

KIDNAPPED BOY THOUGHT TO BE IN JERSEY CITY

Police Informed Crying Boy with Rough Woman Looked Like Him.

HE GOT OFF A TRAIN.

Took Car for Greenville—Detectives Looking for Conductor.

The Chief of Police of Jersey City was informed at noon today that a boy answering to the description of the missing Horace N. Marvin Jr., son of Dr. Horace Marvin, of Kitts Haddock, Del., had been seen in the Public Service Corporation trolley station a short time before.

The report stated that the boy, in charge of a rough-looking, short and stout woman, got off a Pennsylvania train, hurried across to the trolley station and boarded a car for Greenville. The boy was crying and holding back, as though afraid of the woman.

Detectives were sent out to find the conductor of the car that carried the pair. Those who saw them said the boy was apparently tired out.

The police are not inclined to attach much importance to the letter received by the Sheldon Detective Agency, in which the writer said he had the kidnapped boy safe in Canada and would return him to his father on payment of $1,000, the money to be given to the Canadian banker by a representative of the Sheldon Agency. The police believe this letter was merely a decoy, and that the kidnapers will endeavor to negotiate later.

On the first letter received by Sheldon, being W. J. There is a notorious thief known to the New York police as "Big W." and he and his partner are now being sought.

An important clue to the boy's whereabouts was discovered in Brooklyn last night, which strengthened the theory that the boy was in the Bronx. Mary, Italian to that borough. Sergeant Dunn, in command of the Brooklyn Detective Bureau, assigned three men to the case last night. These were in constant communication with four detectives working from New York headquarters.

George Cushman, a representative of the Fidelity and Guarantee Company, of No. 65 Liberty street, whose home is at No. 123 Broome avenue, Bronx, has told the police that he saw a boy answering to the description of the boy on Tuesday morning. Monday night the boy, or one believed to be Horace, was seen crossing the Fort Lee Ferry. He was in charge of a rough-looking woman and was crying. The woman was seen after reaching Atlantic City and later in an uptown street car and then on a cross-town car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

The woman was seen after reaching Atlantic City and later in an uptown street car and then on a cross-town car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

Mr. Cushman says that while riding in a One Hundred and Thirty-eight street car Tuesday morning he saw the woman and child. The child was crying bitterly and was frightened. He struck away from the woman, but thought afraid of her. A passenger asked the woman if the boy was hers, and she replied that he was hers, and that she feared that the woman left the car at Eighth avenue and boarded another downtown car.

ADAM JAMESON DEAD IN TRANSVAAL WRECK.

JOHANNESBURG, Transvaal, March 12.—Adam Jameson, M. D., ex-Commissioner of Lands, was killed with twelve other persons at about midnight in the wreck of a train at Alkmaar, on the Delagoa line, due to a washout.

In addition to the killed the casualties included eleven persons injured.

You wouldn't allow a carpenter to repair your watch—it is more of a risk to permit a dry goods or jewelry clerk to repair (?) your eyes. Watches may be replaced—eye sight never!

The services of our registered physicians, who are oculists, NOT salespeople, are absolutely free.

Glasses, if required, as low as $1. OPTICAL HOUSE OF M. J. Harris

54 East 23d St., near Fourth Ave. 64 West 125th St., near Lenox Ave. 442 Columbus Ave., 81st & 82d Sts. 489 Fulton St., Bkn, Opposite A. & S.

SOROSIS

The Best Shoe.

Spring Styles in Boots, Ties and Pumps.

Exhibition of exclusive and fashionable footwear including all the original models created by "Sorosiss" designers.

The soft pliable leather, faultless construction and excellence of workmanship combine to make "Sorosiss" the perfect shoe.

Standard designs..... 3.50 and 4.00 pair "Luxurious" models..... 5.00 to 12.00

JAMES MCGREERY & CO.

Twenty-third Street Thirty-fourth Street.

Rothenberg and Co. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED OR MONEY PROMPTLY REFUNDED WEST 14TH ST

Thursday's Sensational Values. To-morrow's array of seasonable bargains will arouse your economic instincts to the greatest enthusiasm.

Great Sale of Parlor Suites. $6.75 Steel Enamelled Bed 4.98 $60 Mahogany Finished Parlor Suite, 45 $45 500 Bamboo Tabourettes 29c $7.50 Mattress 4.98

Astounding Rug Values Without Parallel. W. & J. Sloane's Famous Brussels Rugs. Reversible Smyrna Rugs. 25 All-Silk Rugs 5.98 Wilton Velvet Rugs 19.98

Boys' 3.00 Suits. 1.69

Half Price Sale of Women's Sample Hosiery at 12 1/2c

Housefurnishings. Folding Ironing Tables, 69c

1.50 Embroidered 98c Waist Patterns.

EHRICH BROS. We Sell More Real Laces Than Any Other Store in America.

Derma Beauty Cloth and Sachet, value 50c., for 12 1/2c.

Pongee Silk for a Coat? Very swell for Spring and Summer wear, and we offer 27-inch and 36-inch Nip Pongee for 39c.

White Goods Thursday's specials will interest you if you want to save money.

Dress Skirts Made to Measure $1.00 for Only

Customers Were Eager Monday for These Dress Goods Bargains. We had 2,000 pieces to begin with—enough for hundreds of stylish Spring Suits—and this mammoth supply was rapidly diminished.

Did You See These Waists? If not, you ought to see them right away. Nothing equalling them has been shown in New York this season for less than a third more than the prices we quote.

Men's $15 to $20 Suits, $10 Thursday from 8 A. M. till 2 P. M.

Dresses, Coats, Skirts. $15 and $18 Chiffon Taffeta Dresses. $9.98

Again: Travellers' Samples of Fine Muslin Underwear. The daintiest and best underwear you ever saw for the money.

Women's $2 Shoes and Oxford Ties, $1.19