

FARMER'S BEST CROP IS HIS CHILDREN, ROOSEVELT'S IDEA

President in Heart-to-Heart Talk with Agriculturists Calls for Big and Happy Households, with the Mother as Guiding Spirit.

(Special to The Evening World.)
 LANSING, Mich., May 31.—President Roosevelt proved his versatility to-day, when, in an address at the celebration commemorating the semi-centennial of the founding of Agricultural Colleges in the United States, he qualified as a practical farmer. He gave considerable advice concerning the education of children to industrial pursuits, told what all the farms in districts where the industry of silking the silkworms, and advised farmers to combine to successfully compete with the industrial conditions surrounding them.

In the course of his address he referred to his anti-race suicide beliefs, and made a plea for betterment of the condition of farmers' wives. He made no reference to corporation or railroad resumption.

In opening the President spoke of the necessity of providing the material from which trained journeymen can be fashioned. He said he had no fear of the competition of pauper labor.

"What the American workman has to fear," he declared, "is the competition of the highly skilled workmen of the countries of greatest industrial efficiency. By the tariff and by our immigration laws we can always protect ourselves against the competition of pauper labor here at home."

The President deplored the tendency to regard education as a matter of the head only—the tendency to think that a position where it is not necessary to do any hard manual labor is a rise in the world. He warned the young man about to choose a trade or profession to earn over the idea that it is better to get a "salary" of $2 a week than $2 a week in "wages."

Praise for the Farmer.
 No political orator, talking in campaign time, could have more skillfully lauded the honest farmer than did the President in his address. The permanent character of any State, he declared, must ultimately depend more upon the character of its country population than upon anything else. He deplored the falling off in the relative condition of the tillers of the soil in the eastern half of the United States and the loss of social coherence in country communities.

As a remedy he prescribed the extension of everything to make it easier for the farmer to lead the most active and effective intellectual, political and economic life.

He advised farmers to study business methods and run their farms upon principles. The work of the Agricultural Department was praised, and the President said that in the future it must deal not only with growing crops but with living men. On the subject of co-operation he said:

"The people of our farming regions must be able to combine among themselves, as the most efficient means of protecting their industry from the highly organized interests which now surround them on every side," said the President. "A vast field is open for work by co-operative associations of farmers in dealing with the relation of the farm to transportation and to the distribution and manufacture of raw materials."

"It is only through such combination that American farmers can develop to the full their economic and social power. Combination of this kind has, in Denmark, for instance, resulted in bringing the people back to the land, and has enabled the Danish peasant to compete in extraordinary fashion, not only at home but in foreign countries, with all rivals."

Agricultural Colleges.
 "Agricultural colleges and farmers' institutes have done much in instruction and inspiration. They have stood for the nobility of labor and the necessity of keeping the muscles and the brain in training for industry. They have developed technical departments of high practical value."

"They seek to provide for the people on the farms an education so broad and thorough as to fit them for the highest requirements of our civilization; so that they can establish and maintain country homes of the best type, and create and sustain a country civilization more than equal to that of the city."

"The men they train must be able to meet the strongest business competition, at home or abroad, and they can do this only if they are trained not alone in the various lines of husbandry, but in successful economic management."

Speaking of the paucity of farm labor, the President declared that farmers can never get the right kind of labor while they offer employment only for a few months of the year. He spoke of the farmer's wife as follows:

"Reform, like charity, while it should should engage in the industry of the home. That this does not mean that she should be an overworked drudge, I have hearty sympathy with the movement to better the condition of the average wage worker, and I have an even heartier sympathy and applause for the movement which is to better the condition of their respective wives.

The best crop is the crop of children, the best products of the farm are the men and women raised thereon, and the most instructive and practical treatment on farming, necessary though they be, are no more necessary than the books which teach us our duty to our neighbor, and, above all, to the neighbor who is of our own household.

You young men and women of the agricultural and industrial colleges and schools—and for that matter, you who go to any college or school—must have some time for light reading. You will learn the root principles of self-help and help toward others from Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch. Just as much as from any formal treatise on charity, you will learn as much toward social and industrial justice, from Octave Thanet's stories of farmers and wage-workers as from any socialological and economic studies, and I cordially recommend the first chapter of "Aunt Jane of Kentucky" for use as a tract in all families where the men follow hard to selfishness or thoughtless or overbearing disregard of the rights of their womankind."

50,000 MICHIGAN PEOPLE WELCOME PRES. ROOSEVELT.

LANSING, Mich., May 31.—President Roosevelt, whose address this afternoon on the campus of the Michigan Agricultural College was the climax of the semi-centennial celebration of the founding of the famous institution, arrived in Lansing at 10 o'clock this morning over the Lake Shore Railroad in his special car. He made a number of short addresses during the morning from his car-platform at small towns.

Special excursion trains had been bringing in thousands of persons since daylight and when the President's train arrived the number of strangers in the city was estimated at 30,000.

The President's train arrived at the Lake Shore depot, which is located on the river front five feet below the level of Michigan avenue. Eight companies of militia and the cavalry were in line on Michigan avenue to greet the thousands of people who crowded around for a glimpse of the Chief Executive as he climbed the stairway to the street escorted by Gov. Fred M. Warner and United States Senators C. Burrows and William Alden Smith.

Railway men of the Michigan National Guard, throned a salute of twenty-one guns from its position on the Michigan avenue bridge when the President entered his carriage. The President was driven up Michigan avenue to Washington, then south on Washington to Washington, two blocks, then over one square to Capitol avenue and thence down Capitol avenue to the main entrance of the capitol building.

During his hat and bowing repeatedly the President ascended the steps and entered the capitol building, where he first held a reception in the executive parlors.

Watch Your thirty Feet of Bowels!

YOU have thirty feet of Intestines! What makes food travel through them? A set of Muscles that line the walls of these Intestines or Bowels. When a piece of Food rubs the walls of the Intestines these Muscles tighten behind it, and thus it starts a Muscular wave which drives it through the whole length of the Bowels. It should take about 12 hours to do this properly, so that nutritious parts of the food may have time to be digested and absorbed.

But,—if it takes twice or three times that period the food spoils in passing, and becomes as poisonous as if it had decayed before being eaten.

Now, the cause of delay (Constipation) is simply Weakness, or Laziness of the Bowel-Muscles.

Want of Exercise, Indoor Employment, weakens these Bowel-Muscles, just as it weakens Arm and Leg Muscles.

"Physic" like Salts, Calomel, Jalap, Phosphate of Soda, Mineral Water, simply flush-out the Bowels for the one occasion only.

They do not remove the Cause of Constipation.

But this is different with Cascarets. Cascarets act on the Muscles of the Bowels and Intestines. They act just as Cold Water, or Exercise act on a Lazy man.

They act like exercise.

A Cascaret produces the same sort of Natural result that a Six Mile walk in the country would produce.
