

CROWN PRINCE SHOCKS GERMANY

While Visiting in Bavaria Recently the Emperor William's Heir Is Said to Have Indulged in Amazing Vagaries in Public.

PLAYED MUSIC WITH FEET.

Finally Smashed the Instrument and Withdrew, Leaving the People in the Casino Speechless with Astonishment at His Actions.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—While the newspapers do not dare print it, a story has gained wide circulation here about the weird doings of Frederick Wilhelm, the German Crown Prince, while he was on a visit to Duke Theodor of Bavaria recently.

The current gossip about him is that he went into the public casino at Bad Kreuznach, where he was hunting, and scolded everybody by his actions. He was in full shooting costume when he entered the crowded casino and called for a piano.

There was no piano in the place. The Crown Prince demanded that one be brought in, as he desired to show his skill as a musician. No piano could be secured at once.

There was a harmonium in the casino, but it was locked and the key could not be found. The Crown Prince called for an axe, but did not wait for it, forcing open the harmonium with an iron bar torn from a railing.

He pounded the instrument with his gloved fists, creating loud and discordant sounds. Then he jumped upon the keyboard with his boots, utterly demolishing the harmonium.

Having finished his musical exhibition the Crown Prince swaggered out. Of course no hand was raised to stop him while he was in his mood for destruction. The crowd was amazed at the exhibition.

The proprietor of the casino complained to Duke Theodor, who returned him for the loss of the harmonium. According to the story as it is told here, the young man was not intoxicated at the time of his freakish action.

This does not signify that he is a stranger to intoxicating beverages. He was dragged from under the table at a restaurant many a time when a student at Bonn, and in Paris and other capitals he is known as a young man with such a capacity.

The Crown Prince has all of his father's impulsiveness and lack of tact.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE CHARGED WITH AMAZING ECCENTRICITIES.

FREDERICK WILHELM CROWN PRINCE OF GERMANY

He feels the importance of his position and loses no opportunity to enforce the deference he thinks is due it. The people at large never hear the truth about him, however, and he seems to be popular.

He retains his propensity for falling in love with every pretty face he sees and keeps his father busy straightening out his love affairs. Since his reported fascination for Gladys Deacon a year ago, when he desired to renounce his rank that he might marry the young American girl, he has had a number of engagements.

INVENTOR OF KODAK FILM DEAD. STAMFORD, Conn., Sept. 30.—John Baynes, of Stamford, inventor of the kodak film and other photographic appliances and a lecturer on art, died yesterday in Portland, Me., after a lingering illness. He was 64 years old. Mr. Baynes had spent the summer on the Maine coast.

QUITS PREACHING TO SHAVE.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 30.—L. Schmidt, the evangelist, who has been conducting a Gospel mission here for about a year, has announced his intention of giving up the ministry and returning to his old occupation, that of a barber. Mr. Schmidt came from Williamsport, Pa., where he has a wife and five children, whom he will join. He says he must go back to his old occupation in order to support his family. Mr. Schmidt has been doing his own washing, cooking, baking and ironing. He rented a large house and gave all who applied free lodging, meals and a bath. He supported the enterprise by doing odd jobs around town. He preached on the streets evenings, but never took up a collection nor asked for help.

"SAD MARY" ONCE MORE IN TEARS

Lizzie Myers, an Old Offender, Again Arrested on a Charge of Shoplifting. This Time in a Broadway Store.

"Sad Mary" is again in the toils of the law. Her other name is Lizzie Myers, but so well known is her disposition when the police find her at her favorite occupation, shoplifting, that she fairly bathes prison and court-room with her lachrymose outpouring. She was arrested again yesterday for the same offense. Lizzie was found in a Broadway store, and a pin which dropped at her feet valued at more than $25 caused her weeping. She was arraigned to-day in the Jefferson Court.

"Sad Mary's" record is sad indeed. Beginning Oct. 23, 1886, she served one year in Philadelphia. When caught she went copiously, according to the annals. The next occasion for her weeping was on June 2, 1888, in this city, when she got six months.

Then she went to Cleveland, and being found out, went some more. From Cleveland she was sent to Buffalo, where they wanted her. Five years in the Erie County Penitentiary was her portion of time for trifling with shop goods there.

She got out on bail, however, while a tangle in the law was being straightened out. The bail she did not want and disappeared.

Her next adventure took her to Brooklyn, and when given four years at the Crook Hill Penitentiary Mary vowed that she was being ill treated, but her tears did not move the Court. Her reputation for lachrymose indulgence had preceded her. This term she served out in full and when was returned to Buffalo to finish the five years which she cut short by bail jumping.

Lizzie wept again in court to-day.

GIRL WILL WED HER STEPBROTHER

Miss Sadie Hall, of Jersey City, Daughter of a Former Assemblyman, Has Rather an Unusual Romance.

An unusual romance which will culminate in a wedding this winter is that of Miss Sadie Hall, of No. 475 Jersey avenue, Jersey City, whose engagement to her stepbrother, Benjamin E. Farrier, of the same address, has just been announced.

Three years ago Miss Hall's father, ex-Assemblyman James P. Hall, a manufacturer of masons' supplies, met young Farrier's mother, who was the widow of W. W. Farrier, a wealthy plumber, of Montgomery street.

Their meeting was brought about through the friendship of the young people, who had fallen in love with each other before their parents had ever met.

In discussing the future of the two youthful sweethearts whom, they both agreed, were too young to think of marriage, the widower politician and Mrs. Farrier came to the conclusion that they had both reached an age when they might consider the subject seriously. So three years ago they were married, and Mr. Hall and his daughter became residents of the Farrier home, at No. 475 Jersey avenue.

Miss Hall was then eighteen and Mr. Farrier twenty-two. Though a secret engagement has existed between them for two years, it was only after the CONSPIRACY CHARGED.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—Addison S. Pratt of New York, filed a complaint in the Federal Court to-day against Charles Modias, Emil Mantel and Harry B. Wallace, Deputy County Recorder, charging them with conspiring, through the Western Undergarment Company, with Louis Levin, of New York, lately of Indianapolis and now residing in New York, to rob supply companies of $200,000 worth of goods.

The Court issued an order summoning the three men to appear on Tuesday and show cause why a receiver should not be appointed for the company. It is charged that the materials were procured by Levin in New York through fraudulent means and that $200,000 worth was used by the factory here.

Levin has been working here in the factory since he recently.

The defendants deny fraud and say Levin induced them to start the factory and that the materials were obtained through the purchase of New York warehouse receipts from a money lender of that city.

TROOPS AT THE SOO WATCH THE RIOTERS

Col. Buchan, of Toronto, Assumes Command at Consolidated Lake Superior Works and Posts His Sentries.

SULLY STE. MARIE, Mich., Sept. 30.—Street car traffic in the Canadian Soo, which has been suspended during the disturbed condition of affairs here incident to the closing of the Consolidated Lake Superior Company industries, was resumed to-day without demonstration of any kind on the part of the discharged employees.

Col. Buchan, who arrived in charge of the detachment of troops from Toronto, to-day relieved Col. Elliott, of the local military, and assumed command.

The sentries were ordered to quarters and the soldiers from Toronto took their places, being distributed about the various plants of the concern.

A large crowd of unemployed laborers of the company stood about the scene of the riot at the company's offices, but were orderly. One man charged with having participated in the riot was arrested to-day.

Additional troops from Toronto, numbering about two hundred militia, arrived later to-day and soon afterward a train left over the Algoma Central Railroad for Wilder Station to bring back the woodsmen who were left there Monday when the rioting broke out about the Company's works. The train was in charge of twenty-five soldiers.

POLICEMAN SAVED INVALID AT FIRE

Aged Man Was Carried Down Stairs by Patrolman Brown After He Had Been Forgotten by Relatives.

The life of Moses Levine, an invalid, seventy-two years old, was saved to-day by Patrolman William Brown, of Williamsburg, after the old man had been forgotten by his son, who left him in the burning building at No. 34 Moore street.

Levine was taken from his bed just as the flames had ignited the bed-clothing, and he and his gallant rescuer were burned as they escaped from the fire-filled hallway to the street.

Abraham Levine, who ran a saloon at the number given, lived on the second floor with his family. He saved his wife and four children from the flames after much trouble, but in the excitement forgot his aged father.

It was not until the fire had spread to a five-story tenement adjoining that Levine remembered his parent.

Brown dashed into the smoke and groped his way to the second floor. When the forty families in the tenement-house who had run panic-stricken and shivering into the street saw the policeman stagger from the burning house carrying the decrepit old man in his arms they forgot their own condition and cheered.
