MRS. CARTER'S FUNERAL HALTED BY LINCOLN TRUST

Man Representing Himself as the Secretary Telephoned to Have the Ceremony Postponed for a Few Days.

ABOUT 25 MOURNERS WERE GATHERED AT BIER

Mystery of Woman's Shooting in the Home of a Millionaire Broker Has Never Been Explained—Coroner's Verdict Was Death by Suicide.

At the request of an officer of the Lincoln Trust Company the cremation of the body of Mrs. Marguerite Carter, who killed herself last Friday in the home of John Jay White, at No. 103 East Fifty-seventh street, has been postponed until next Thursday. The cremation was to have taken place this afternoon at the Fresh Pond Crematory.

Mrs. Carter had an account with the Lincoln Trust Company and kept her effects in a deposit vault at that institution. The sudden interest of the bank officers in the case adds another element of mystery to the mysterious suicide just as the police and the coroner were about to drop it.

Mrs. Gertrude White, the wife of the man in whose home Mrs. Carter killed herself, arranged for the funeral to be held at 12 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour there were about twenty-five persons gathered in the chapel of the Stephen Merritt Burial Co. at Eighth street and Bleecker street.

Banked about the coffin many floral tributes from the dead woman's friends, and among them was one from Mrs. White. The mourners were heavily veiled, and as Mrs. Carter was widely divergent social circles, did not appear to be well acquainted with each other.

"All Our Hopes Buried," Wife Wrote, "We Have Deemed It Advisable to Disappear."

A young son in whose career and ambitions Maurice and Anna Remi had centered all that life held for them died five weeks ago. To-day Remi and his wife were found dead in their flat at No. 1068 Boston Road, the result of a suicide.

They had gone about their dual act of self-destruction with extreme care. In the preparations for the end the wife was the doer for the husband was blind. It was he, however, who planned in order that their deaths might not be misunderstood, that their funerals might be provided for and that their wishes concerning their property might be plain.

Maurice Remi was fifty-two years old. Up to the time of the death of the Marcelline French Baking Company, at Eighth avenue and Thirteenth street, the failure of his sight compelled him to give up this position.

At about the same time, his only son, Victor Frederick, eighteen years old, and a student at Columbia University, contracted tuberculosis. The boy was sent to the mountains, but he died on Aug. 11.

The Remis lived then at No. E West One Hundred and Twelfth street. Recollections of their dead boy were continually recalled by their residence and on Sept. 1, at the suggestion of their good friend, Max Landau, of No. 10 Nassau street, they took a flat in an apartment-house at the Boston Road address, which he owns.

They thought it the only way. In their solitude and grief the blind old man was the independent company, and that there were no troubles made for the independent companies except those which arose from natural causes.

William G. Rockefeller and many of the other directors of the Oil Company officials were present expecting to be called on in the investigation of the contract, alleged as unlawful, existing between the trust and the Tidewater company.

The Ten-Year Guarantee. Wesley H. Tilford, treasurer of the Oil Trust, was on the stand when the hearing was resumed.

Mr. Kellogg, for the Government, reverted to the sale of the Manhattan Oil Company. He wanted to know if protection was not guaranteed to the Indianapolis Gas Company and the Chicago, when these concerns were taken over by the Indiana branch of the trust.

Mr. Tilford said he knew of a ten-year guarantee. "Do you know that the consideration of the sale of the Manhattan Oil Company to the Standard Oil was a guarantee that should be fulfilled for a period of ten years to Messrs. Benedict and Brady?"

"No, sir, I do not." "You never heard of any such contract, did you?"

"These certain guarantees were made by contracts entered into by the oil trust which other companies could not offer—is that or so?"

"It might be."

ROOSEVELT MAY YET INTERFERE IN TELEGRAPH STRIKE

Strikers' Representatives, It Is Said, Expect Him to Side With the Men.

That President Roosevelt intends to take a hand in the telegraph strike seems certain, from information obtained today, despite an evasive denial by Daniel L. Russell, chairman of the telegraphers' local strike committee.

When asked about the report from Chicago quoting National President Samuel J. Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, to the effect that President Roosevelt would intervene, Mr. Russell said:

"I have no knowledge of President Roosevelt's attitude, and no way of knowing whether or not he intends taking action in this matter. I don't know where President Small got his information, and I prefer to believe, until the contrary can be positively shown, that he was not correctly quoted."

After reaffirming his denial of the story that he and Deputy National President Percy Thomas made a trip to Oyster Bay to see the President, Mr. Russell refused to discuss the incident further.

It was learned from another reliable source that a demand was made upon the President to interfere on legal grounds. It was said that the violation of Oyster Bay took a great mass of evidence with them, and their appearance after leaving the President indicated that they were satisfied with the result of their visit.

ASK SHERIFF TO HEAD OFF RIOTS AT PRIMARIES

Special Deputies Requested in Districts Where Fights Are Close.

Daniel F. Colahan, R. Burnham Moffatt, former Judge Edward Brown, Joseph F. Mulqueen and Robert L. Sheriff Hayes, after hearing the views of the deputation, said the matter would be broken up and the speaker's wife, the father of the two children locked in cells on the charge of matricide, carried a plain black casket to the burial ground.

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—The third dramatic scene in the Zion City tragedy, the death of Mrs. Letitia Greenwald, passed today almost without attention. The first occurred last Wednesday, when the old woman was killed by unbelievable tortures, the second was the midnight coroner's inquest, when a son told of the part he and his sister played in the crime.

ORDERS LAWYER TO RETURN FEE

Magistrate Wahle Denounces and Excludes Attorney From Court.

In the Yorkville Police Court this afternoon Magistrate Wahle ordered Carl Wiesbader, a lawyer practicing in his court, to make restitution of a fee of $50, and requested him to keep out of the court when it is his turn to sit as Magistrate there.

According to what Magistrate Wahle told the lawyer, the latter had secured from Martha Klein and her husband, William of No. 106 Second avenue, a bankbook, showing $50 in deposits, against which the lawyer had drawn $50. The two were looked up on a charge of felonious assault for examination on account of injuries received by their son Kurt. He was shot, it

"I have no right to exclude you entirely from this court, but when you are summoned to appear, I will request you to keep entirely away from here." "The last time I sat here you demanded of a woman whom you stopped in the corridor her jewelry in return for a summons obtained for her. I want you to return that jewelry to these people and to place that amount of money back on the bank from which you drew it out. And I want you to do it speedily—just as soon, in fact, as you can.
