

TALE OF HORRORS ON HIGH SEAS

Actor Jelenko, Having Recovered from the Fourth Tells How He Barely Escaped Being Hanged from Yard-Arm on Joy Line.

HAD TO LISTEN TO SONGS.

He Says that They Sang to Him and Acted Like Buccaneers and Altogether Made His Trip Down the Gound a Horrible Nightmare.

Nathan Jelenko, an actor, who claims to be a member of Charles Frohman's Empire Theatre Company, tells a weird story of what happened to him during a trip down the Sound on a Joy line steamer.

If his tale is true, Joy line sailors, instead of being city broke, gentle and kind, are like bold, bad buccaners and the raging main. Gather round boys and listen to the wild adventure of Nathan Jelenko, who sailed the Sound and was Jerry.

There ought to be shivery music and low lights with this, but for once the actor bravely does without them. On a dark and starlight night, with the bright moon darting in and out of obasing clouds like a pedestrian crossing Thirty-fourth street and Broadway, a man of many parts—for he was an actor—might have been seen striding determinedly across the gang-plank of a steamer which impatiently champed its bits at the dock with this and was tied up the Sound and wanted to get back to New York. So did the actor.

Enter the Buccaneers. The restive, skittish steamer was of the Joy line. That's why the actor took it. He'd often heard the line advertised on the stage. But this time it wasn't going to be a joke. There was to be no joy in this line for Jelenko. He was in for a fine line of trouble.

As frequently happens, there was aboard this noble ship—we will call her the Tropic Bird—a bunch of noisy youths with dinky caps upon their heads. They were of the genus known as the college cub. To show they were getting fine educations somewhere they sang songs so rollicking that the boat rocked to their rocky songs.

Presently, when the weary tenor struck a note that wasn't written in the piece, a heart-sick sailor gave a hitch to his trousers and, rolling over to the misguided vocalist, warned him that unless he stopped there would be mutiny among the crew, with possibly a little help from some of the patient passengers.

Whereupon a young man with a cigarette complexion informed him that the gee club intended handling out merry roundelays as long as his voice would stand the strain.

"Avast!" Was All He Said. The face of the sailor turned dark with anger, and the moon hid behind a cloud.

"Avast! It is time children were in bed," was all he said, but there was a look in his face which boded no good to the husky-voiced band.

"That for you," bawled the second assistant faldetto, lighting a fresh cigarette and flicking the smoking match toward the child. The actor, who had been stopped there would be mutiny among the crew, with possibly a little help from some of the patient passengers.

MRS. MOOERS FREE ON THEFT CHARGE

Arrested for Petty Larceny, She Swears that Question of Paying Board at Friend's House Never Was Considered.

(Special to The Evening World.)

MOUNT VERNON, July 7.—Mrs. Lena Egan's charge of petty larceny against Mrs. Dorothy B. Mooers, wife of Edwin M. Mooers, a millionaire mine owner who is looked up in Ludlow Street Jail in default of $25,000 bail in an action against him for an absolute divorce, was resumed to-day before Judge Bennett in the Court of Special Sessions.

In the warrant upon which Mrs. Mooers was arrested by Detective Lynch a week ago at her suit of rooms at the Hotel Navarre, New York, it was charged that she caused to be carried away a steamer trunk, golf set, etc., which were being held by Mrs. Leslie Kirkland, of Dell avenue, Chester Hill, for a board bill. Mrs. Mooers boarded with Mrs. Kirkland for two weeks. She paid $10 for the first week's board, and when the time for the second week's payment came around it is said she was without funds and left the place.

Mrs. Mooers on the Stand. Maurice Goodman, of New York, appeared for Mrs. Mooers, who took the stand in her own behalf. Mrs. Mooers testified that she is only East on a stay until her domestic troubles are settled. It came out that her husband will inherit $6,000,000 soon. He is the largest stockholder in the Yellow Aster Mine, although he declares that he is penniless.

Mrs. Mooers said that she first met Mrs. Kirkland four years ago while they were aboard a transatlantic steamer. The women became very fond of each other and upon their return exchanged visits.

Mrs. Mooers said that when Mrs. Kirkland conceived the idea to move from New York to Mount Vernon she loaned her $50 to do so. She testified that she lived with Mrs. Kirkland two weeks and that nothing was said about paying board. Mrs. Kirkland, according to Mrs. Mooers's story, didn't say that she was going to charge her $10 a week board. The defendant swore that she left her trunk, golf set, etc., at Mrs. Kirkland's home as a matter of convenience when she decided to move back to New York.

Lawyer West With Her. Upon the afternoon of June 20, when Mrs. Mooers, it was charged, committed petty larceny by causing to be carried away from Mrs. Kirkland's home her trunk, golf set, etc., she was accompanied to the house by Mr. Hall, of the law firm of Waddell, Selby & Hall.

Judge Bennett dismissed the complaint against Mrs. Mooers. Lawyer Goodman asked Judge Bennett to grant a charge of perjury against Mrs. Lena Egan. The judge refused to entertain the motion.

Underwriters in Session. ALEXANDRIA BAY, N. Y., July 7.—The annual meeting of the International Association of Accident Insurance Underwriters opened here to-day with an attendance of 125 delegates, representing twenty-seven leading companies of the world and a capitalization of eighty million dollars. The meeting was held at the Hotel Marlborough, Philadelphia, presided at the opening session. Most of the three days of the meeting will be occupied with discussions of health insurance, a comparatively new feature of the business.

MAGISTRATE CALLS CABMEN ROBBERS

One of Them Is Accused of Forcing an Aged German Couple Into His Vehicle in Effort to Get Them to Pay $3 Fare.

Magistrate Cornell in the Jefferson Market Court to-day denounced the methods used by cabmen to obtain fares and ended by saying he thought a good name for the average cabman would be a "highway robber."

The case that aroused the Magistrate's ire was that of Francis Degnon, a cabman who did not give his address, who was arrested last night by Patrolman Kelly, of the West Twentieth street station, on the complaint of William Egan, forty-nine, who was accompanied to the house by Mr. Hall, of the law firm of Waddell, Selby & Hall.

Egan claimed that he had seen Degnon try to force an aged German couple into his cab in an effort to take them to a hotel, for which service he was going to be paid for Germany, and had asked Degnon to tell them where they could get rooms in the neighborhood.

The cabman in court said that he was being persecuted by the ferry officials, who wanted, he said, to take the cabmen hired by the railroad to have the preference of getting fares.

"I do not believe you," said Magistrate Cornell. "I have always found the railroad officials to be fair on cabmen. You independent cabmen are veritable highway robbers. I have seen you demand $5, which he paid. The German couple were not in court."

THROUGH AT FUNERAL OF MARTIN SENGER.

West Side Political Leader Buried with Honors in District Where He Had Long Lived.

Martin Senger, whose boast it was that he would never allow a West Side to be buried in Potter's Field, and who, in the language of his neighborhood, "always made good" in that respect, was buried with honors to-day. He died Sunday at his late residence, No. 72 Ninth avenue, where he had lived more than twenty years. Martin Senger loved politics, and the people of the Fifteenth Assembly District, the Tammany Hall General Committee, of which he had been a member for many years.

He became a powerful factor in German-American politics, and his following never forsok him. In the fusion campaign of 1901, Senger's German adherents voted to a man as he voted, and his was a straight Democratic ticket. He was witty and hospitable. Quaint of figure and speech, he was a character for many years in the district.

The funeral was from the German Catholic Church on West Forty-ninth street. Present were ex-Judge Murray, Senator George W. Plunkitt, ex-Alderman Robert Muh, Frank Willinger, John M. Ulrich and a large number of prominent Tammany men.

DOCTORS TO TEST GEN. CLAY'S SANITY.

Relatives of Kentuckian Get Out a Writ in Lunacy Proceedings. LEXINGTON, Ky., July 7.—Two physicians of this city and Louisville left here to-day for Whitehall, the home of Gen. Cassius M. Clay. They go at the instance of the Madison County Court to examine into his mental condition, to report to the court on a lunacy writ gotten out by his children. Gen. Clay is under the hallucination that his children are trying to kill him, and he refuses entrance to all. They took this method to reach him and care for him. His home is barricaded and he guards his room with weapons. How the doctors will get in is a problem.
