

DOUBLE RESCUE BY STUDENT BLUECOAT

Vacation Policeman Adolph Carsten Leaps Into River at Hoboken and Saves a Man and a Boy from Drowning.

HUMAN CHAIN FOR ANOTHER.

Four Men Successfully Go to Aid of Two Struggling in River—Lifeguard and Bather Nearly Drowned at Rockaway.

Adolph Carsten, the New York University law student who is spending his vacation as a Hoboken policeman assigned to duty at the public baths, distinguished himself to-day.

Eddie Van Campen was crabbing off the end of a pier near the bath. He leaned over too far and fell into the water. Edward Schmidt, a boatman, jumped in after the lad, who promptly floundered in such a way as to render him powerless. He cried for help, and Carsten, who was preparing to get into his bathing suit, jumped into the water half dressed and was soon beside the two, who had gone down for the second time.

When Schmidt came up he grasped Carsten about the shoulders. Van Campen was still hanging about the boatman's neck, and by this time the latter was almost choked. Carsten saw that he would soon be in danger and resorted to the only course. He hit Schmidt under the ear, rendering him unconscious and then swam with the two to the bath-house pier. On the way in Carsten was dragged down once by the struggles of Eddie Van Campen, but as he is of unusual strength he reached the pier with his double burden.

The rescue was watched by a large crowd and Carsten received a great ovation. This is the third rescue by Carsten since being assigned to the post. Only two weeks ago he was about himself who ran from her mother's side and fell overboard. He was offered money by the father of the child, but refused the reward.

LIFEGUARD AND BATHER RESCUED AT ROCKAWAY.

Bathers at Rockaway saved the life of the guard and a bather this morning after the lifeguard had been knocked unconscious while rescuing Frank Cryan, an employee of a local theatre.

Cryan had been caught in the undertow and Allen Williamson, the lifeguard, had gone to his assistance. Unable to reach Cryan in his catamaran, Williamson swam for him carrying a life line, an end of which was on shore and a portion of which was about himself. He reached Cryan and after getting the line about him started with him for the beach.

When near the pier of Schilling's pavilion a wave carried the pair with such force against the iron uprights that Williamson was knocked unconscious. Cryan at the time was unconscious and was being supported by Williamson. Those on the beach saw the incident, grabbed the shore end of the line and drew both men upon the beach, badly bruised. A physician was called, and after being rolled and pounded and put through the usual course both were restored to consciousness.

THREE SAVED BY HUMAN CHAIN FROM EAST RIVER.

A human life line saved three men from drowning off the New York, New Haven and Hartford freight pier at the foot of Rutgers street just as dawn was breaking. Once on the pier the rescuers turned their attention to reviving the men who had been pulled out of the water. It was due to their efforts in this line that two of the rescued men are not occupying slabs at the morgue, instead of beds in Gouverneur Hospital.

WOMAN SLEPT WITH GAS TUBE IN MOUTH

Neighbors Found Her Dying in the Hallway and Summoned the Police.

Mrs. Louise Rogers, twenty-seven years old, is dying at her home, at No. 126 Division avenue, Williamsburg, as the result of an attempt to end her life by inhaling gas. There are no gas fixtures in the apartment Mrs. Rogers occupied with her husband, John, and three children, and last night, while Rogers and the children were sleeping, she secured a gas tube and went downstairs to the lower hall. There she attached one end of the tube to the front hall jet, and tying the other end to her mouth she lay down on the floor.

POLICE SEARCH FOR MISSING BOY.

Charles Sommers, eighteen years old, has been missing from his home, No. 11 Stanton street, since last Saturday morning, and neither his mother nor the police have thus far been able to find trace of him. He was employed by the firm of J. L. & M. Jacobs, at Elm and Bleeker streets, and when he fell there Saturday at noon he had $5 in his pocket.

His mother fears that he may have met with foul play. He has light hair and blue eyes, is about 5 feet 8 inches tall and weighs 128 pounds. A small sum of money which he had in a savings bank remains undisturbed.

BUSINESS POOR, HE KILLS HIMSELF

E. Louis Hyman, a Broadway Saloon-Keeper, Sits Down to Breakfast Alone and Puts Bullet in His Brain.

CHATTED WITH MANAGER.

Admitted that He Was Despondent Over His Business Affairs, but Said "Everything Will Come Off All Right"—Then Shot Was Fired.

E. Louis Hyman, who had kept a saloon at No. 333 Broadway for eighteen months, killed himself to-day while taking a meal in the rear of his place of business. He shot himself in the head and died instantly. Business reverses and financial misfortune generally are assigned as the cause for the suicide.

Hyman was fifty-five years old and had lived with his wife and two children at No. 149 West Forty-fourth street. Joseph H. Rogers, manager of the saloon, had been talking with his employer a few minutes before the latter shot himself. He came upon Hyman, who sat with a meal before him but not touching it. He was a picture of despondency.

"What's the matter?" asked Rogers. "Nothing," said Hyman; "just a little down in the mouth over business."

"Brace up," Rogers answered; "things are bound to brighten up and everything will come out all right."

"Yes, everything will be all right; everything will come off all right," said the manager turned away from Hyman and went to the front of the store, ignorant of the true meaning of his employer's words.

A moment later he and Joseph Delgado, another employee, heard a pistol report and ran to where Hyman was sitting upright, with a revolver in his hand. He had tried to blow the top of his head off. The man was dead, but Dr. Riggins was summoned to settle all doubt. The bullet had entered the right temple and lodged in the brain.

VICTIM OF GOUT ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Herman Arnin Is Found in Central Park with Both Wrists Gashed by Policeman.

Herman Arnin is a victim of the gout. The greater part of the sixty-four years of his life has been spent seeking the joys of the table; now he suffers excruciating pain. Shortly after daylight Arnin aroused his wife, Maria, saying he was going to take a walk in Central Park, and left his home at No. 926 Second avenue.

Policeman De Vinne, of the Park squad, was patrolling his beat on the Fifth avenue side, near Eighty-fifth street, when he came across Arnin lying on the ground near a park seat. The old man had gashed both wrists with a razor and was slowly bleeding to death.

An ambulance call was turned in and Arnin was taken to Bellevue Hospital a prisoner. He will recover.

It may interest you to know that I found it consisted exclusively of Whole Wheat, Barley and Salt, and is absolutely free from any injurious elements whatever.

Permit me to express my sincere regret that such a serious and baseless rumor should gain footing with the public. You are free to use this letter in any way that will help to do your product justice.

Yours truly, WILBUR L. SCOVILLE.

VANISHED FROM SHIP FAR AT SEA

Charles A. Flink, Passenger on Danish Steamer Hekla, Disappears in Mid-Ocean and Is Supposed to Have Drowned.

THOUGHT TO BE AMERICAN.

There Was a Fog and a Full Night Elapsed Before It Was Known that He Was No Longer on the Vessel.

During the voyage of the Danish steamship Hekla, from Christiansand to this port, ending to-day, a second-class passenger, registered as Charles A. Flink, of New York, disappeared, and it is supposed that he jumped overboard in mid-ocean.

Flink appeared to be an American of Danish birth, who had been on a visit to his old home. He did not act in a way to attract attention to himself. There was considerable fog from the beginning of the voyage. On July 21, one day out of Christiansand, Flink was seen to lean against the rail aft. The shifting fog hid him at intervals from the view of the other passengers. He was not missed until the next meal-time, and even then search was not made for him, as it was supposed he was in his berth.

When the two men who shared a room with him reported to the captain next morning that Flink had not appeared it was discovered that he had left the ship.

HEADLESS BODY OF BOY FOUND IN SOUND

Arms Are Also Missing, but It Evidently had been in Water a Long Time.

The police of the Morrisania Station report that Andrew Slippery, No. 1168 150e avenue, found the body of a boy, without head and arms, at Oak Point early to-day. The boy was about seven years old, three feet tall, weighing seventy pounds. There was no sign on the body. The body was removed to the station house and the Coroner was notified.

It evidently had been in the water a long time and decomposition is supposed to account for the missing members.

While Rocco Lavero, twenty-three years old, of No. 339 East One Hundred and Twelfth street, and John Bruinero, seven years old, of No. 28 East One Hundred and Eleventh street, were working the dock at the foot of Lincoln avenue, Bronx, to-day, both fell into the river. Lavero was rescued by John Degnon, of No. 104 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street, but the boy was drowned.

PUT POISON IN HIS FRIEND'S DRINK.

Longshoreman Says He Didn't Know He Was Giving Drug That Killed Comrade.

Longshoreman Says He Didn't Know He Was Giving Drug That Killed Comrade.

Longshoreman George Bayer, of No. 400 West street, was arrested to-day by Detective Sergeant Brown, of this city, and Detective Windahl of Hoboken, and held in the Centre Street Police Court on a charge of homicide, pending a further examination into the death of Paul Brock, who had been a bartender until yesterday afternoon at No. 153 First street, Hoboken.

According to the police, investigation shows that the "medicine" which Bayer purchased for Brock was poison. He got it at Banner's drug store, First and Bloomfield streets, Hoboken. Gustav Schumann, proprietor of the saloon, says that he saw Bayer give the powder to Brock, after he had put a small quantity in a glass, mixed it in water and drunk it. Brock, however, took three times the quantity Bayer did. Schumann was asked by Bayer if he would not have some, but his answer was that beer was good enough for him. It was an hour after drinking the poison that Brock was taken with the illness that killed him to-day.

Bayer offers a strange explanation. "I didn't know it was poison," he told the detectives. "I thought it was all right for a sick man and I took some myself."

UNCONSCIOUS MAN HELD REINS IN RUNAWAY

Dashed Along Bowery with Driver in Cataleptic Fit in Bottom of the Wagon.

Killed by Live Wire.

(Special to The Evening World.) SARATOGA, N. Y., July 24.—Arthur Raimo, of Montreal, a lineman employed by the Hudson River Telephone Company, was instantly killed to-day by coming in contact with a live electric light wire carrying 2,300 volts.

An unidentified man driving a horse attached to a light delivery wagon was afflicted with some sort of a cataleptic stroke in Charlton Square to-day. He fell back over the seat, absolutely stiff, his feet and legs extended over the hind-quarters of the horse.

He kept the reins in his hands and his fingers closed over them. The jerk of the reins and the striking of the feet of the driver against his back frightened the horse, which ran away up the Bowery.

In and out among street cars, vehicles, push-carts and pedestrians the horse plunged, threading his way without collision until stopped by a policeman at Bayard street.

It was found impossible to release the grasp of the driver on the reins, and they were cut. He was taken to Gouverneur Hospital. There was no sign on the wagon and the man had no papers by which he could be identified. At the hospital it was said that he might remain unconscious for hours.
