

HERE'S A CHANCE FOR A PEOPLE'S PARK BY THE SEA

CONEY ISLAND now can be made the most beautiful and useful recreation resort in the world. It already stands at the head of the class as a unique and popular pleasure city. By the construction of a seaside park on the area which was burned over on Sunday a great artistic treat will be added to the charms that lure millions thither throughout the season. The proper authorities should see that the building requirements are enforced in whatever new structures are erected, so that the flimsy shacks which constantly invite the sweep of the flames shall disappear.

ENRAGED MOB SEEKS VENGEANCE FOR STRANGLING OF LITTLE GIRL

Murder of Eight-Year-Old Katie Tietzschler, Whose Body Was Found in a Cellar, Arouses Intense Feeling on the East Side.

Emergency calls were sent to several of the east side police stations late this afternoon for reinforcements to aid in checking the rioting that has followed upon the heels of what Coroner Harburger calls the most atrocious crime in the history of this county.

A week ago pretty little Katie Tietzschler disappeared from the home of her father, a respectable German citizen, at No. 349 East Thirteenth street. To-day, in a black corner of a tenement cellar at No. 203 First avenue, just around the corner from her home, an old woman stumbled upon her body.

This eight-year-old child had been indescribably mistreated, then beaten and choked to death. The murder must have been committed at least six days ago—probably on the night of her disappearance.

This afternoon, on Coroner Harburger's order, Central Office detectives arrested Giuseppe Bonasute, a cobbler, of No. 34 East Thirteenth street. This man, who had already been examined at the time of the little girl's disappearance, made statements which did not satisfy the coroner. Later his partner, Giuseppe Bonasute, was detained as a witness.

Search for a Woman.

Dosens of men are out searching for a woman friend of the shoemakers, who is known to have made threats against the murdered child's family.

"The case of this one," said Coroner Harburger, his voice trembling, "is the most atrocious crime that ever occurred in New York City. It is terrifying to a stork man even to look at this little girl's body."

The tenement at No. 203 First avenue is a mouldy old three-story house with a tiled roof. It is populated by some Italian families of the lower class. Underneath is a six basement, running the length of the building. Here the tenants keep their scanty stores of firewood and coal. The basement is reached by an open stairway at the rear of the house. There is another opening by means of a trap-door, set flush with the bricks in the sidewalk at the front.

Child's Body Found.

At noon to-day Mrs. Philomena Doulin, an aged woman, who lives on the second floor, went down the rear steps to get some wood from her fuel bin. She carried a candle, but she did not light it until she smelled a foul odor. As its feeble light flared up on the noisome berry crate, she saw lying on a rear wall the body of a child—a little girl. The body was on its face, with its arms outstretched at the sides and the garments disarranged.

Yelling with fright Mrs. Doulin ran up the steps as fast as her trembling old limbs would carry her. Her cries brought other dwellers of the neighborhood and one of them brought Detective Gallagher and Tucker, of the East Fifth Street Station. These two drove out the morbid crowd that was already invading the cellar and stood guard over the dead. First they satisfied themselves that life was extinct.

The base of the skull was crushed in with a terrific blow. A ribbon from the child's hair was twisted tightly about the throat. On the throat also there were deep bruises. The left arm was washed. The face and breast were covered with bruises and wounds. The lower part of the trunk was frightfully mangled, evidently by the bare hands of the murderer.

Black Marks on Throat.

While the detectives were waiting for reserves and for a coroner to come, an elderly, one-legged German pushed through the crowd and stumbled down the rickety steps. They knew him, for they had been helping him in his search for his little lost niece, and they made way for him. The old cripple took one look at the little body.

"It's Katie!" the German cried out, and fell in a faint.

At 5 o'clock on the evening of July 25 Katie, the eight-year-old daughter of AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, AUG. 1.

Detroit defeated the Highlanders this afternoon in a closely played game by a score of 4 to 3. Orth was unable to fool the peppery Tigers, and they laced the ball about the lot as well in the early innings, thereby securing a lead which was large enough to win. New York started a rally in the seventh and eighth innings, but were unable to make it last long enough to tie the score. Five thousand persons saw the contest.

Tit, the college pitcher who made a phenomenal record at Brown University, has joined the Highlanders and reported for duty to-day. He is a likely looking youngster, standing six feet in his stockings. In practice he showed a burst of speed that made Griffith brighten up.

First Inning. Jones smashed the first ball pitched for a base, but was out stealing second. Thomas to Conroy. Coughlin got a pass and took second as Thomas drew out Crawford. Rickey muffed Cobb's fly, allowing Coughlin to score.

WEST-SIDE PARK, CHICAGO, AUG. 1.

Brooklyn wound up its second series in this city to-day, meeting the champions in the fourth game of the series. Three straight was the record of the Cubs, but the champions had to go some to get them.

Only one in the seven games played before to-day in these clubs in this city had the Brooklynites been able to beat Chicago's troupe. Of the fifteen decided up to to-day, Chicago, took eleven and Donovan's club only four.

The Dodgers will depart for Pittsburgh, where a series will be opened to-morrow.

The weather was sultry and threatening. Black clouds were banked up, and a thunderstorm was imminent. John Kling received a telegram from President Pullman this afternoon of his suspension for three days for using "profane language" in the game of June 30. The message notified Kling that he would be eligible to play Saturday.

Before play was started a shower came down and time was called.

First Inning. Alperman struck out. Casey also fanned. Burch fled to Evers. NO RUNS. Hoffman drew a pass. As Sheekard struck out Hoffman stole second. Schulte and Evers singled, scoring Steinfeldt. Evers singled, scoring Steinfeldt, and sending Tinker to third, and Evers to second on Lumley's throw to catch Tinker at third. Moran fled to Burch. THREE RUNS.
