

ARCH OF SWORDS FOR MISS BREESE, SOLDIER'S BRIDE

Wedding of New York Belle and Lord Innes-Ker, Novel, Attracts London.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The first big social gathering of the autumn season, bringing back from the country hundreds of society people, occurred at St. George's Church, Hanover Square, this afternoon, when Miss Anna Breesse, daughter of Mrs. Harry Higgins by her first husband, the late W. L. Breesse of New York, became the bride of Lord Alastair Robert Innes-Ker, brother and heir presumptive of the Duke of Roxburghe.

Over a thousand invitations were sent out, but there were a number of absentees, including members of the royal family, who are in mourning for the Grand Duke Frederick of Baden. The congregation was representative of the aristocracy of Great Britain, and included many American residents of London and Ambassador Whitelaw Reid and the staff of the embassy.

St. George's Church, which has been the scene of many fashionable weddings, never looked prettier. The interior was decorated with white flowers, while non-commissioned officers and troopers of the Royal Horse Guards, of which regiment the bridegroom is a lieutenant, lined the aisles; their brilliant uniforms and gleaming accoutrements lending color to the gathering.

As the bride entered the church escorted by her stepfather, H. V. Higgins, a non-commissioned officer, handed her a bunch of flowers, which she carried and wore in the valley tied with the regimental colors, a present from the non-commissioned officers and troopers of Lieut. Innes-Ker's troop.

Miss Breesse wore a gown of soft ivory satin draped with old lace. She was attended by seven dainty courtiers: Misses Lady Joan Capell, Misses Orr Ewing and Angela Villiers, children, and Lady Evelyn Innes-Ker and Jean Reid and Miss Post, of New York, who were bridesmaids. Their costumes were of pale golden silk, draped with chiffon—the young ladies wearing large white hats and the children wore Dutch bonnets. They all carried "Granny" muffs instead of bouquets.

Canon Sheppard, sub-dean of the Chapel Royal, performed the wedding service, assisted by the Rev. David Anderson, rector of St. George's. Lord Robert Innes-Ker, a lieutenant in the Royal Irish Guards, supported his bride.

At the conclusion of the service the Royal Horse Guards formed up about the porch of the church and the bride and groom proceeded to their carriage under an arch of crossed swords.

The wedding reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Higgins, in Upper Berkeley street, was a hardly less notable function, the distinguished guests and the congregation present in the church passing more than an hour in viewing the wonderful array of presents. These included a diamond necklace from the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, a pink enamel and gold parasol handle from Princess Patricia of Connaught, a gold box from Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck, a diamond tiara from Mrs. Higgins, and a diamond necklace from the bride's sister, Mrs. Thompson.

The Duke and Duchess of Roxburghe and other British relatives and friends and American relatives and friends of Miss Breesse sent hundreds of other costly articles of jewelry and plate.

TO SAVE CENTRAL PARK FROM RUIN

Mayor McClellan Says That City Will Furnish the Necessary Funds.

Mayor McClellan is prepared to take definite action with reference to the long demanded restoration of Central Park, where trees and shrubbery are in a condition of decay, the surface soil lacking in quality and the ponds and lakes comparatively stagnant.

Commissioner Parsons wants more than $2,000,000 for the work, but, of course, that sum will cover a period of several years while the changes are being made.

"We are in want of money for that improvement," he said. "The Central Park should be preserved by all means. If its beauty is threatened by the ravages of time the city will see to it that adequate funds are raised for its rehabilitation."

The matter may come up to-morrow for official action by the Board of Estimate at the regular Friday meeting.

STREET SWALLOWS WAGON TO THE HUB

Pavement Yawns and Holds Vehicle and Horses Three Hours.

Financiers were treated to the unusual spectacle of an ice wagon sunk in the pavement up to the hub of the wheels, in front of No. 35 Cedar street, when they arrived at their place of business to-day. The wagon had fallen into a crevice in the roadway, blocking traffic and congesting the district about Wall and William streets so thickly that detours were necessary to all vehicles.

The wagon, belonging to the Knickerbocker Ice Company, had pressed so heavily on the surface of the street that it "ave away." Before the street was cleared a volume of steam shot into the air from a crack in the pavement, startling the horses and bringing a great crowd to the spot. As they watched the heavy wagon sank into the ground, holding the horses chained to the pole and preventing them from breaking away.

Three hours later the wagon was raised and the street filled in. A steam pile leading through the narrow thoroughfare had eaten away the foundation of the street, leaving only a crust. No damage other than some broken spokes of the wheels and the holding up of traffic resulted.

MUNYON'S 3X RHEUMATISM CURE. PATERSON, N. J., DEL. TO THE CHURCH, a freight train conductor on the Lackawanna Railroad, and for thirty years an employee of the road, met death at South Paterson last night. He had run his train onto a siding to pick up some empty cars and was standing by the main track when he was hit by the locomotive of a train going thirty miles an hour.
