who has figured prominently in the case since the police began their investigation, talked quite freely of the matter this afternoon.

"I have no fear of arrest," she said. "I can account for my whereabouts every minute of the night of the murder, and have so accounted to the police. I was not near the Burdick house that night. I know nothing about the tragedy, nor how it happened.

"I was in my own home all that night, and can prove by my servants and others that my statements are true."

"Did the police seem satisfied with your statements?" Mrs. Paine was asked.

"If they had any doubts about them they must be satisfied now. They called at the house on Sunday after I told them all I knew on Saturday night, and searched it from cellar to garret. They turned everything upside down and inside out.

"I don't know what they were looking for and they did not tell me what they expected to find. But I had nothing to conceal and they found nothing."

DOES NOT KNOW MURDERER.

"Have you any idea, Mrs. Paine, of the identity of the murderer?"

"No, I haven't the slightest conjecture. I don't know who could have any reason for committing such a crime."

"Was it true, as reported, that you told the police you talked by telephone with Mr. Burdick on the afternoon before this murder?"

"Yes. I telephoned to him in answer to a message from him on the night before, but it had entirely to do with social affairs."

Mrs. Paine spoke confidently throughout and like a woman who was sure of her ground. Although she has been watched closely and has been under a nervous strain, she seemed to-day to have recovered her spirits and outwardly was wholly calm and self-possessed.

The police are running down a new clue this afternoon which brings a man and woman into the case, but whether they are the suspects that have figured in the mystery all along is a matter of surprise, as Police Superintendent Bull and Chief Cusack were awaiting this evening the report of Detective Hornlung, who is on the trail and will not speak until they hear from him.

SAW TWO RUNNING AWAY.

Information was given to the police and District-Attorney this forenoon that a Mrs. Scott, an elderly woman, living with her son-in-law and daughter in their home at the corner of Bryant street and Ashland avenue, about 1.30 o'clock last Friday morning saw a man and woman run down Ashland avenue and turn into Bryant street. The fact that they were running attracted her attention at the time, and since the publication of the Burdick murder she was brought to the belief that possibly they had some connection with that crime.

Mrs. Scott was at the time sitting up to await the return of her son-in-law, Mr. Herbst, and his wife from some social function.

Whether the running couple emerged from or entered the mysterious coupe, which it was yesterday learned was standing on Ashland avenue for about an hour at that time Friday morning, is a matter of conjecture which the detective is following out.

It is considered significant that the coupe was there about the time Mrs. Scott saw the fleeing man and woman, and it is also deemed significant that the time coincides closely with that given by medical experts as the hour of Burdick's death.

"I have come upon some very important clues to-day and Chief Cusack's men are out working on them. When they return, perhaps I may have something good to give out. I won't promise anything, because our plans may miscarry."

District-Attorney Coatsworth made this statement to an Evening World reporter at noon to-day.

"It is rumored that John Doe warrants were secured and that two suspects will be taken into custody to-night. Is that rumor true?" asked the reporter.

"I can't give you any information on that point."

"You won't deny that warrants have been secured?"

"I can't say one way or the other. When Detectives Sullivan and Holmlund get back here I will give something out."

"Is it true that Mrs. Paine is no longer under police surveillance?"

The District-Attorney thought for a moment and then said: "I do not feel at liberty to answer that question."

EXPECTED AN ARREST TO-NIGHT.

"But you expect an arrest this evening?"

"We do, but it depends greatly on what Sullivan and Holmlund report when they return."

"Where have they gone?"

"Not more than three blocks from—I don't care to answer that," said Mr. Coatsworth, checking himself. He then asked to be excused.

It is evident from a remark made by Chief of Detectives Patrick Cusack

"MY BILLS WILL PASS," SAYS GREENE

Commissioner Certain They Will Go Through, Despite State Senate's Effort to Bury Them.

Police Commissioner Greene said to-day that notwithstanding the action of the State Senate in referring his police bills for the adding of 400 patrolmen to the force for two years and for increasing the salary of Chief Inspector to $7,500 a year to a committee, they would pass.

He refused to discuss the reported retaliation of Gov. Odell in referring his bills to a committee, because he and Mayor Low would not sanction the Governor's project in having the term of Police Commissioner extended to nine years.

HIS WIFE GONE, HE THREATENS SUICIDE

John J. Schenck Declares He Will End His Life If She Is Not Soon Found.

A man giving the name of John J. Schenck, of No. 26 Bush street, Brooklyn, called at Police Headquarters to-day and said he was looking for his wife who has been missing for two days. He said that if he didn't find her within twenty-four hours he would kill himself. He sobbed bitterly.

The woman's maiden name was Della Moore and she is twenty-four years old. Schenck said he worked in a coal boat. On Tuesday night he returned home about 11 o'clock and found his wife had been sleeping in a room. She was on Wednesday morning as he left the house she wanted to go with him. He could not allow this, and she said: "Jack, kiss me. Good-by. Jack, don't stay long. When he returned last night she had disappeared. Schenck's mother, who lived with him, told him his wife went away shortly after he had left the house. She was dressed in her best clothes. She is described as being about 4 feet 7 inches tall and weighing ninety-five pounds. Schenck said he would get a gun, and if she was not found would commit suicide.
