TWO KILLED AS FIREMEN WORK IN THE STORM

Three Others Injured and Many Driven to Safety on Roof of Tenement Which Blazed as They Slept.

HEAVY STREETS IMPEDE PROGRESS OF ENGINES.

Hydrants Found Frozen and Rescuers Driven from Endangered Building by Flames and Dense Smoke.

Two women were killed to-day after a Christmas celebration at No. 201 Allen street, and three other persons were so severely injured that at first their lives, too, were despaired of.

The injured were taken to Gouverneur Hospital and two were pronounced out of danger six hours after the fire had happened. One of the injured still lingers between life and death.

THE DEAD.

Mrs. JONAS FOUNTAIN. Miss MARY SHELLY.

THE INJURED.

OWEN MGRATH. MARGARET MGRATH. JONAS FOUNTAIN.

No. 201 Allen street is in the heart of the ghetto, but there are also many Christians in the tenements, and Christmas day is celebrated with as much enthusiasm as Yom Kippur. Last night was no exception to the rule, and it was long after midnight before the stragglers had gone to bed.

Let Out as Furnished Rooms.

On the ground floor of No. 201 was a wine shop, and the upper floors were let out as furnished rooms by David Greenberg, the keeper of the wine place.

In the attic were Owen McGrath, one of the injured, and his wife, Margaret. Owen is sixty-six years old and his wife sixty. It was in their apartment that the fire started, some of the others by the celebration of Christmas and had lasted since Saturday night.

The McGraths are poor. Their friends scout the idea of a Christmas celebration.

In the small rooms of the attic were the Fountains, and across the hall Miss Shelly, a dressmaker. The house is one of the oldest in the city, and although the fire started upstairs, it was only a few minutes before the whole building was enveloped in flames.

Smoke Drives Out Policeman.

Special Policeman Fox saw the fire first. Before turning in the alarm he tried to force his way in the house to wake up the eight inmates, but the smoke drove him back into the street. Half suffocated he ran to the nearest box and pulled the knob.

Because of the heavy snowfall there was a long delay before the first engine arrived. Then hydrants were found to be frozen all of which added to the delay.

As soon as the first stream was turned on the blazing building the firemen tried to force their way up through the house. It was not until the fire was under control that they were able to get to the upper floors.

On the top landing one of the firemen stumbled across Fountain unconscious. In trying to drag the man to the ground floor he tripped and fell a flight of stairs. Again he went back and dragged the man down the staircase.

By that time two ambulances had arrived, one from Bellevue and another from Gouverneur. Both surgeons worked over the man while other firemen worked their way through the smoke.

Woman's Body Found.

"There must be a dozen dead in that house," the captain said. Again and again the firemen tried to force their way up through the smoke and catarract that was flowing down the staircase.

One fireman struggled down with the body of Mary Shelly. Her heart was still beating. The doctors worked over her for ten minutes and then gave up the task.

McGrath was carried down to safety all but dead. His wife was found half way up the top staircase by the side of Jonas Fountain, and all three were hustled off to the hospital.

All the rest of the tenants were found shivering in the cold on the roof. They were half naked and had to be wrapped in blankets. They were cared for by neighbors.

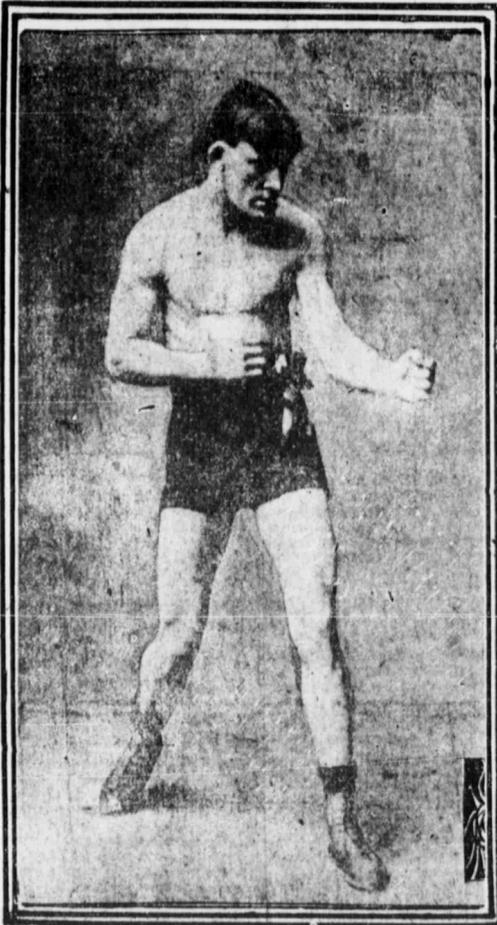

NEWSPAPER CONFISCATED.

BELOGRADE, Dec. 25.—The newspaper "Opposita" came out to-day with an editorial vigorously demanding that the regicide of King Alexander and Queen Draga be executed, as were the murderers of Prince Michael in 1868. The paper was promptly confiscated. Its editor writes articles from the safe vantage point of Zenin, Hungary.

DAISY LEITER IS WED TO EARL

Ceremony at Washington Family Mansion Is One of the Most Brilliant that the Capital City Has Seen in Many Years.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—The marriage of Miss Margaret Hyde Leiter, better known as Daisy Leiter, last of the unwed daughters of the late Levi Z. Leiter, and Henry Molinoux Paget Howard, Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire, the son of the oldest of England's noble families, took place at noon to-day in the Leiter mansion in this city.

The wedding was very quiet, only members of the family being present. The father of Miss Leiter died a short time ago, and although two of his daughters have been married since his death, in both instances the weddings were family affairs.

The ceremony was performed in the large drawing-room by the Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, of St. John's Episcopal Church. Joseph Leiter gave his six of England, and Miss Lionel Guest, of England, attended the Earl of Suffolk as best man.

The Earl's party was perhaps the most distinguished that any Englishman has brought to this country to attend him at a wedding in years. There was Major Colin Campbell and his wife, who was Miss Nannie Leiter; Lady Catherine Howard, the Earl's sister; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, Lionel Guest, of London, who acted as the best man; many other guests, including a number of officers. These people have been at the house for days, and the Leiter house party has been a very gay one, elaborate entertainments marking each day.

Miss Leiter made a very pretty bride. Her gown was a court train of rich white satin, with rare old lace at the neck and sleeves and a high neck. Miss Leiter wore no jewels at all, but her veil was held in place by a cascade of wealth of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids. The great interest of all of the women at the wedding was whether the bride was to be dowered with the jewels of her husband's illustrious house here or after she gets to her future home in England. The curiosity of the guests was not gratified, but it is said that the jewels will fall to the American bride of the Earl after she gets to England.

There was a big breakfast after the ceremony, and the festivities will last throughout the day and part of to-night. On Wednesday the entire party will sail for England, including Major Colin Campbell and his wife.

The new Countess of Suffolk and Berkshire is about twenty-four years old, beautiful, clever, witty, and has been much admired. Her fortune is estimated at between $150,000 and $200,000. The Earl is thirty-seven years old, handsome, a good amateur actor and popular in society. He is the owner of the vast domains of his family, including a 10,000 acre estate, has one of the finest art collections in the world and comes of what is perhaps the oldest noble family in all England.

The young couple first met at Simla, India, in the summer of 1899. The Countess is the sister of Lady Curzon, Vicereine of India, and was her guest at the time.

LEWIS WINS IN NINTH ROUND

Big Holiday Crowd Turns Out to See Lightweights Battle This Afternoon Before Club at Portland, Me.

(Special to The Evening World.) PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 26.—Willie Lewis knocked out Martin Canole this afternoon in the ninth round. It was a hot fight.

The men were slated to fight at catchweights, and both were in the best of condition for the battle. Owing to the great showing which Canole has made in the squared circle during the last few years, the spectators hotly made him the favorite in the betting, and his admirers quickly made him the favorite at odds of 10 to 3.

Despite these odds there many present at the ringside who put up their money on Lewis on account of his perfect physique, and the advantage he had over Canole in height and reach.

Although the men were slated to begin the fight at 3 P. M., it was long after that time before they were called to enter the ring. When they did finally appear they were greeted with much applause.

As they sat in their corners both seemed anxious for the bell to ring. While the men were being introduced Canole's followers went around the ring offering to bet any amount of money on Lewis, but he would receive the decision. It was after 4 o'clock the timekeeper pulled the bell for the first round.

TEN FIGHTS ON TO-DAY'S SCHEDULE.

Not since pugilism was first introduced in this country have there been so many flat battles carded to be decided in seven hours as there are this afternoon and to-night. Ten fights are to be fought in that short space of time, eight of which will be pulled off in the prize ring in the different cities, while the other two, which are to be private battles, will be held in this vicinity. The scene of the fights out here of New York will be Portland, Me.; Baltimore; Havreill and Salem, Mass.; Detroit, Mich.; Washington, D. C.; Philadelphia and Wilmington, Del.

ONE DEAD, ONE DYING.

Galileo Castardo and Michael Ito, who lived in Nicoletti's Hotel, at No. 197 Stone avenue, Brooklyn, were found to-day in their room unconscious from gas. Both men went to the hotel last night. Ito died at St. Mary's Hospital, where Ito died and Castardo is dying. It is believed that the condition of the men was the result of accident.

ROOSEVELT'S NEW SURPRISE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.—The President has appointed W. Hall Harris Postmaster at Baltimore. Mr. Harris succeeds S. Davis Wardell. His name never has been mentioned in connection with the office, and it was not known, except to a few, that he was a candidate. Mr. Harris's name was laid before the President by Charles J. Bonaparte.

SHIP STRANDED AT FIRE ISLAND

Drumelzier, Bound Out, Is Hard and Fast Aground on Shoal, but Is Expected to Get Off Safely with Tide To-Night.

The British freighter Drumelzier, a vessel 340 feet long, of 2,300 tons net has been ashore on a shoal off Fire Island Point since 7 o'clock last night and is still hard aground.

The plight of the steamer was not known to the life-saving crews at the Fire and Oak Island stations until this morning, when the weather cleared. She stranded during her thick snow storm last night and none of her signals was seen until to-day, when crews from both stations went to her assistance.

Capt. Nicholson says that after passing Sandy Hook he saw nothing until the steamer struck. It is believed she can be floated at the high tide with the aid of a tug. It will be high water again about 12.5 o'clock to-night.

The Merritt and Chapman Wrecking Company have sent one of their wrecking tugs to Fire Island to assist in floating the Drumelzier.

OCEAN LINER ABLAZE AT PIER

Colorado, Cotton Laden, Burning, and Firemen Are Handicapped in Fighting Fire—Docks Threatened.

Fire in the hold of the big passenger and freight steamship Colorado, of the Mallory line, to-day, destroyed much valuable cotton and lumber and for a time threatened damage to the Mallory line piers at the foot of Mateen lane, East River.

The Colorado arrived in port on Saturday from Brunswick, Ga. Because of Christmas the crew and officers had left the ship, and it was only after the fire broke out that the firemen were called to the ship.

Because of the snow-covered streets the engines were slow in getting to the burning vessel, and when they arrived there was more delay because of frozen pipes. The fireboat New Yorker was the first to begin throwing water on the vessel. The water caused smoke to rise from the burning cotton that was so stifling that firemen worked with difficulty. Several who ventured in the hold were so nearly overcome that they had to be assisted to the deck.

The blaze was under control, however, by 6 o'clock. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

LEWIS KNOCKS OUT CANOLE

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 26.—Willie Lewis surprised all the fight followers of this city by the way he disposed of Canole.

The latter did not have a chance with the New Yorker at any stage and was completely outclassed both in cleverness and punching ability. The men had just shaken hands and stepped back when Lewis jabbed Canole with his left and followed instantly with a right that sent Canole down for the count. He regained his feet only to go down again from that terrible right of Lewis.

The second round was a repetition of the first. Canole taking the count twice, and just before the bell Lewis knocked his through the ropes.

In the third round Lewis sent the Fall River man down twice. The fourth and fifth were easily Lewis's. A minute after the ninth round started Lewis's right came over with crushing force on the point of Canole's jaw. He regained his feet at the count of nine only to be sent down again when he was slowly counted out.

GIRL IN SNOWDRIFT IN RIVERSIDE PARK DIES IN AMBULANCE

Was Sitting Against a Bench, Half Covered by a Drift, and Expired Before She Could Be Taken to a Hospital.

FOOTPRINTS ABOUT BODY, BUT NO MARKS OF VIOLENCE.

Killed by Poison or Exposure, Surgeon's Belief—Answers Description of Julia Mahoney, Missing from East Side Since Thursday Last.

A handsome young woman, modestly clad, was found unconscious to-day in Riverside Park at One Hundred and Twelfth street and died in an ambulance on the way to J. Hood Wright Hospital, either from the effects of poison or exposure.

She wore no jewelry, there were no papers on her person and her clothing is unmarked. Footprints in the snow about the spot where she was found lead the police to believe that possibly she was carried into the park and hidden from the sight of chance passersby.

Later in the day Charles Mahoney, of No. 104 East Eighty-eighth street, saw the body and said he thought it was that of his niece, Julia Mahoney, who lived with her father at the address given, where he also resides. She was twenty-six years old and disappeared last Thursday.

Riverside Park at One Hundred and Twelfth street is a lonesome spot and during the howling blizzard of last night and early to-day it was one of the coldest and most exposed spots in the city. The nearest habitation is a roadhouse on the drive, some distance off.

SITTING AGAINST A BENCH. Ludwig Hoffman, a park attendant, on his way to work at 8 o'clock found the woman. She was sitting on the ground, her back against a bench. Snow had drifted over her, half covering the lower part of her body. Policeman John Casey, of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street station, was passing on Riverside Drive, and Hoffman called him. They examined the woman and found that she was alive, but scarcely breathing. While Casey went to call an ambulance Hoffman and two citizens carried her to a sheltered spot and chafed her hands to restore warmth.

The woman revived under the ministrations of the volunteers and tried to talk, but was unable to utter intelligible sounds. Despite all that could be done for her she relaxed again into unconsciousness.

Dr. Severance, the ambulance surgeon, who responded to the call, remarked that the case was hopeless so soon as he saw the patient. Nevertheless, he ordered her conveyed to the hospital at top speed. But the woman died as the order was given, and instead of going to the hospital the ambulance was driven to the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police station.

DETECTIVES SET OUT TO WORK. The woman appeared to be about twenty-five years of age and was good looking. She wore a black waist and skirt and a black jacket of cheap material, but well made and well kept. The white underwear and stockings were also of cheap material. The black hat was trimmed with velvet.

Three precinct detectives were detailed to work on the case and then the body was sent to the Harlem Morgue to be held for identification. Dr. Severance, in his report to the police, said that a careful examination, such as he had been unable to make, would have to be made to disclose whether death resulted from exposure or poison.

By the time the detectives got to the spot in the park where the woman had been found a crowd had tramped down the snow about the bench and obliterated footprints that had been observed by Hoffman. He said that the footprints were faint, but had apparently been made only a short time before the snowfall ceased as they were not completely covered up.

CANNOT HURRY DR. CHADWICK

Defects in Extradition Papers Brought from Ohio by Sheriff Barry Cause State Authorities to Hold Up Proceedings.

On his return to New York from Albany this afternoon, Sheriff Barry tried to make little of the incident, but his disappointment showed plainly on his face.

"The only thing for me to do is to go ahead and arrest Dr. Chadwick when he arrives," he said. "I will then simply slip back and wait for the necessary affidavits to arrive. Then when I get them I will go ahead with my man. This is purely a formal matter, and while it is a little disappointing, still it only means a day or so more in New York for me, and a man might get a worse punishment than that. There is no doubt that the affidavits will be forthcoming just as soon as they can be drawn."

"My procedure on the arrival of Dr. Chadwick on Wednesday will be whatever the New York authorities advise. I will consult with them to-morrow, and the arrest of Dr. Chadwick will be made in the manner that they think best. Perhaps Dr. Chadwick will be willing to go straight to Cleveland without waiting for extradition."

Sheriff Barry, of Cayuga County, O., who is in this city to arrest Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick, of Cleveland, husband of Mrs. Cassie L. Chadwick, on his arrival here from Europe on Wednesday, on a charge of being concerned in the forgery of the Carnegie signatures to notes on which Mrs. Chadwick raised large sums of money, had a serious setback to-day, when Judge John T. Joyce, Gov. Odell's pardons and requisition clerk, refused to grant an extradition warrant on the ground that the State of Ohio had failed to prove that Dr. Chadwick was in that State on March 8, 1892, the time of the forgery.

Sheriff Barry went all the way to Albany to get the extradition warrant so he could have it all ready to whisk Dr. Chadwick back to Ohio the moment he landed, and he didn't like being turned down at all. He found that argument was of little avail against Judge Joyce, so he came back to this city and will remain here until Gov. Herrick, of Ohio, forwards him the necessary proof which this State demands before it will allow Dr. Chadwick to be taken away.

HOT FAVORITES LOSE THE MONEY

Misanthrope, Optional and Trapper All Well Backed, Are Beaten in Their Respective Races at New Orleans.

THE WINNERS.

FIRST RACE—Rian (9 to 2) 1, Misanthrope (2 to 1) 2, Aggie Lewis 3.

SECOND RACE—Trossachs (12 to 1) 1, Mary Glenn (15 to 1) 2, Optional 3.

THIRD RACE—Kittie Platt (5 to 2) 1, Trapper (3 to 5) 2, Asst Belle 3.

FOURTH RACE—Foxmead (15 to 1) 1, Ram's Horn (9 to 2) 2, Reliance 3.

(Special to The Evening World.) NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 26.—The atmosphere has so much humidity in it here to-day that one can almost reach out, grab a handful of air and squeeze water from it as from a sponge. With such conditions, the chances are for rain very soon, and with the rain will come a heavy track and the interruption of the path.

This will be the final straw for the Eastern delegation, who are pretty well disgusted with this meeting and its erratic form. Nearly all of the Easterners will go to Hot Springs when that meeting opens, on Jan. 7, and their departure will make a big hole in the game here.

Most people are trying to figure out where the Crescent City Jockey Club will land when Hot Springs starts in, and when the New Orleans Jockey Club starts an opposition meeting word comes from Hot Springs that there are now over 500 horses on the ground and that the racing there will be of a much higher type than that in this city. There is no doubt of this for there are some high class horses at the Springs.

The card to-day was up to the mark, and as it was a holiday, the excess in attendance gave the thirty-three bookmakers all the business they wanted to do.

Morris Heyman still heads the list of winning owners, and Phillips is still in the lead of the jockeys. Nicol won on a lot of races here last week, and is now close on the heels of Phillips. Martin has dropped back because of his three days' suspension.

Rian in Hard Drive.

Misanthrope was again made favorite in the evening event, and there was considerable play on him. Aggie Lewis and Water Fanny, Kleinwood failed away in front and opened up a gap of several lengths on the field, which was headed by Misanthrope and Rian. Kleinwood blew up on the far turn, and Rian took the lead, followed by Misanthrope, who beat Aggie Lewis by a length.

Trossachs a Head in Front.

Optional was the choice in the second race, with Sultane and Josette the best backed of the others. Josette, Vestry and Jerry Hunt made the pace to the stretch, where all three, turning on the rail, stopped almost in a walk. Trossachs then took the lead, and standing off a rush by Mary Glenn, won by a short head. Mary Glenn was a length in front of Optional.
