

JURY TOLD HOW DINER KILLED A LITTLE CHILD

Prosecutor Opens Trial With Story of Gertrude Hylands Murder.

DEFENDANT UNMOVED.

Young Plumber Shows No Emotion as the Narrative is Unfolded.

MOTHER IS TO TESTIFY.

She Will Tell the Entire Story of Her Little Child's Death.

The story of how two-year-old Gertrude Hyland was beaten to death and her body was thrown into a hall-way on Eleventh avenue—a drab and sordid story of misery and cruelty, with a red finale—was unfolded to-day before Judge Otto Rosinsky and a jury in Part II. General Sessions, where Gustav Diner, the young plumber, charged with the murder is on trial.

Agnes Renaud, the mother of the child, and charged with being an accessory to the crime, was expected to show out the chapters of her dull, wretched life and tell the tale of her baby's slaying by the man with whom she had lived, but she was not called to-day.

Among the spectators sat the lawyer, Assistant District Attorney, Carl Fisher-Hansen, who first agreed to serve as Diner's attorney and then declined to represent him.

Jurors Are Business Men.

The jury made up mostly of speculative business men, was completed late yesterday afternoon. The trial proper started to-day shortly before noon. For the prosecution appeared Mr. Train and Mr. Kroschel, of the District Attorney's staff.

Diner, walking briskly into the room, might easily have been mistaken for a belated juror or a tardy witness hurrying to take his place. He outpaced the policeman who had brought him from the Tombs, as he came up the side aisle. There was nothing about him to suggest the criminal. There was no suggestion of the brute or the degenerate about him, and the cries of the tortured mother and the moans of its mother coming from Diner's flat.

Mr. Train said he expected to show that Diner was drunk with no change of expression as Assistant District Attorney Train outlined the case for the State to the twelve jurors. He did not look at the witness, but he was falling of the long hair during which the fellow-tenants of Diner and his common law wife heard the sound of weeping and the cries of the tortured mother and the moans of its mother coming from Diner's flat.

Dr. Weston, coroner's physician, who performed the autopsy, gave a detailed description of the wounds on the child's body.

Other witnesses gave corroborating evidence and the case went over until to-morrow.

HORSE BALKED IN FRONT OF TRAIN.

Driver Escapes, So Does Horse, but Baker's Load Was Scattered.

BAKERSVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Gus Marzosa, a Centre Moriches baker, narrowly escaped death on the Long Island Railroad tracks here at noon through his horse balking.

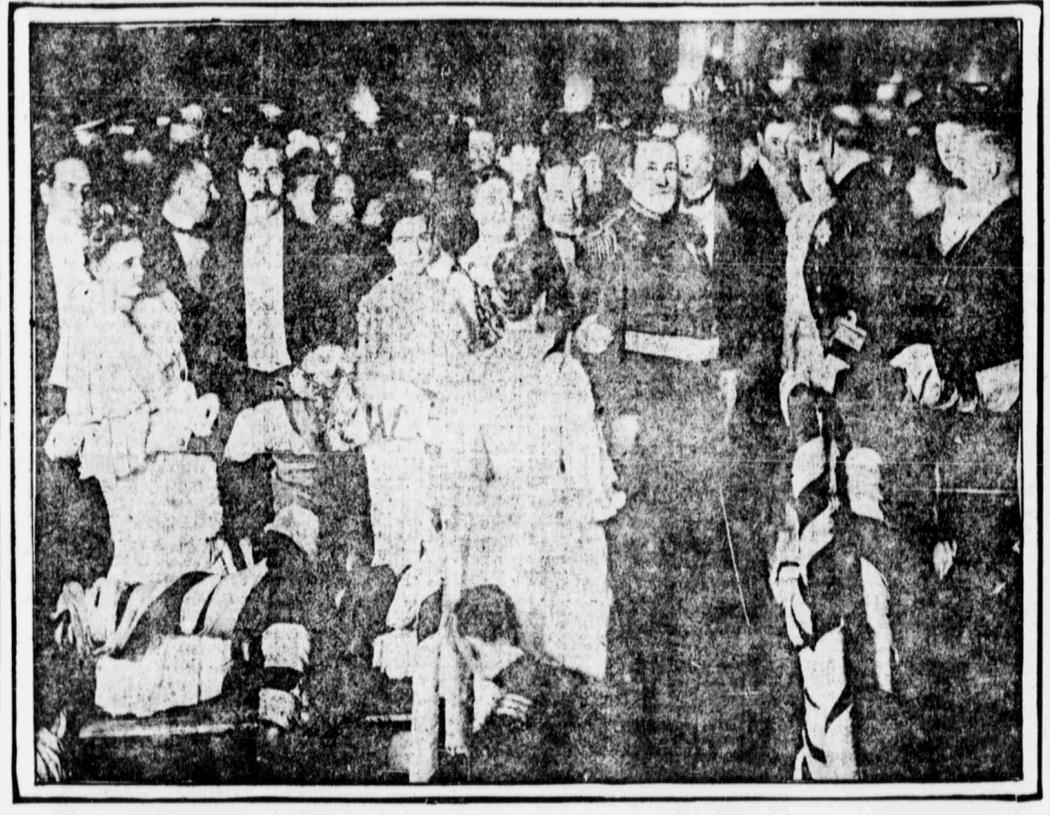

As the animal was crossing the tracks the signal bell began to ring and the horse balked. The more Marzosa poked the whip the more obstinate the animal became.

Just as the train at full speed caught the wagon Marzosa sprang out. A second later the wagon and hundreds of loaves of bread, cake and pies were strewn along the rails for a hundred feet. The horse escaped.

HIGH BAIL FIXED IN REPEATER CASE

Attorney-General Has Krup's Bond Increased to $5,000 by Justice Davy.

The case of James Krup, indicted for attempting to vote under another man's name in the Eighteenth Assembly District (Murphy's), was shifted from General Sessions to the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court on application of Attorney-General Mayer to-day. Abe Levy, counsel for Krup, protested against the change, but to no avail.

Attorney-General Mayer got Recorder Goff to fix bail at $2,500 before the transfer, and then went before Justice Davy and asked that bail be increased to $5,000.

"This is a nagrant case," said the Attorney-General, "and the circumstances suggest that this defendant is not the only person concerned. Great efforts have been made to secure his release on small bail and this confirms my suspicions about the men behind this defendant. Two men indicted for the same offense have already jumped their bail, and it is important that this man shall be here when his case is called."

"But this is only an ordinary election case," protested Abe Levy. "There is no 'ordinary' or 'usual' infringement of the ballot law. Bail is fixed at $5,000."

The authorities profess to believe that Krup was the tool of a Tammany politician.

FRAUDULENT VOTER JUMPS HIS BAIL BOND.

Harlem Politician Notified That His $1,000 Security for Charles Totten Is Forfeited.

The bond for $1,000 furnished by James McGinnis, a politician, of No. 119 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street, for the appearance of Charles Totten, a confessed illegal voter, was declared forfeited to-day when Totten failed to appear in the Harlem Court.

On Election Day Totten presented himself at the polling place at No. 1609 Lexington avenue, and voted under the name of Charles Topper, of No. 119 East One Hundred and Twelfth street. When he had voted he was arrested on the complaint of Topper himself, who was a Hearst watcher in that polling booth.

The police said that Totten confessed when taken to court that day and said he had been paid by a politician to vote on Topper's name. He was released on $1,000 bail furnished by McGinnis.

The case was sent to the District Attorney's office to-day, and it was understood that a summons had been issued for McGinnis to appear and explain. He will be notified that his bond is forfeited and payable to the Clerk of the Court of General Sessions.

NOT A HOTEL BEAT DIDN'T KNOW "NON COMPOS MENTIS"

Ralph De Coverly, Who Spent Two Months in Jail, Discharged. The Detective's Ignorance of Phrase Amazes Magistrate Pool.

(Special to The Evening World.) ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 15.—Ralph De Coverly, of New York, jailed for two months past for non-payment of a board bill of $1,000 at the fashionable St. Charles House, was acquitted by a jury at May's Landing to-day of the charge of being a "hotel beat" under the Jersey law passed for the benefit of Atlantic City hotel men.

De Coverly's lawyers fought for his client, on the ground that no intent to defraud had been shown and that he had been arrested without sufficient chance to raise the money to settle his bill for his summer board for himself and wife, who occupied a luxurious suite and cut a figure in fashionable society.

De Coverly, on the stand, insisted that he still intended to pay the bill, and said that his pride had prevented him securing his release without trial by securing the money from his friends at home.

He was most debonaire in the dock and was dressed in clothes that appeared to have just come from the tailor. He will leave at once for New York and promised to send the amount of his bill from there.

MAJESTIC TALKS BY WIRELESS.

The White Star Line steamer Majestic, from Liverpool and Queenstown for New York, was in communication by wireless telegraph with the station at Gloucester, Mass., at 12:30 A. M., when the vessel was 110 miles east of the Nantuxet Shoals Lightship. The Majestic will probably reach her dock at about 7:45 P. M. to-day.

TWO KILLED BY TRAIN.

BALLSTON, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Michael Redding and Daniel Burdick were killed by a Delaware and Hudson Railroad train while crossing the railroad tracks in a wagon at the North Milton avenue crossing last night.

The Youngster and Rustling Silk, "the horses Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt kissed," were full of vanity and natural happiness for to-day while they were being prepared to enter to-night at Madison Square Garden in the contest for the Waldorf-Astoria $500 cup for the best horse suitable for a gig. The animals are bay mares 15.3 hands high and beauties.

"We may not have won the blue ribbon last night," said Silk to Youngster, "but would you prefer a mere ribbon to the kiss of a pretty woman?" "Nay, neigh," answered the Youngster.

"However, I will admit I was so flustered by being kissed before all that crowd that I didn't do my best."

"We'll be used to it by to-night," remarked Rustling Silk. "Why, I see by the papers that it has already become a fad, and that all the horses who have pretty mistresses are being sent into the ring with a salute on the nose for good luck."

"That's better luck than a loose horse shoe, my way of thinking."

"Yes, but Sister, there is one thing that would be terribly embarrassing."

50 TRUANT BOYS CAUGHT IN A RAID

Miss Julia Richmond, District School Superintendent, Leads the Police.

Miss Julia Richmond, a district school superintendent, headed a squad composed of seven policemen and six truant officers this afternoon in a descent on fifty east-side boys who had failed to appear at school.

Roundsmen Granger and six uniformed men from the Madison street station and the six truant officers closed the park gates and ordered the boys, who were playing on the gymnasium apparatus to surrender.

There was a wild scramble for the fences and many scaled them and reached the streets. Miss Richmond told Policemen Davis and Fields to chase the fugitives. Several of the thousands of men and women to the fences about the park.

When the young captives had been lined up they were marched in pairs to the building of the Educational Alliance, a block away. There, in a large assembly room on the top floor, Miss Richmond sat in judgment. She wanted to know why the boys were not in school. According to statements of a majority, a terrific epidemic of sore eyes is sweeping boys between five and fourteen years old from their desks in school. They squinted as though the light hurt them; they rubbed their eyes until they were inflamed. But, of course, any boy with sore eyes can play and do stunts on gymnasium exercises. The only thing that hurts sore eyes is a school book and a school room.

"I have the name and address of every one of you," said Miss Richmond in a verifying tone; "and if you are not in your seats in school promptly to-morrow morning you will be sent to the Truant School and held as prisoners. Now go."

After that the truant officers rounded up about twenty-five other boys who were selling papers. Each was able to show a license, with papers indicating that he was attending school part time, and was let go.

SPRITED JUMPING AT HORSE SHOW

Sidney Holloway Gives Exhibition of Superb Horsemanship.

FINE HACKNEYS SHOWN.

Reginald Vanderbilt and Harry Payne Whitney Competitors in Saddle Pony Class.

There was some spirited jumping in the first event on to-day's programme (Class 114), bringing out thirty-four hunters in a preliminary test. To qualify the hunters had to take six successive hurdles at five feet. Sidney Holloway had five entries in this class and gave an exhibition of superb horsemanship, handling with great skill two wicked little mares who did everything but turn flip-flaps.

Charles Hart's Fox Catcher, who has already one blue ribbon to his credit, performed brilliantly in the preliminary over the five-foot hedge, and gives every promise of beating the field again. He was ridden by Charles Hart. Eberd D. Jordan, the Boston breeder, is still far in the lead of all his competitors with six blues, two reds and two yellow ribbons to his credit; also two highly commended. He has also captured the Aldie Cup for hackneys and won $800 in prizes. William Carr, another breeder of hackneys, is second, with three blue ribbons, two reds, one yellow and one H. C. He has won $480. J. F. Carlisle has won three blue ribbons and $500 in money. Alfred Vanderbilt has two blue ribbons to his credit and one red, winning $425. His younger brother, Reginald, has as yet no blues, but five reds.

Reginald Vanderbilt and Harry Payne Whitney were competitors to-day in the class for ponies under saddle. Both Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Whitney were keenly interested in this event and applauded the performances of their husband's thoroughbred, which was owned by Lord Minto, who was ridden by Robert E. Todd, proved an eccentric jumper. He could dash at the hurdles like the wind, but would not jump out of them balked and spun around like a pin-wheel. When led up to the hurdle, however, he could jump like a cricket, and finally qualified.

Altough, eighteen of the thirty-four hunters tried were selected for the final test, including three of the winners of Sidney Holloway's seven entries and Hart Brothers' Fox Catcher.

In the first hackney class judged to-day for stallions, two years old, in hand by the side of a saddle-horse, H. W. O'Brien, an imported English horse, was the winner. He was ridden by the blue ribbon, The Chestnut Hill Stock Farm's Golden Robin was third. Ten hackneys were shown, none of Jordan being in the awards.

In the next hackney class for three-year-old stallions, the British exhibitor was again a winner, his splendid chestnut, Dunston getting the blue ribbon. Fire Alarm, of the Chestnut Hill Stock Farm, was second, and J. W. O'Brien's English horse, The Blue Ribbon, was third. Some excitement attending the showing in this class when Fire Alarm broke away from his exhibitor and ran for nearly about the ring, his wife finally corralled by a dozen grooms and made such a fine showing afterward that she won the blue ribbon.

Class 24—Four stallions four years old and over, shown in hand by side of saddle horse. Winner, William White's English horse, The Blue Ribbon, owned by the Grand View Farm, Mrs. John Gerken's Brandon and his four progeny, Gerkenade Prince and three un-named, were the other winners. With them were C. E. Elsie's Lacey, with C. Watson's Master, Mrs. C. Batfield's riding, Mrs. Henry Siegel's Centre, ridden by Miss Georgine Wild; Miss Vera Morris's Select, she riding, and the Piedmont Stock & Farm's Jubilent, ridden by Mrs. M. J. Bieler. Alfred Vanderbilt's Maid of Athens failed to qualify.

The fine horsemanship of Mrs. Grant Hugh Brown, an English woman, who is making her first appearance in this country as an exhibitor, excited a great deal of admiration. She rode Pasha, a vicious brute who is absolutely unmanageable under any other hand than hers. She rode well, but prouetted and curvetted about with such fiery elon that he finally got the gate.

Twenty-five lady riders appeared in the showing of the thirty-one entries in the preliminary for the ladies' saddle-horse class (No. 82). Ten of the thirty-one qualified for the final test. With them were C. E. Elsie's Lacey, with C. Watson's Master, Mrs. C. Batfield's riding, Mrs. Henry Siegel's Centre, ridden by Miss Georgine Wild; Miss Vera Morris's Select, she riding, and the Piedmont Stock & Farm's Jubilent, ridden by Mrs. M. J. Bieler. Alfred Vanderbilt's Maid of Athens failed to qualify.

POLICE HUNT FOR "PAT."

He's an Irish Terrier and Mascot of H. M. S. Cornwall.

A hurry call was sent out from Police Headquarters this afternoon for all precincts to look for "Pat," an Irish terrier, which was lost from H. M. S. Cornwall, of the British fleet now in the North River. It was a hurry call because the fleet leaves Saturday.

In requesting the police to look for the dog Lieut. Watson, of the Cornwall, wrote: "Pat was with me on shore yesterday when he was lost. He was of light color, had no collar and has long legs."

TO SAVE NEW JERSEY. Evangelist Chapman to Open Campaign in Thirty Towns at Once.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—The great religious revival which has been conducted here for the past two weeks with remarkable success came to an end to-day.

Rev. Wilbur Chapman left with his staff of thirty exhorters, singers, stenographers and secretaries for New Jersey.

The plan is to start a revival movement simultaneously in the thirty largest towns of New Jersey.

CHILD-SUPPORTING RICH.

BY WALTER A. SINCLAIR.

(Mrs. S. M. Cory told the Society for Political Study that the "better class" in New York could not have children because they had to support the large families of the thoughtless poor.—News Item.)

"It's come to pass the 'better class' can't have large families. Sure! They're taxed to keep the common, cheap progeny of the poor."

"This is the bomb a poised and calm club lady coolly sprung. In measuring 'through' each birth 'Support the poor man's young."

"The rich must pay cash to defray expense of poor offspring. For their pet bird, the stork, absurd. Remains to loudly sing. Raise kids? We can't. The immigrant Without a cent a boom had lent This infant industry."

Oh, very well! But dare she tell This to folks who pay rent At prices steep in some dark, cheap and aged tenement To swell the hoards of rich landlords? In measuring 'through' each birth Fill money sacks from which the tax is drawn 'way from the rich?"

What man, though poor, who can insure For his pet bird, the stork, absurd. But can return he helps support The rich man's sons in ease? Alas! We're sure the wicked poor Are plotting 'through' each birth To drive, by stealth, the child of wealth Completely off the earth!

MAYOR'S AUTO BREAKS DOWN IN NEW JERSEY

He Hires Farmer to Drive Him and Mrs. McClellan to Trolley Car.

(Special to The Evening World.) NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 15.—A motor car in which Mayor McClellan, of New York, and Mrs. McClellan, were passengers, broke down last night while they were on their way to Princeton and they were compelled to return to this city. They spent the night at the Marlborough House and went on by Pennsylvania train at 9:23 this morning to Princeton.

The accident occurred near Berdine's Corner about 9 o'clock. The auto simply went out of business and the Mayor had to hire a farmer to drive Mrs. McClellan and himself to the line of the Trenton and New Brunswick Railroad, where they caught a trolley car to this city, and arrived about 10 P. M. Both were in good spirits and retired immediately and did not bother telephoning to New York any news of the breakdown.

As the chauffeur did not return to this city with the car, it is surmised that he waited along the road until daylight to fix the wheel.

Mayor McClellan has been seen frequently on his way to Princeton within the last few months. It is reported that he has been having conferences with Mr. Cleveland.

GRIEF-STRIKEN MOTHER MISSING.

Husband Seeks Wife, Who Mysteriously Disappeared from Home a Week Ago.

Brooding over the death of her infant son Mrs. Anna Schütz, wife of G. J. Schütz, a butcher of Hastings-on-Hudson, disappeared from her home Wednesday, Nov. 8, and all search for her has been futile. Mr. Schütz to-day appealed to The Evening World to help him find his wife.

Mrs. Schütz vanished mysteriously. Her husband managed to trace her to the Yonkers street car junction, where she was last seen on Nov. 8. She is said to have been worrying constantly since the death of her child, and it was believed that this preyed on her mind.

She is thirty years old, weighs 130 pounds, and has dark hair and brown eyes. Two of her teeth are missing. When last seen she was dressed in deep mourning, and wore a wedding ring engraved "G. J. S. to A. C. K., Jan. 10, 1887."

ULTIMATUM TO TURKEY AND WARSHIPS READY.

Powers Decide to Make It Warm for the Sultan if Macedonian Matter Is Not Settled.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—It was said in official quarters here to-day that the Ambassadors of the powers would present an ultimatum to Turkey before night as the last diplomatic move before making a naval demonstration. The powers have also agreed that their warships shall begin to rendezvous at Piræus early next week.

The ultimatum covers, first, the acceptance of the powers' plan for the financial reform of Macedonia; second, the extension for two years of the terms of the financial agents appointed by Austria and Russia in behalf of the powers.

It is the present intention of the powers to make a demonstration against the island of Mytilene, similar to the French demonstration of 1901.

MRS. REID HELPS IN FIGHT FOR LIBERTY

While Brothers Try to Prove Her Insane She Prompts Lawyer as to Questions.

(Special to The Evening World.) WHITE PLAINS, Nov. 15.—Victor M. Delano, brother of Mrs. Sarah Delano Reid, who is fighting for her liberty from Bloomingdale Asylum, where she was placed the day following her marriage, by her three brothers, testified to-day in the hearing before County Judge Platt that she told him she did not love her husband, Capt. Albert V. Deane Reid, when she married him. Mr. Delano testified that she said: "I married Reid, but I don't love him. I married him because he has promised to support me for the rest of my life."

Capt. Reid was brought to court on a writ of habeas corpus. He has been locked up in the Tombs in Manhattan since Saturday on a charge of bigamy. When Mrs. Reid came to court, she smiled at her husband, but did not speak to him.

Mrs. Reid greatly aided her lawyer, John M. Digney, by posing him as to questions he should ask different witnesses. Superintendent Lyons, of Bloomingdale, swore Mrs. Reid is suffering from moral imbecility. Dr. Albert Warren, of No. 114 West Sixty-ninth street, New York, said he had examined the girl. He found her face expressionless, and she failed to comprehend quickly. She told him she should have the same rights and privileges as a man, and said she intended to get as much out of life as possible.
