

BANKER CAN IDENTIFY HIS DAUGHTER'S SLAYER.

Mr. Sturtevant Now Recalls Characteristics That May Help to Run Down the Murderer--Mrs. Sturtevant Positive She Can Recognize the Assassin --Police on the Suspect's Track.

(Special to The Evening World.) MEDFORD, Mass., May 8.—The police learned to-day an important fact in connection with the murder of Miss Nellie A. Sturtevant, they having been trying hard to learn which way on Winthrop street the murderer turned after he mounted his bicycle.

Mrs. Lilla Paul, who lives at the corner of Winthrop and Dearborn streets, directly opposite the head of Chester avenue, was able to settle the direction in which the fleeing cyclist went.

"There is no doubt in my mind that the man turned up Winthrop street and went over the Boston and Maine Railroad bridge toward Boston avenue," said Mrs. Paul. "I have very acute ears, and as I was wide awake when I heard the first shot fired I got out of bed immediately and went to the window. I had only retired fifteen minutes before. I reached the window, which overlooks Chester avenue, between the first and second reports of the revolver.

"I heard two shots after I reached the window; then cries. Simultaneously I heard the sound of footfalls of two persons grating on the loose gravel sidewalk of Chester avenue. I could hear them running toward Winthrop street.

"There was a second's pause, and then I heard a scraping as if something was being quickly dragged over the pebbles of the sidewalk. I explain it now on the theory that it was the bicycle being pulled out from the fence so that the man could ride it off.

WENT TOWARD BOSTON AVENUE.

"I distinctly heard the wheelman turn the corner of Winthrop street, and the noise came across the open lot in such a way that I could follow the man, by the sound, up Winthrop street toward Boston avenue. I heard that noise long enough to place him on the way to Boston avenue."

To-day the police admit that the story of Mrs. Paul, whose information came to them through The Evening World, is the only reliable story they have, after that of Mr. Sturtevant, which gives them any start upon the assured course of the murderer. Chief Holmes considered it of value to his force in directing them where not to look for the missing bag, and also gave them a lead which might be followed to advantage.

Chief Holmes detailed men to-day to follow along Boston avenue, both toward Somerville and toward West Medford, and search for Miss Sturtevant's bag in every place that offered any opportunity for concealment. "I am satisfied that until we find some trace of the leather bag or pick up some of the numerous slips which were in it, we shall continue to follow a very blind trail," said Chief Holmes.

"As to the Italian, Lombardi, now under arrest, there is nothing which seems to have been found yet which connects him with the murder. It is true that James S. Sturtevant insists that there was no accent, no foreign tinge in the pure pronunciation of the murderer who ordered him to throw up his hands."

PARENTS MAY IDENTIFY SLAYER.

Mrs. Sturtevant, mother of the murdered girl, now says she will be able to identify the murderer if she sees him. She has recovered from the shock of the awful tragedy. She declares that the man's features are firmly fixed in her mind.

Up to to-day Mr. Sturtevant was not certain that he could identify the guilty man, but since talking he matter over with Mrs. Sturtevant he has recalled certain characteristics of the man which makes him feel that he, too, will be able to identify the murderer.

Mr. Sturtevant now says that four shots were fired instead of three, and that it was the second shot which killed his daughter.

It is confidently believed here that the murderer was either a resident of Medford or a man very well acquainted with the town.

MASON MUST STAND TRIAL.

Invoked the Court to Restrain His Lodge, but Motion is Denied.

Charles H. Franklin, editor of The Interviewer, an insurance paper, will have to stand trial as a Freemason by the trial Commission appointed by Grand Master Elbert Crandall, on the charge of persistently libeling Past Grand Master Frederick A. Burnham.

Justice Gildersleeve of the Supreme Court, this afternoon dismissed the temporary injunction obtained by Franklin last month, and denied the motion to continue it.

Franklin wanted the Grand Master, Grand Secretary Col. E. L. M. Ehlers and Past Grand Masters Burnham, Critcherson, Stewart and Phelps enjoined from trying him.

William D. Critcherson, a fellow member of Excelsior Lodge, charged Franklin with libeling Burnham.

Grand Master Crandall appointed Past Grand Masters, John Stewart, Charles L. Phelps and William Kigenstein as a trial Commission.

Franklin tried to enjoin the Grand Lodge from trying him until his trial in the criminal courts on indictments charging criminal libel had been concluded. He said that the same facts being at issue he would be forced in the Masonic trial to reveal his defense to the District Attorney.

Justice Henshaw heard the case but declined to decide it on the ground that he, too, is a Mason. The case was re-argued before Justice Gildersleeve.

Justice Gildersleeve said in deciding against Franklin that the regular order of procedure by which the Grand Lodge under Masonic laws, to which every Mason subscribes and Franklin must abide by them.

BULGER DID NOT TALK OF CLEVELAND

He Repudiates Interview Quoting Him as Saying that Hill Favored Ex-President.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 8.—Deputy Attorney-General Charles L. Bulger to-day repudiated the Oswego interview published in morning papers, in which he was quoted as saying that David B. Hill favored the nomination of ex-President Grover Cleveland on the next Democratic Presidential ticket, and that he himself believed there would be a popular demand for the nomination.

Ex-Senator Hill was seen and absolutely refused to comment on the subject.

KOLB MYSTERY GROWS DEEPER.

Reward of $1,000 Offered for Missing Secretary of Marine Engineers' Association—Will Be Increased.

A reward of $1,000, which will be increased to at least $5,000, was offered to-day by the Boston branch of the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association for some trace of the whereabouts of George A. Kolb, the missing Secretary of the organization.

President Jones, of the association, said to-day: "Experts have gone over his accounts and they are correct to a cent. I have had a long talk with Mrs. Kolb and she has offered no explanation. That he has met with any violence directed by those who are fighting the strike I do not consider for an instant."

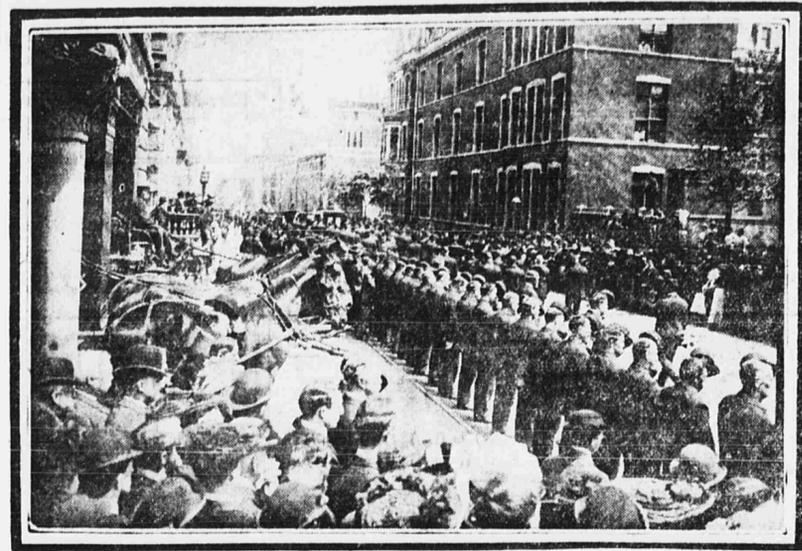

GOULD'S VALET LOSES.

Appellate Division of Supreme Court Decides Case Against Him. The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to-day handed down a decision affirming the judgment of the trial court in the case of Frank D. Mowbray against Howard Gould.

Mowbray was the valet who was injured by an explosion of fireworks on Gould's yacht, losing the sight of one eye. He claimed that he got a contract for life employment after the accident, and when he was discharged he sued for damages.

On the first trial of the case he got a verdict in his favor, but that was upset by the Appellate Division. On the second trial the jury decided in favor of Mr. Gould. That verdict the Appellate Division now affirms.

BRITISH SHIP SHOT-RIDDED.

San Domingo Troops and Rebels Used Britannia of Halifax as a Shield While Fighting a Battle Across River.

CREW BURROWED BELOW.

(Special to The Evening World.) HALIFAX, N. S., May 6.—E. A. O'Brien, the owner of the schooner Britannia, which is now at San Domingo, to-day received a report that the vessel had been used as a shield during a fight by opposing forces of the republic.

She was badly damaged, and a claim has been filed against San Domingo by the British Consul.

Capt. McKesson, of the Britannia, sent word that while passing downstream near the city a force of rebels lined up on one side of the shore and a regiment of Government troops took up a position on the other, and using the ship as a shield, began firing over and around her.

The captain and his men were forced below and compelled to half bury themselves in the cargo of sugar for safety.

The fight lasted three hours, during which the sails were shattered, rigging torn away and the sides of the Britannia pierced with shot, while bullets fell into the cabins, smashing glass and damaging the woodwork.

During the engagement a small gunboat to escape part of the fusillade made fast to the schooner.

As the Britannia was flying the English flag, the matter will probably be brought to the attention of the British Government.

BRIBERY INQUIRY IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Boston Man's Charges Against Member of Legislature Taken Up by Senate.

BOSTON, May 8.—The Committee on Rules of the Massachusetts Senate this afternoon decided to report to that body resolutions of the Senate to investigate charges of bribery made by George J. Raymond, of Boston. President Jones named the following members as an investigating committee: Senators Frost, of Lawrence; Asey, of Cambridge; W. T. A. Fitzgerald, of Boston; Cole, of Beverly; and Fletcher, of Westford.

A charge was made by Mr. Raymond that a Senator last year offered to prevent the passage of a bill which affected Mr. Raymond's business for a money consideration. The Committee on Rules considered the matter and reported that as the alleged bribery had to do with a member of last year's Senate the committee had no jurisdiction and the investigation was not within its power.

Mr. Raymond made public a statement to-day that the Senator to whom he referred was a member of the present Legislature as well as of the last one, and the committee decided to investigate.

SET SCHOOL ON FIRE FOR SPITE.

Pupil Ten Years Old Admits His Guilt and Says He Started Blaze to "Get Hunk on Sassy Teacher."

1,500 PUPILS WERE IN PERIL.

Eddie Luke, ten years old, of No. 41 Underhill avenue, Brooklyn, is a prisoner in the Bergen street police station pending Fire Marshal Heers' investigation of the fire in Public School No. 133 yesterday, where 1,500 children were imperiled. The boy has confessed that he set the fire in a closet to "get hunk" with a teacher who had reprimanded him.

Eddie is one of the bad boys of the school, the teachers say. During the past term he has been transferred to three different rooms in an effort to find some teacher who might lead him to abandon his proclivities for raising row during school hours.

His last teacher was Miss Phillips, of the second primary grade. She was not much more successful than the others, and yesterday when young Luke cut up so persistently she was forced to send him to the principal, Henry Ludwig, Jr., for a lecture.

Mr. Ludwig was not in his office at the time and the boy started back. He cut up monkey shins all the way and made a terrible racket in the halls. As he passed through the classroom of Miss Edna Campbell, in the third primary grade, he scuffled his feet and reared at pupils who were lined up for the morning visit to the gymnasium.

Miss Campbell spoke sharply to the boy and led her class out. When Miss Campbell returned with her charges a few minutes later flames were coming from the clothes closets. The teacher sounded the alarm and 1,500 pupils in the building formed in fire drill and marched out safely.

The fire was put out without great trouble. It was then found that young Luke was missing. When he reached school to-day he was accused of setting the fire. He denied it stoutly at first, but when a policeman was called in he admitted that he was the culprit.

"I did it to get hunk on that sassy teacher," he added. "I don't like to have her call me down that way in front of all the kids, and I just thought I'd burn up her office."

THE SILENT WITNESS. Observe the "Valvic Test" in Regal windows! Note the leather clamped between two transparent glass jars, so you can see both its upper and lower sides. Now follow the flexible tube leading from a wall gas bracket into the lower glass, below the leather. How could the gas be lighted above the leather, without first passing through its pores? How could it flare up and down as readily as if no leather intervened when the tap is turned on and off at the bracket, if Valvic Ventilating Calfskin be not porous as cloth, and sweat-dispelling as linen? How could water be retained above the leather, without wetting the lower side, if "Valvic" be not wet-proof as Cravenette? No other leathers volunteer such a test, because no others dare do it.
