

MRS. BRADLEY'S MOTHER TELLS OF HURT TO DAUGHTER

Mrs. Madison on Stand Says Prisoner's Head Suffered from Blow of Hoe.

TRY TO PROVE INSANITY.

Witnesses Say Prisoner Was in a Pitiable State After She Shot Brown.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Mrs. Annie Bradley, who was again much depressed during today's session of her trial for the murder of ex-Senator Brown, was deeply affected this afternoon when Mrs. Mary Madison, her mother, took the witness stand.

Mrs. Madison was extremely nervous and gave her answers in a low, jerky way. She said that until her daughter was sixteen or seventeen years old she suffered extremely with headaches as the result of the blow Mrs. Bradley watched her mother closely part of the time and again and again covered her eyes with her hands. As her mother left the stand after a brief examination Mrs. Bradley's eye followed her until Mrs. Madison again took her seat in the court room.

The court room was full of witnesses for the defense, several having come all the way from Mrs. Bradley's former home in Salt Lake City for this purpose.

The prisoner, who is evidently on the verge of a breakdown, made a brave effort to maintain her composure and the presence of friends and the testimony in her favor had a sustaining influence.

When she came into court this morning she looked brighter than she had any day since the trial began, and chattered with her lawyers for some minutes, but as the day wore on she became depressed, and during the testimony of three doctors called she sat with bowed head and hands clasped together in her lap.

Max Brown, son of the murdered man, was in court early, and remained through the morning and afternoon session. He sat back among the spectators, but paid strict attention to the testimony of each witness. He will remain in Washington until the end of the trial. The usual throng of women were present at the trial to-day.

Reporters Testify. A number of Washington newspaper reporters who saw Mrs. Bradley on the night of the shooting were called to the stand as the first witnesses for the defense. Their testimony was mainly in support of the theory that Mrs. Bradley was insane when she shot Brown.

Judge Powers, of counsel for the prisoner, took charge of the direct examination. The first witness was James Hay, Jr., a reporter for the Washington Times, who saw Mrs. Bradley on the night of the shooting. He said the woman had given him the impression of being under a severe mental strain.

"I asked her if she came here to kill Brown and she said 'No,'" said the witness.

"I couldn't say whether she was sane or insane," continued Mr. Hay, "but she seemed to be in a terrible state, both physically and mentally."

The District Attorney put the witness through a rigid cross examination. Charles A. Cottrell, of the Associated Press, testified similarly to Mr. Hay and said that Mrs. Bradley told him of her trip across the Continent.

Jury Will Hear Story of Mrs. Bradley's Life On the Stand She Will Tell Tale of Cruelty and Humiliation That Led to Slaying of Ex-Senator Brown.

By Nixola Greeley-Smith.

NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH

Mrs. Annie M. Bradley, her lawyers have announced, will take the stand on her own behalf and tell in her own words the story of cruelty and humiliation which led her to take the life of Senator Brown. Her appearance as a witness will mark the crisis in the sensational trial, and it may come any day this week.

The determination to make her a witness in her own behalf must have been sudden. For when I last talked with Mrs. Bradley she did not know whether or not she was to go upon the stand.

"I wish to," she said. "I would like to tell everything, but it will be as my lawyers decide."

Former Deputy Attorney-General Frank White, who was appointed temporary receiver of the Hamilton Bank on Saturday said to-day, at Attorney-General Jackson's office, that he had received information to the effect that numerous loans had been made by the Hamilton Bank.

"From the date on which the bank closed its doors," said Mr. White, "President Montgomery and James A. Gifford, counsel for the institution, have been with others, urging that the appointment of a receiver be deferred and promising that they would present a plan for rehabilitation."

Superintendent Clark Williams, of the State Banking Department, was willing to do what he could, in reason, to facilitate matters in this respect, as he granted them time.

"The time came for them to make a report on the matter, but they had nothing satisfactory to report, and further time was granted them with the same result. They frequently said that they would get persons or institutions to put up the amount of money necessary to resume business."

Could Not Give Names. Finally Mr. Williams asked for the names of the individuals or institutions who would do this. The names were not forthcoming. Then he asked them to submit a plan and this they did not do. He told them that they would have to do something definite by a certain date last week. They did nothing along the lines indicated by that time and the result was the appointment of a temporary receiver.

Have you heard of anything connected with the bank's business dealings that would lead to the belief that overloans similar to those made in some Brooklyn institutions were made at the Hamilton Bank? Mr. White was asked.

"As yet I do not know officially anything that would be criminal in itself," said Mr. White. However, I have been informed of numerous loans being made by the Hamilton, and this matter will receive prompt attention."

Mr. White was asked to give some idea of the extent of the numerous loans alluded to and to state to whom they had been made. This he declined to do until he had gone further into the matter.

About the Other Banks. It was learned further at the Attorney-General's office that while no lawsuits have been brought to light in connection with any other institutions in Manhattan that had closed their doors, other circumstances leading up to the appointment of receivers were not disclosed.

In such cases committees of officers or directors, it was said, called upon the State Banking Superintendent with great frequency and in each case proposed some "flexible arrangements" of loans were made, which it had evidently been impossible for the officials to carry out.

Supt. Williams listened until he was tired of listening and finally said: "I am not sure that the names of all persons must be in with the names of the persons or institutions willing to help out. As these were not forthcoming, the matter was referred by Supt. Clark Williams to Attorney-General Jackson."

"I believe that the other institutions of this city, Brooklyn and Queens, have thoroughly sound," said the Attorney-General.

Issue of Panama Canal Bonds. The Panama Canal bonds will be used for the basis of additional bank notes, while the money derived from the sale of the certificates will be placed in the National banks, particularly in the South and West. This will enable farmers to move crops to market.

In taking this action President Roosevelt is furthering in the direction of supreme government control, without special authorization from Congress, than at any previous time during his incumbency. His power to sell bonds on account of the Panama Canal is not questioned, but the issuance of certificates of indebtedness will undoubtedly be characterized as revolutionary. These certificates will be issued under an act approved June 12, 1898, relating to raising funds for the Spanish-American war. Apparently Congress intended that it should be invoked for any other purpose, although the specific limitation was omitted. The phrasing is given to issue certificates of indebtedness as a separate paragraph furnishes technical authority of which the President has taken advantage.

HAMILTON BANK, IS SAID, MADE USURIOUS LOANS

Told Banking Department They Could Get Assistance, But Failed to Obtain It.

Reassures the Public. President Roosevelt, in a letter to Secretary Cortelyou approving the latter's suggestions regarding the bond issue, advised the people to refrain from panicking. He stated that the prosperity of the country depends upon a substantial basis, declares that the banks are solvent and are not to be withdrawn their funds from the country, which he has heard and will place their money in the hands of the Government. He stated that the bond issue is a temporary measure, and that the financial condition will improve as the Government issues the bonds. BOROUGH BANK IS FIRST TO BE PUT UNDER PROBE

Kings County Grand Jury Begins Investigation of Alleged Acts of Officials.

HUNT FOR QUEER CHECK

It Was for $300,000 and Figured in Organization of International Trust.

(Special to The Evening World.)

The Kings County Grand Jury began to-day an investigation into alleged illegal acts on the part of certain officials and directors of the Borough Bank of Brooklyn. When this institution is closed of the Grand Jury will take up the International Trust Company which was recently organized by men interested in the Borough Bank and the Jenkins Trust Company. Both of these institutions are in the hands of receivers.

Papers on file in the County Clerk's office show that the International Trust Company was authorized to begin business on Oct. 1. Among the checks and securities shown to then Acting Superintendent of Banks Skinner, as part of the capital stock of $200,000 and a reserve of $500,000 additional, was a check on the Borough Bank for $300,000.

It is alleged that as soon as the International Trust Company was authorized to do business this check was returned to the Borough Bank and either destroyed or hid away in some secret place. The Board of Directors of the Borough Bank, it is said by lawyers retained on behalf, knew nothing about this check.

Men Who Organized. The men who organized the International Trust Company are: William Gow, of the advertising firm of Ward & Gow; Howard Maxwell, Oliver M. Denton, Nelson B. Burr, Henry E. Hutcheson, N. B. Spratt, William E. Hurley, David B. Hutton, Stanley E. Gunnison, John S. Jenkins, Charles F. Darlington, Robert J. Cuddy. Most of them are also interested in the Borough Bank. John S. Jenkins, who figures in the Borough Bank proceedings, is not connected by ties of blood with the Jenkins family of the Jenkins Trust Company.

According to Samuel E. Whitehouse, counsel for certain of the involved financiers, the directors of the Borough Bank have been extremely active forces in the directing line. Mr. Whitehouse says they thought everything was all serene until the crash arrived last month.

Then they held a meeting and discovered that the bank had only about $250,000 in cash on hand; also that certain insiders had been dipping into the resources and taking out whatever they wanted.

They found, according to Mr. Whitehouse, overdrifts that were never entered on the books and a lot of unsecured paper. In the latter was a note signed by Senator McCarren for $130,000. The man responsible for the bank's condition was called before the directors and forced to put up $75,000 in mortgages and real estate.

Gow Pays in $600,000. William Gow, of the advertising firm of Ward & Gow, has in the past few days turned into the Borough Bank between $500,000 and $700,000 in securities. He is a director of the Borough Bank and also of the International Trust. Not all of these loans now covered by securities were made to Mr. Gow personally. A bank is forbidden to loan more than 10 per cent of its capital and surplus to any one individual or unsecured party. The amount now loaned to Mr. Gow is a question which will have to be settled by the Grand Jury.

Steps were taken in Brooklyn last night looking to a joint application by the depositors of the six banks and trust companies for an injunction restraining the receivers from taking charge of the various institutions.

The initiative was taken by the depositors' committee of the Borough Bank at a meeting at the Assembly. This meeting was addressed by William S. Hurley and other directors, and after it had adjourned Howard C. Pele announced that a mass-meeting of the three thousand depositors will be held in the Columbia Theatre on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock.

This meeting is called for the purpose of showing the opinion of the depositors at Mr. Jackson's unsolicited act," said Mr. Pele; "we will also at that time decide whether we will urge the other institutions to join us in a petition to the Supreme Court at once, restraining the receivers from taking charge."

James L. Gifford, of No. 5 Nassau street, attorney for William Gow, declined to-day to discuss the affairs of his client other than to say: "We shall make full explanation of any question at the proper time. Mr. Gow is just as ignorant of any wrongdoing. We have not been subpoenaed before the Grand Jury and are an involuntary body. We are here, and stand ready to answer any questions asked by any qualified authority."

Authority for Action Taken. Congress gave authority to the Treasury to issue bonds in the amount of $100,000,000 to be used in the construction of the Panama Canal. Secretary Shaw sold $50,000,000 of these bonds in 1906, and now Secretary Cortelyou is authorized to issue $50,000,000 more.

When Congress passed the War Revenue act of June 12, 1898, it authorized the sale of $100,000,000 of bonds for the purpose of using the proceeds to issue certificates of indebtedness to the banks. These certificates, which bear three per cent interest, must be redeemed in sixty days, or its multiples, and must be paid in not exceeding one year.

The amount of the amount of these certificates outstanding shall at no time exceed one hundred million dollars. Some of them were issued under the Spanish-American war because of the financial condition of the banks. The intention of Congress that these certificates should be used only for war purposes, and that they were to be redeemed, was recalled to the President had decided to issue these certificates. The greatest surprise was manifested.
