

MISS IOLA POMEROY, ACTRESS, WHO LOST REAL GEMS AND CASH.

Miss Iola Pomeroy, Actress, Informs the Police that Valuable Jewels, Dresses and $200 in Cash Are Missing.

UNABLE NOW TO GO ON THE ROAD AS A STAR.

One of the Most Treasured Possessions of All that Disappeared Was an Engraving of Toodles Ping Pong, a Dog.

Miss Iola Pomeroy, star of "The Mill-tout Girl," which came to a sudden ending in Bangor, Me., a month ago because the leading lady contracted the grip, lost a trunkful of jewels valued at $2,000 and $200 in money more than a week ago.

Miss Pomeroy, who is twenty-four years old, was seen by an Evening World reporter today. "Indeed, I did lose the trunk," she said. "Until a week ago I lived with Mrs. Dougherty, at No. 24 West Forty-second street, and then Mrs. Dougherty moved. I went next door. In moving my trunk it either got lost or was stolen. Why waste time talking about the deplorable accident? Let me enumerate the jewels and the valuable wearing apparel therein.

TOOK POISON IN POST-OFFICE

Former Letter Carrier Had Last Appeal from a Conviction for Robbing the Mails, and Determined to Die.

Ernest Bromberger, a former letter-carrier, who was convicted of stealing money from letters entrusted to him for delivery to the quarters of the Redemptionist Fathers, a year ago, attempted suicide in the corridor of the third floor of the Federal Building today, just after two United States Deputy Marshals had grabbed him and were preparing to take him to Sing Sing.

to-day his lawyer rang him up on the telephone to tell him that the United States Supreme Court had handed down a decision in the case. The lawyers didn't know what the decision was. Bromberger and his wife started downtown and walked into the office of United States Marshal Henkel.

Decision Against Him. "I hear that you had a decision in my case," said Bromberger. "Yes, it's against you," said Deputy Marshal McAvoy. Then he and Deputy Marshal Lincoln formally placed Bromberger under arrest, and he was handcuffed by the left hand to Lincoln. "We'll start for Sing Sing at once," said Lincoln. "No use wasting time about it."

Everything was so sudden that Bromberger didn't have a chance to even protest. He walked out into the corridor with the two deputies and there Mrs. Bromberger ran up to him and asked him why he was handcuffed. "They think they're going to take me to jail," said Bromberger. "Well, they are mistaken. I'll never serve it, never. I'll end it all now. Good-by, dear!" and Bromberger pulled off his fur cap with his right hand, which was free, took out a small package, broke it open and swallowed some powder that it contained.

Wife Fell in a Pail. He fell down in a heap at once and Mrs. Bromberger threw up her hands and with a shriek fell fainting to the floor. Lincoln hastily took the handcuffs from his prisoner's wrist and he and McAvoy carried the man into the prison pen of Judge Thomas's court. An ambulance surgeon was summoned from the Hudson Street Hospital and Bromberger was pumped out. The surgeon said that he swallowed a mixture of arsenic and kerosene oil. Mrs. Bromberger was restored to consciousness and allowed to stay by her husband.

The surgeon says that Bromberger cannot recover. "They think they're going to take me to jail," said Bromberger. "Well, they are mistaken. I'll never serve it, never. I'll end it all now. Good-by, dear!" and Bromberger pulled off his fur cap with his right hand, which was free, took out a small package, broke it open and swallowed some powder that it contained.

CAR AFIRE ON THE BRIDGE. Passengers Warm Their Hands Over Blaze in Floor. Passengers on car No. 2227, of the Third Avenue line of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, kept warm early today by coming across the bridge. The fuse burned out and set the floor of the car afire.

The blaze shot small tongues of flame all along the middle of the car, but the passengers showed no signs of fear. Instead they gathered about and warmed their hands. At the Manhattan terminal the motor-man and conductor got buckets of water and put the fire out.

GIRL FOUND DEAD IN BED. Doctors Say She Was Victim of Heart Failure. Miss Nora Gough, twenty-three years old, was found dead in bed in her sister's home, at No. 208 East Ninety-eighth street, to-day, when her sister, Mrs. Annie McCormick, went to call her.
