

R. GUGGENHEIMER DIES SUDDENLY AT LONG BRANCH

Noted Lawyer Returns from Europe on Tuesday Apparently in Good Health.

APOPLEXY KILLED HIM.

Family Heard Him Call for Help and Found Him to Be Dying.

Randolph Guggenheimer, the noted lawyer, died suddenly at midnight at his home in Long Branch of apoplexy. He arrived from Europe on Tuesday on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie apparently in the best of health, and was expected at the office of Guggenheimer, Utmyer & Marshall, No. 7 Wall street, to-day.

The news of his death was a profound shock to his friends and relatives. Mr. Guggenheimer was expected to spend about two months this summer. He went simply for recreation and not on account of ill health.

When he reached New York on Tuesday he said he never had felt better in his life and spoke of some plans he had made on which he expected to begin work in a few days.

From the steamship pier Mr. Guggenheimer went direct to his home, the palatial Drexel cottage at Long Branch. He spent the evening with his family, retiring a little before midnight. Soon after he called for assistance, and those who responded found him dying.

Begin Life as a Poor Boy. Mr. Guggenheimer, in a quiet way, was one of the leading citizens of New York. Starting life as a poor boy, he won his way through the law and into the legal profession. He had a good business head and leaves an immense fortune, largely invested in New York real estate.

All his life Mr. Guggenheimer took an active interest in politics. He was a member of Tammany Hall, and in 1895 was elected president of the Municipal Council, serving four years. The Council was abolished after that, and he had the distinction of being the only ex-president of that body.

He was a close friend of Richard Croker, and his advice was often sought by the old Tammany leader. Mr. Guggenheimer could have had nominations for the bench from Tammany Hall, but he preferred private practice and the leisure to devote his time to his own efforts.

Founder of a Great Law Firm. He was a great friend of the new boys of the city. For many years it was his custom to give them an annual dinner. From the new boys and homeless youth he was a liberal contributor. The Newboys Athletic Club, at No. 74 East Fourth street, is an enterprise in which he was greatly interested.

Mr. Guggenheimer, the founder of the firm of Guggenheimer, Utmyer & Marshall, one of the leading law firms of the city. He seldom appeared in court as a pleader but his advice was back of many of the big moves made by his partners.

Outside of his law firm, Mr. Guggenheimer had a busy business investment. He leaves a widow and children.

Mr. Guggenheimer was born in 1848 at Lynchburg, Va., and came to New York at the age of seventeen. His first employment was as an office boy with M. L. Tappan, a lawyer, at $1 a week.

The law firm of which he was the head when he died was formed in 1882, when he took into partnership his half-brothers, Isaac and Samuel Utmyer. Engineered First of Big Mergers.

Mr. Guggenheimer was a pioneer in the movement that has formed such a close alliance between the legal profession and corporations. His brain conceived the big $100,000,000 brewery combination with English capital, the first of the great mergers.

He was a School Commissioner from 1887 to 1893 and put many reforms and innovations into operation.

Mr. Guggenheimer was probably prouder of what he accomplished as a Commissioner of Schools than of his success in the law, in business and in politics, although it pleased him to recall that on several different occasions in the absence of Mayor Van Wyck, he was acting Mayor of New York.

He married Elsie Katzenberg in 1878. He was a member of the Arion and Ledermann Societies, the American Democratic and Lotus Clubs, the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick and a score of other fraternal and social organizations.

HER PLEA SAVED BOY WHO BIT HER

Then They Asked Magistrate to Marry Them, but Tigher Wouldn't Tie.

Gussie Hubert, seventeen years old of No. 718 Fifty-first street, Brooklyn, to-day begged Magistrate Tigher in Adams Street Court to discharge Joe Reo, her former fiancé, who was arrested charged with stabbing and biting the girl.

Joe, who is eighteen years old and a barber, boarded with Gussie's parents, and was so averse to marrying at once that Gussie went to stay with her aunt, Mrs. Mary Brady, at No. 8612 Sixth avenue. He then begged Magistrate Tigher to tie them. "Would Tigher Not much. He never tied anybody. They went away looking for a minister.

LEFT CHILDREN TO GO DOWN TO CONEY

Ryans Went Away Six Days Ago and Little Ones Are in Want.

An indignant neighbor notified the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children last night that there was a case which needed looking into at a flat at No. 104 Amsterdam avenue.

Frank Barkley, an agent, was sent to investigate. In a dirty neglected flat he found three young children—Sarah, aged nine, John, aged eight, and Josephine, aged four. The little mother was doing the marketing and the cooking for the others, and doing her house best to get them out of the house in some sort of order. It was a task beyond her strength, for she had finally given up.

Her little store of funds had been exhausted too, and the forlorn household of kitchen and bed room.

To Agent Barkley the children explained that their father, John P. Ryan, and their mother had gone to Coney Island six days ago and failed to return. A man who enters is an engineer who is said to earn good wages when he works.

Robber's Demand Brings $2,500 from Bank Cashier.

PLIMMOUTH, Neb., Sept. 12—A bold daylight robbery of the bank in the village of Manhattan occurred yesterday. A man entered the bank while Cashier Dish was alone and handed him a letter. It was a demand for $2,500.

When the cashier looked up the robber had him what currency was on the counter, about $2,500, and the bandit mounted a horse at the door and escaped.

MUSCULAR COP DOWNS MADMAN

Detective Sheridan Overcomes Man Who Terrorized Shop Employees.

The broad shoulders and the strong arms of Detective Richard Sheridan, brother of Martin Sheridan, the hammer thrower, and himself a weight tosser of considerable prowess, came in very handy at the carriage making establishment of Christopher Schil-wachter, at No. 129 Park avenue, to-day.

Detective Sheridan and his partner, Summers, were sent from the East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth street station in response to a telephone message which said that a madman was loose in the shop.

When the detectives got to the place they found Charles Koimes, who lives at No. 500 East Seventy-fourth street, pacing through the establishment armed with a hammer and threatening to crush in the head of any one who interfered with him.

Koimes, who is employed in the place, was shouting: "I am looking for a man with a black mustache who insulted my wife," Sheridan and his partner followed Koimes through the shop until he was wrestled the hammer from him and held him until Dr. Ross of Harlem Hospital arrived.

Dr. Ross sent Koimes to Bellevue Hospital for examination into his sanity. Other employees said that the man had a wild suspicion for several days but that he had not become violent until to-day.

LONG ISLAND CONTRACTOR WITH CREDITORS MISSING.

Henry Randall Wrote to His Wife in Freeport That He Was Headed Westward.

FREEPORT, L. I., Sept. 12—Henry Randall, a young contractor of this place, disappeared last Tuesday evening, and a number of creditors would like to know where he is. He left his wife and two children behind him.

Mr. Randall had received a letter from his wife in which she stated that he had been in New York for several days and had received payments on some of his bills. He was a veteran of the Twenty-first New York Cavalry.

SEAMEN GETTING SCARCE.

ST. JOHN, N. B., Sept. 12—A number of the vessels which have sailed from this port during the past several months have had their date of departure delayed for a considerable time because of the inability to secure seamen in sufficient numbers to man their vessels.

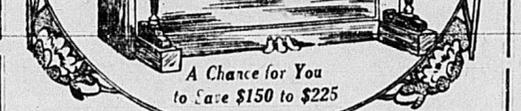

The wages have advanced to the highest mark in years, in some cases $30 a month being offered to men who a few years ago considered $11 to $12 good pay, but thus far this has had no effect on the situation.
