

PAT MCCARREN GETS DELAY IN 'TREASON' TRIAL

Brooklyn Boss Wins First Point Before 'Fingy' Connors' Committee.

FIGHT ON EVERY POINT.

McCarren Says He Wants Hearst and Ihmsen to Testify for Him.

TO TAKE IT TO COURT.

Long Legal Battle Is Expected Before the Case is Finally Settled.

The trial of Senator P. H. McCarren for delinquency to the Democratic ticket in the last election will begin on Jan. 1 at the Clarendon Hotel in Brooklyn.

The proceedings began promptly at noon. Luke Stapleton jumped to his feet and asked for an adjournment of a month, on the ground that the defendants had not been served with a copy of the charges.

"There was no necessity for serving copies of the charges," declared Lawyer Williams, leading counsel for the complainant, Senator McCarren and his associates were present at the meeting of the State Committee last month when the charges were preferred against them. They heard the charges read and replied to them on the floor.

Wants Hearst's Testimony. He handed a copy of the charges to Isaac Kapper, of McCarren's counsel. Mr. Stapleton then announced that he questioned the jurisdiction of the subcommittee, that the proceedings were not in form and that the testimony of Mr. Hearst and Mr. Ihmsen would be insisted upon by the defense. As a compromise an adjournment was taken until 2 o'clock. When the committee recessed an adjournment was taken until Jan. 2.

The investigating committee has no power to take the testimony of any witness. It is the duty of the grand jury to subpoena witnesses and give the first testimony to show that the charges are true. The committee is limited to the receipt of evidence and the right to call witnesses. It is the duty of the grand jury to subpoena witnesses and give the first testimony to show that the charges are true.

There was no delay in getting down to business. The subcommittee of the State Committee that is to hear the charges against McCarren and his seven associates from Kings County, and at the conclusion of the proceedings recently held in the city, the grand jury will be organized to take the case to the courts and give the first testimony to show that the charges are true.

Wants Square Deal. Before the opening of the hearing McCarren announced that he intended to get a square deal if possible. He did not express any optimistic feelings about getting a square deal, however. "Fingy" Connors has proclaimed from one end of the State to the other that McCarren and his associates must get a square deal. He does not expect to absolve himself of charges of party disloyalty before the committee as it is constituted.

GAS OVERCOMES FAMILY.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 12.—The family of Andrew Shelly, consisting of himself, his wife and three daughters, were overcome by coal gas during last night at their home, No. 130 North Bond street, this city. The condition of the father, mother and Bertha, one of the daughters, is serious, but all are expected to recover from excitement.

A broken pipe in the stove caused the accident.

Slayer of Former Senator Brown; Woman of Whom She Was Jealous.

Mrs. Adams Mrs. Bradley

HELD FOR BROWN'S MURDER

MRS. BRADLEY COLLAPSES

(Continued from First Page.)

of two of Brown's children, and of his refusal to marry her," said the detective. "She rehearsed the facts of her connection with Brown."

Dr. White, superintendent of the Emergency Hospital, stated that at one time in the hospital Brown said he did not intend to prosecute Mrs. Bradley in the event of his recovery.

Detective Grant's testimony corroborated that of the other detectives as to Mrs. Bradley's admissions.

Mrs. Annie Adams, mother of Maude Adams, the actress, and, admittedly, the "innocent cause" of the killing of Senator Brown, is in Washington preparing a statement explaining her connection with the tragedy.

She is ready to live up to the announcement she made in New York yesterday that she could make plain the reasons why Mrs. Bradley killed the Senator, and show that if she (Mrs. Adams) had been consulted in time Senator Brown would have married Mrs. Bradley and averted the tragedy.

The career of Senator Brown was turbulent and spotted with scandal because of his loose moral code concerning his relations with women.

Popular as Young Man. Back in the '70s Brown was practicing law in Kalamazoo, Mich., and for a time he was the most popular young man in the little community prominent in politics and seemingly on the way to preferment and honor at the hands of his fellow citizens. A wife and two children graced his home.

In 1875 there appeared in Kalamazoo a beautiful young girl, Ida Cameron, a niece of Don Cameron, of Pennsylvania. She went to work as a clerk in a newsstand in the lobby of the post-office.

The bright, pliant face of the girl at the news counter attracted Brown. He sought her acquaintance, gained it without difficulty and then, with characteristic disregard for conventionalities, established relations with her that soon became the talk of the town.

Deserted Wife Shoots. Mrs. Brown, driven to desperation by his conduct, went to his office one afternoon, drew a revolver and fired three shots at him. Her aim was bad, he leaped upon her and overpowered her. This incident permanently parted them, but Brown continued to live in Kalamazoo until even his closest friends were forced to abandon him.

With his practice wrecked and his prospects gone he departed from Kalamazoo in 1879, leaving behind his wife and children and the Cameron girl.

Perhaps it was his peculiar ideas about the relations between the sexes that prompted him to go to the headquarters of Mormonism, Salt Lake City. He located there, established himself as an attorney, and was then joined by Ida Cameron and they were married.

CLOTHES ABLAZE, AGED WOMAN IS BURNED TO DEATH

Far from Assistance, She Was Unable to Extinguish Blaze.

GIRL TRIES TO SAVE HER.

Miss May Long, Attracted by the Smoke, Finds Her Burning.

Mrs. Matilda Smith, seventy-six years old, was burned to death early today at No. 83 Dean street. Miss May Long, the handsome young daughter of the woman with whom Mrs. Smith lived, was badly burned in a heroic effort to save the aged woman's life.

Since the death of her husband, Larry Smith, a tobacco wholesaler and warder, Mrs. Smith made her home with the Longs. She retired as usual last night to her bedroom in the basement of the Dean street house and rose early today to get a drink. She lighted her way to the kitchen with a little hand lamp and this either fell from her grasp or exploded, setting her night-dress afire.

Mrs. Jeremiah Long and her twenty-one-year-old daughter, May, were sleeping on the main floor, when the young woman smelled smoke and, rising hastily, ran to the basement stairs, guided by faint gleams. As she reached the door there was a gush of smoke and she saw Mrs. Smith lying on the floor afire.

Crying loudly for the others to come to her aid, Miss Long ran down the stairs, and, although blinded only by a thin light, she bravely attempted to smother the fire, beating at it with her hands and trying to smother Mrs. Smith's blazing clothes against her own.

Miss Long was able herself when her mother and brother John and Tom dashed to her aid.

The heat rolled Mrs. Smith in a rug and soon extinguished the fire. John ran to the street and called Dr. Sharpe from St. John's Hospital. When the ambulance reached the house Mrs. Smith was dead. Miss Long's hands and hair were burned.

Mrs. Helen Dwellle had no chance today to execute her threat to read the promised love letters of Adolph J. Davis, the wealthy mining speculator in Jefferson Market Court. When her case against Davis, in which she charges that he is holding her $10,000 diamond necklace, came up in court today, Lawyer Hess, for Davis, obtained an adjournment until to-morrow.

The necklace, which Davis claims he was holding until Mrs. Dwellle returns the $7,000 he says he loaned her, was today placed in the hands of United States Marshal William Henkel. Davis, through his attorney, had secured an attachment for the necklace in connection with the civil suit he had instituted, and having the gems in his own possession, handy for attachment, turned them over to the marshal. The suit is handled in the United States District Court, and Mrs. Dwellle is a non-resident, her home being in Memphis.

When Attorney Blumenthal, for the plaintiff, heard the news he waxed wroth and said that Mrs. Dwellle would fight the case to the bitter end and a bond would be put up for the necklace. "These letters," she said, "are my own story. They will prove that the necklace was mine, and that he did intend to marry me. I have these jewels sacred, and I hate to be compelled to make their possession public. If he cares for them I will return the $500 worth of trousseau I had for him, but he will have to give me the necklace."

Mrs. Hearst last night went to the Cafe Boulevard in Second avenue to dine. When Miss Hearst, Henock, the waiter, showed forth a check calling for 70 cents Mrs. Hearst protested. She said that 70 cents was enough.

The waiter thought otherwise and called in Policeman Hartwig, of the East Fifth street station. Mrs. Hearst explained to him that she had a bill of money but had to be done. She was taken to the station to spend the night. She refused to send for anybody.

Her husband arrived in court today, having been summoned at the last moment. He wore a look of pained surprise when he learned where his wife was being held all night. Mrs. Hearst said she ate really wasn't worth 40 cents, and if she had her bill she would pay it. On advice of her husband Mrs. Hearst was released from the policeman and paid up.

After Typhoid. The Incurable Appetite Must Be Carefully Watched. An attack of typhoid fever usually leaves one with an enormous appetite. The wasted body cries out for food material to repair the loss of body tissues.

If care is not used, the weakened digestive organs may be overwhelmed before they have become strong. There is no food that has the tissue-building and energy-producing qualities equal to Grape-Nuts.

This food is predigested—the organs are relieved of the necessity of digesting it; it is concentrated—affording much nourishment with little bulk; contains all the essential food elements for repair and energy. It is therefore valuable under conditions of health as well as convalescence.

A Calif. young lady learned the truth about Grape-Nuts. She writes: "About four years ago I had a severe attack of typhoid fever. After recovering I had a wild longing for food which nothing seemed to satisfy."

"I tried the best of everything, but was always weak and hungry. A change to a milder climate did not mend matters—food did not agree with me."

"A friend persuaded me to try Grape-Nuts. To my great surprise I did not experience that hungry feeling between meals. It was a great relief and I kept on eating it with great benefit."

"Grape-Nuts not only relieved that wild craving for food, but made me stronger in mind and body—relieved the old headaches, weakness, strengthened my nerves, so that I was easily able to do my work."

"I have never tired of Grape-Nuts as one does of most cereal foods. My friends were so surprised at my improved condition after eating Grape-Nuts regularly, that many have benefited by my experience."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

WOMAN PAYS FOR DINNER AFTER NIGHT IN CELL

Mrs. Jane Hurst Thought She Had Been Overcharged Twenty Cents

Mrs. Jane Hurst, thirty-five years old, wife of a prosperous appearing business man, living at No. 126 Edgecomb avenue, Bronx, in Yorkville Court today decided to pay a 90-cent restaurant bill, after spending the night in a police station. It was all about what she considered an overcharge of 20 cents.

Mrs. Hearst last night went to the Cafe Boulevard in Second avenue to dine. When Miss Hearst, Henock, the waiter, showed forth a check calling for 70 cents Mrs. Hearst protested. She said that 70 cents was enough.

The waiter thought otherwise and called in Policeman Hartwig, of the East Fifth street station. Mrs. Hearst explained to him that she had a bill of money but had to be done. She was taken to the station to spend the night. She refused to send for anybody.

Her husband arrived in court today, having been summoned at the last moment. He wore a look of pained surprise when he learned where his wife was being held all night. Mrs. Hearst said she ate really wasn't worth 40 cents, and if she had her bill she would pay it. On advice of her husband Mrs. Hearst was released from the policeman and paid up.

Dragged from Wife Again. Mrs. Bradley was not through with Brown. On Sept. 29, 1906, she, through influence she possessed in official circles, caused herself to be arrested on two charges of adultery. She went into court and entered a plea of guilty, stating as she did so that the plea was to establish the parentage of her two children. This action on the part of Mrs. Bradley put Brown in a hole, for he was jointly accused on the adultery charge and the plea of guilty made by the woman knocked the props from any defense he might be able to set up.

With the objection of getting Mrs. Bradley to forego bringing any proceedings that would involve him he promptly foresook his wife and took up with Mrs. Bradley again. Their relations were open, and on Oct. 9 Mrs. Brown swore out warrants and had her husband and Mrs. Bradley arrested.

Brown wriggled out of the predicament, secured a writ of habeas corpus and appeared to make him safe from any further prosecution by Mrs. Bradley. He then went to the office of the woman who received him as though he had never been unfaithful.

There was some in Brown's office on Dec. 20 that created a sensation throughout Utah. Mrs. Bradley visited her former lover and begged him to resume their old relations, forsaking his wife and marry her. Brown ordered her out of the office. She refused to leave.

"By God," said the Senator, "I'll shoot my wife and have her put you out."

Waited for Wife's Death. And he did. Mrs. Brown, summoned by telephone appeared with a man, with which she tried to capture Mrs. Bradley, intending to choke her to death. Mrs. Bradley saw the man and, and Brown, handed his wife a

Brave Girl Who Tried to Save Burning Woman

Miss May LONG

Far from Assistance, She Was Unable to Extinguish Blaze.

GIRL TRIES TO SAVE HER.

Miss May Long, Attracted by the Smoke, Finds Her Burning.

Mrs. Matilda Smith, seventy-six years old, was burned to death early today at No. 83 Dean street. Miss May Long, the handsome young daughter of the woman with whom Mrs. Smith lived, was badly burned in a heroic effort to save the aged woman's life.

Since the death of her husband, Larry Smith, a tobacco wholesaler and warder, Mrs. Smith made her home with the Longs. She retired as usual last night to her bedroom in the basement of the Dean street house and rose early today to get a drink. She lighted her way to the kitchen with a little hand lamp and this either fell from her grasp or exploded, setting her night-dress afire.

Mrs. Jeremiah Long and her twenty-one-year-old daughter, May, were sleeping on the main floor, when the young woman smelled smoke and, rising hastily, ran to the basement stairs, guided by faint gleams. As she reached the door there was a gush of smoke and she saw Mrs. Smith lying on the floor afire.

Crying loudly for the others to come to her aid, Miss Long ran down the stairs, and, although blinded only by a thin light, she bravely attempted to smother the fire, beating at it with her hands and trying to smother Mrs. Smith's blazing clothes against her own.

Miss Long was able herself when her mother and brother John and Tom dashed to her aid.

The heat rolled Mrs. Smith in a rug and soon extinguished the fire. John ran to the street and called Dr. Sharpe from St. John's Hospital. When the ambulance reached the house Mrs. Smith was dead. Miss Long's hands and hair were burned.

BOY ACCUSES RICH FATHER OF BRUTALITY

M. P. Brown, of Mount Vernon, a Prisoner in Jersey City.

M. P. Brown, of No. 343 South Fifth avenue, Mount Vernon, a wealthy insurance adjuster, is a prisoner at Police Headquarters in Jersey City, charged with brutality to his seventeen-year-old son, Cyril.

The boy, a stunted, under-sized youth with one eye disfigured apparently by a blow, and his skinny little body a mass of bruises is in the hands of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

Last Sunday morning Mrs. Lena Ramsey, of No. 65 Summit avenue, found young Brown lying on her stoop, faintly groaning. He was thinly clad and almost unconscious from exposure and hunger. Mrs. Ramsey cared for the lad and heard his story. Then she caused him to be taken to the police.

Cyril said that his father beat and struck him repeatedly and made a household drudge of him. He said that on Thanksgiving Day he had to cook and serve a turkey dinner for a family of five without getting a bite of the feast himself. He said he was limited to a diet of bread and water and turned it off so much as tasted the turkey and the plum pudding an emetic had to be forced down his throat.

Saturday Cyril borrowed 25 cents from another boy and ran away. His money lasted until he got to Jersey City. He finally dropped from exhaustion and cold on the stoop of the Summit avenue home.

Last night the elder Brown came from Mt. Vernon to take the truant home. He was promptly arrested and locked up as soon as he reached headquarters in Jersey City.

SUFFOCATED WHILE ASLEEP. William Williams, a waiter, thirty years old, was found dead in bed to-day in the room he occupied at No. 14 Jackson street. The tube had slipped from a gas stove while he slept. He was a bachelor.

MARSHAL GETS MRS. DWELLE'S $10,000 GEMS

And Fair Plaintiff Gets no Chance to Read Her Love Letter.

BALTIC DUE TO-MORROW. SUFFOCATED WHILE ASLEEP.

JIGGINS & SEITER DINNER SETS FOR CHRISTMAS

CAMMEYER 6th Ave., Cor. 20th St.

Mis ses' and Children's Shoes.

High Cut Button and Lace Shoes, in Patent Leather, Black Kid and Gun Metal Calf.

BOYS' DEPARTMENT. Our Leader in Boys' Shoes.

Santa Claus Will be at our store every day until Christmas.

BUSINESS ENTERPRISES. It usually requires more money to "start" in business for one's self than it takes to pay for one of the shops, stores, markets, hotels, cafes, etc., offered at "sacrifice" prices through World "Business Opportunity" Ads.