SCHULTZ, THE COLUMBIA HERO, AND HOW HE BECAME THE SECOND POE, BY KICKING A GOAL FROM FIELD.

SHOT HIMSELF OVER THE BODY OF SUICIDE SON

Herman Schultz Had His Left Arm Around His Wife as He Shot Himself in the Presence of a Half a Hundred Mourners.

Standing over the coffin of his son Otto, who committed suicide last Friday, with his left arm around the waist of his feeble wife, in the presence of half a hundred mourners gathered at the funeral, Herman Schultz blew his brains out at his home, No. 232 Wyckoff street, Williamsburg, this afternoon.

As he fell he struck against the coffin and almost knocked it from the supports upon which it rested. Mrs. Schultz and two of her daughters fell fainting to the floor. Men and women made a mad rush for the doors and windows, tearing the clothes from each other in their haste to get away from the awful scene.

The death of the boy was a profound shock to Mr. Schultz, but he put on a brave front and comforted his wife as best he could. He took part in making the arrangements for the funeral, and sent word to several of his friends to be sure and attend the ceremonies at the house to-day.

The parlor of the house was packed with mourners and the air was heavy with the odor of flowers. The minister had just concluded a little talk about the dead boy and nearly every one in the room was sobbing.

George Peck, the undertaker, noticeably made his way to the head of the coffin and made the perfunctory request for the family and friends of the deceased to take a last look at the features of the one they had loved. Mr. Schultz and his wife were the first to approach the coffin.

Kissed Her Son Good-By. The poor old mother was scarcely able to walk, and her husband supported her. She threw her arms across the coffin and then again kissed the face of her son gently, removed her. She turned to Mr. Schultz and said:

"Yes," replied the old man firmly, "I am going to kiss Otto good-bye, but I will see him soon and give him a kiss of welcome."

He stooped over and touched the cold forehead with his lips. Then he placed his left arm around the waist of his wife as if to hold her from the room.

The old couple took a couple of steps away from the coffin, when Mr. Schultz stopped. With a rapid movement he pulled a pistol from his right hip pocket, and the order killed the odor of the flowers. For a little space of time the last breaths to the floor beside the coffin inhaled a couple of steps away from the coffin, when Mr. Schultz stopped.

FOUR CHOICES KNOCKED DOWN AT JAMAICA

Miss Crawford at 8 to 1 Led All the Way in Final Race of To-Day.

JAMAICA RACE TRACK, Oct. 23.—Jamaica to-day offered one of the best cards of the meeting, but it did not seem to have any attraction for the attendance was below the average.

Every race was interesting and promised keen contest. The stake was the Lynbrook Handicap for two-year-olds at six furlongs, and this had a cracking good field. The weather was fine and track fast.

Sterling Led All the Way. Sterling raced to the front at the start of the first race, made all the run and won by five lengths.

Miss Crawford All the Way. Miss Crawford went to the front at the start, made all the running and won handsily by two lengths from Juncos, who beat Alma Dufour three lengths for the place.

TAMMANY BOYS FOR JEROME.

Hamilton Club, a Foley Organization, to Hear Him Speak.

The first of District-Attorney Jerome's first meetings to-night will be held at the Hamilton Athletic Club, a Tom Foley organization at No. 49 Henry street. Mr. Jerome attended boxing bouts at the club about once a month last winter and the boys are preparing to give him a reception that will sweep him off his feet. Mr. Foley, as Tammany leader of the district, does not view this meeting with much interest, but the members of the club insist upon giving Jerome a blowout, and he had to stand for it.
