

WORLD'S IRISH GIFT WAS $1,000

Local Branches of League Pledged $10,000, Making $21,000 Already Raised Here for Parliamentary Fund.

The second annual convention of the United Irish League of America will wind up this evening at Lexington Avenue Opera-House with addresses by John Redmond and Bourke Cockran.

The success of the convention has exceeded all expectations, and the response thus far to the appeal for funds for the approaching campaign in Ireland makes certain that there will be sufficient money.

Charles F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall, contributed $1,000 to-day. The branches of the League in New York City pledged $10,000. These contributions, with the $10,000 secured at the Carnegie Hall meeting Sunday night, bring the total already collected up to $21,000.

Mrs. Redmond was the leading force of the convention to-day, fully carrying her brilliant husband. She carried an immense bunch of American Beauty roses and occupied a seat in the front row with her charming daughter, Mrs. Rosemary Plédege of League.

The platform of the convention adopted this afternoon renews the pledge of the league to the cause of Irish independence, asks for a parliament for Ireland, and continues:

"We assert the right of the Irish people to secure their independence by any honorable method, by work or word, by voice or sword, as circumstances may dictate or opportunity offer, but we fully admit their right to choose their weapons in the battle for liberty, untrammeled by dictation from any outside source, realizing that the people on the living line of the fight for nationhood are the best judges of the policy to be adopted in their struggle with the British and power of England."

The platform recognizes the services of John Redmond, William O'Brien, Charles Stewart Parnell, Thomas J. Clancy, Edward Devitt, John Dillon, T. P. O'Shea, Edward Lavin and their colleagues and pays a high tribute to Mr. Redmond personally. The Gaelic recitation in Irish and English is introduced.

The following answer to an invitation from the President to attend the convention was read:

Hillman Creates New Mark in 400-Metre Hurdle Race, but Knocks Down an Obstacle in Nearing the Finish.

D. R. W. ROSE, OF CHICAGO, PUTS SHOT 48 FT. 7 IN.

Beat Mark for Distance Previous to To-Day Was 48 Feet 2 Inches—Good Crowd Sees Stadium Contests.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 31.—The third day of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition revival of the world-famous Olympic games furnished good sport to the several thousand spectators who thronged the stadium to-day despite clouds that threatened rain.

The feature event of the day was the 400-metre run, which corresponds to the better known 200-yard event of American and English meets. The exact distance by American measurements being 218.7 yards.

The other Olympic championship events were the international tug-of-war, 600-metre hurdle, putting, the 16-pound shot, lifting the bar-bell and the standard 100-metre dash.

There were also four interesting handicap events in which both American and English athletes participated.

As was expected H. L. Hillman, of the N. Y. A. C. of New York City, ran the 400-metre hurdle in better time than the world's record of 6:57.3, held by J. W. B. Tewksbury, University of California, in 1902.

Unfortunately, however, Hillman knocked a hurdle down near the finish, which prevents his time, 6:53 being accepted as a world record.

Ralph W. Rose, of the Chicago Athletic Association, on his second try at the 16-pound shot event, broke the Olympic record of Joseph Hayward, made by R. Sheldon, of N. Y. A. C., at the Paris Olympiad. Rose's distance was 48 feet 7 inches.

As was on his next to the last out broke the world's record of 48 feet 2 inches with a put of 38 feet 7 inches.

JAPS ARE CHECKED BEFORE LIAOYANG

THE line of defense were forced to abandon them when Gen. Kuropatkin sent in his reserve force.

It is reported from Mukden that Gen. Samsonoff captured two Japanese battalions in yesterday's engagement.

From dawn until dark yesterday the battle raged, first in the center and left and then on the right of the Russian line.

The Japanese charged gallantly and desperately in an effort to break the center, and then, in the afternoon, came a movement against the right flank.

Gen. Kuropatkin's forces occupied positions forming a semi-circle about Liaoyang; the banks resting on the Taitsu River, east and west of the city.

The battle divided itself into two periods. After a preliminary bombardment of the Russian lines on the right and center the Japanese infantry advanced to the attack, charging the Russian center.

Although repeatedly checked, they came on with built-up tenacity, hurling themselves against the Russian positions with the bayonet. There were many bloody hand-to-hand encounters.

The attack on the center having failed, the second half of the fight began at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when the Japanese tried to turn and roll up the Russian right. Here also they failed, but only after a desperate struggle, which was continued until 7 o'clock at night.

Reserve detachments in time by Gen. Kuropatkin at last succeeded not only in checking the Japanese, but in enveloping and driving them back in confusion.

In a despatch filed late last night by one of the Associated Press Russian correspondents he says that a report was current at Liaoyang that forty-six Japanese guns were captured during the day.

PORT CHESTER ROAD IS BEATEN

Aldermen, By a Vote of 18 to 54, Reject the Minority Report Favoring a Franchise in the Bronx.

On motion of Alderman Hargerty the Aldermen took up for consideration to-day the adverse report of the Railroad Committee on the application of the Port Chester Railroad for a franchise in the Bronx.

Alderman John T. McCall, Tammany leader in the Board, presented a minority report for the Railroad Committee favoring the application of the company. Mr. McCall's action was in line with the promise he made to the Bronx Aldermen when he voted for the Westchester franchise a few weeks ago.

The minority report, which is signed by Aldermen Gass and Goodman, as well as by Mr. McCall, says that the financial backing of the Port Chester road has been conclusively shown by the guarantee of the City of New York, and the demand of the districts affected is practically unanimous.

"If," said Mr. McCall, "the professional fakirs who had so busily advocated the franchise of the Port Chester Company had minded their own business the trouble was promptly solved and the Aldermen would long ago have disappeared."

DEATH COCKTAIL HIS LAST DRINK

After a Seven Weeks' Debauch Tiedeman Compounded It of Poisons and Was Found Dead in His Home.

William A. Tiedeman, of No. 38 East One Hundred and Twenty-first street, after a drinking bout of seven weeks got tired of all known alcoholic mixtures to-day and ended his life with a draught of the above concoction. He called it a "death cocktail."

Tiedeman came home about two o'clock this morning the worse for liquor. For seven weeks he never had known what it was to be thoroughly sober. His wife pleaded with him and his children begged him to stop drinking, but to all their adjurations he turned a deaf ear.

When he went home this morning he carried a package in which there were a number of bottles. Soon after he entered his room he began mixing their contents for the final drink. A note was heard in his room for half an hour after he retired and then all was silent. The family thought he had gone to bed for his few short hours of sleep before daylight, when, as was his habit, he was expected to wander forth in search of more liquor.

Mrs. Tiedeman was surprised to find that her husband clung to his room at 9 o'clock, but thinking that he was sleeping, she did not disturb him. Two hours later, fearing that something had happened to him, she entered the room. Tiedeman was stretched out dead on the bed. On a table in the room were the empty bottles.

A number of boys have been camping a short distance north of Tenth street, and when Kelly and some companions straggled by the camp they were told to keep away. The warning, it is said, was followed almost immediately by a volley of stones fired from bean shooters.

Dr. Armstrong, who found that the bullet had gone through one lung. Kelly was afterward removed to St. Mary's Hospital, in Hoboken, where he lies in a precarious condition. The bullet with which he was shot is such as is used in a .22-calibre Flobert rifle.
