The entire elevated railroad system of Manhattan and the Bronx may be shut up very soon by the combined strike of the motormen, conductors and guards.

Believing that August Belmont and General Regt. Hedley, of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, have violated their signed agreement to give preference to the motormen, conductors and guards of the elevated in the complement of men for the operation of the subway, a committee appointed by the men to make an investigation has reported with a recommendation that a strike be ordered.

Those employees of the elevated who were not on duty this afternoon went to Marion Hall, No. 110 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, to vote on the committee's recommendation. Several officials, including President Paper, of the Conductors and Guards' Association, said that the men were supporting the committee, and that it looked like a strike and management tie-up of the system unless the company yielded.

WESTERN GOLFERS ON THIRD ROUND

Survivors in Championship Tournament on Chicago Links Play Under Heavy Conditions and in Gloomy Weather.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Survivors of the Western golf championship at the Exmoor Country Club today found gloomy weather and heavy going conditions when they began the elimination play in the third round. A cold east rain that had been falling during the night continued all morning.

Former National Champion Louis N. James having been eliminated from the contest by his defeat yesterday at the hands of "Red" Sawyer, only one man remains on that side of the draw—H. H. McElie. His colleague in the third round was W. K. Wood. "Red" Sawyer and George Clinegan, Fay Ingalls, Harvard champion, was the only out-of-town golfer left in the tournament as the result of the play in the second round.

MISS PARKER ONCE MORE IN COURT

Young Woman Arraigned in Jefferson Market on the Charge of Paying Bill for $35 with a Worthless Check.

Miss Elizabeth Parker, eighteen years old, of No. 42 West Thirty-third street, who figured prominently in the newspaper several months ago through transactions with the banking-house of I. N. Jacobs, at No. 14 Broadway, was a prisoner in the Jefferson Market Court today charged with having issued a check for $35 on the Jacobs banking-house, which was returned marked "insufficient funds."

Miss Parker is as handsome as when she was arrested in St. Louis and brought to New York earlier in the year, and she was attired in the height of fashion.

The complaint on which Miss Parker was arraigned alleged that eleven months ago she gave Louis Krell, a ladies' tailor, of West Twenty-fifth street, a check for $35, which was not paid by the bank.

Miss Parker was arraigned before United States Commissioner Ridgway in the Federal Building, but was discharged by the latter official that she might be taken to France and there arrested, the evidence being much stronger against him there than in this district.

The high-proof spirits alleged to have been sold by Alper and others is bought by east side dealers, who dilute it and, with flavoring extracts and burnt sugar, convert it into cheap grades of whiskey.

Mr. Binzel said he had information that this practice has lately been going on among a certain class of distillers, but that, with the evidence now in his possession, additional arrests are bound to follow.

BRIDE KEPT SECRET WELL.

BACKKNACK, N. J., Aug. 18.—Miss Mita Herzig, the pretty daughter-in-law of the real estate office of former Assessor C. E. Eckerman, surprised her parents yesterday by announcing her wedding to William R. Roth, of Englewood, which occurred last Washington's birthday. They were married in New York after standing a year.

OTHER LINES TO CUT RATES.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 18.—It is reported here that the American and Leyland lines have decided to cut their rates to meet the Cunard Line's recent cuts in eastward bound rates.

THE boy who is worried about his future may perhaps find that future brightly mapped out for him in the "Help Wanted" columns of World Week. Read the World today.

KIDNAPPED BOY FAILS TO IDENTIFY

to look at the prisoners. He declared that he had never seen them before in his life. That ended the matter. The three prisoners were locked up in the station-house and will be arraigned before Magistrate Tighe in the Butler Street Court in the morning.

THEY WILL NOT BE HELD. They will undoubtedly be set free then. They were all overcome by their arrests and wept bitterly while they were being looked over by the boy and Cuccozza.

Detective Carrao made the arrests because he thought Mrs. Bella answered the description given by the boy of the woman who had charge of him during his absence from home. He also had the positive assertion of one of his fellow-detectives that two hours before the return of young Mannino to his home he trailed a man from Mannino's house at No. 62 Amity street to the house on East One Hundred and Sixth street. The boy himself has repeatedly said that he was kept in a house on East One Hundred and Sixth street.

As Capt. Rooney left the Butler Street Court in Brooklyn to-day a well-dressed but very nervous woman approached him and said she had something of importance to communicate. She gave her name and address, and Capt. Rooney says that he has learned that she is a woman whose word can be depended upon. At the conclusion of his interview with the woman Capt. Rooney gave this statement to an Evening World reporter:

WOMAN TELLS OF DEAL. "The woman who approached me is the wife of a wealthy Italian contractor and was present at a deal which was made between a representative of the kidnapers and the Mannino family. She says that the kidnapers offered to return the boy if Mannino would first call off the police and then give them $500.

"Mannino agreed to do this, and it was arranged that a boy should carry the $500 to One Hundred and Tenth street and Third avenue, Manhattan, last Sunday night. He was to be met there by another boy who was to take the money and turn it over to the men who had charge of Antonio.

"Last Sunday night Mannino did send the boy with the $500 to the appointed place, but the other boy was not there. The kidnapers seemed afraid that the first boy had been followed. At any rate, the woman says, the deal fell through for the time being. She knows nothing about its being fixed up again later, but says that she believes it was, and that the boy was returned through a private arrangement."

TALKED WITH THE CAPTORS. Capt. Rooney got further confirmation of the story that a private deal brought the boy home last night from Michael McQuaid, a saloon-keeper at Amity and Hicks street, Brooklyn. Salvatore Mannino, who brought the boy home, insists and has insisted from the first that he accidentally ran across the kid in the street. The police have never believed him, and now say they know that he lied.

McQuaid and a friend named Payne came across the river in a Hamilton avenue ferry boat last night, and saw the Mannino boy, with a short, dark man, on the boat. McQuaid recognized the boy and walked over to ask the man if it wasn't young Mannino.

"Sure!" said the man. "We have found him and I am taking him home." McQuaid and Payne kept close on the man's heels, meaning to give an alarm if he did not do as he said he was going to, but when the boat reached Brooklyn the man saw Salvatore Mannino, whom they knew as a relative, step forward and take the boy from the man. According to the police this proves absolutely that Salvatore Mannino had an appointment to meet the man and the boy at the Brooklyn end of the ferry.

The Butler Street Police Court in Brooklyn was crowded with Italians to-day when the Mannino boy was taken there. He was taken to the court for the purpose of looking over the various prisoners who have been arrested since the crash in the court-room when he arrived that Magistrate Tighe ordered the place closed.

First the prisoner Galiffi was brought in and lined up with some other Italians. The boy looked them all over but said he knew none of them. Coranigo and his wife, whom Cuccozza swore last week took charge of the boy after he lured him from home, were then brought in and the boy, trembling in every limb, said with tears in his eyes, said that he didn't know them. The Italian, Altadone, who was arrested because he was believed to know of the whereabouts of the much-sought Vito Laduca, was not recognized by the boy.

SCARED AT SIGHT OF CUCCOZZA. Finally, to test the boy's honesty, Cuccozza was brought out. The boy ran into his father's arms at the sight of Cuccozza. Earlier in the day Cuccozza had made a brutal attack on him in the Amity street station, and the boy seemed badly frightened.

The lawyer for the prisoners pleaded that they had been held too long without evidence and demanded their instant release. Capt. Rooney said that the end of the day would see the solution of the whole affair in his opinion, and asked that the prisoners be held a week anyway. This was done, and the case will not come up again until next Friday unless developments in the interim absolutely clear these men from complicity in the kidnaping.

Salvatore Mannino, who brought the boy home, was then arraigned, and he once more told his story of picking the boy up in the street. The boy repeated the same story and Mannino asked to be released. But Capt. Rooney plainly intimated to Magistrate Tighe that at present his suspicions were that the family knew much that they had not told and that Salvatore might be very much needed as a witness within a few days. Accordingly the man was held in $1,000 bail for examination next Friday.

KEEPS ON CONTRADICTING HIMSELF. The utter hopelessness of getting any straightforward story out of the Mannino boy was shown after the prisoner had been sent back to prison. The boy was shown examined for two hours in Magistrate Tighe's office by Assistant District Attorney Courtney. The boy stammered over every statement, and a question answered one way one moment would be answered just the other way when asked ten minutes later.

Adam Schanlosh's wife deserted him a year ago and since then he has been drinking excessively. The police said to-day when they pulled him out of the East River, where he had gone to escape imaginary enemies who were pursuing him.

Albert Williams, who has a charge against him of being a member of the "Black Legion," was arrested to-day by the police. He was taken to the police station and is being held in the city jail.

Rev. Father Metzger was saying mass in the Catholic Church of the Most Holy Trinity, Montrose and Graham avenues, White Plains, to-day when he was disturbed by the wailing of an infant somewhere back in the church. Interrupting the mass the priest asked that the child be placed on a table. The cry went up and continued until the end of mass. When the priest walked back through the aisle until he came to the third pew, opposite the baptistery.
