Attorney-General Jackson Says That in Creating the International, the Records of Banks Were Falsified and Their Securities Manipulated.

TWO DISTRICT-ATTORNEYS—ONE WHO DOES AND ONE WHO DOESN'T

What District-Attorney Jerome, of Kings County, has done: INDICTED.

William Gow, principal stockholder and director in the Borough Bank of Brooklyn.

"The International Trust Company, with offices at No. 200 Broadway, Manhattan, was organized on wind. If the information that has been communicated to me by the temporary receiver, Goodwin Brown, is correct, THERE WAS A POSITIVE FALSIFICATION OF THE RECORDS OF THE BROOKLYN BANK AND THE BOROUGH BANK, AND A MANIPULATION OF THEIR SECURITIES, IN ORDER TO APPARENTLY GIVE THE INTERNATIONAL TRUST COMPANY A SURPLUS OF $1,000,000, as required by the banking laws, all of which would constitute a violation of Section 592 of the Penal Code.

These transactions constitute a proper matter for investigation by the Grand Jury of New York City.—Statement of Attorney-General Jackson to The Evening World.

IT'S UP TO JEROME AGAIN. Attorney-General Jackson to-day put the criminal prosecution of the officers and directors of the defunct $1,000,000 International Trust Company up to the District-Attorney of New York County.

Mr. Jerome has failed thus far to interest himself in discoveries of irregularities growing out of the suspension of the banks and trust companies in his jurisdiction, although Mr. Clarke, the prosecuting officer of Kings County, has been actively engaged with the Grand Jury across the bridge for nearly a fortnight.

Receiver Brown reported to the Attorney-General to-day that R. W. Jones, jr., the recently deposed president of the Oriental Bank, was a debtor of the International Trust Company in the sum of $32,250. The loan is unsecured, and the receiver reports that "the indebtedness was an extremely doubtful asset."

The International Trust Company is a banking institution of New York County, which prior to its suspension, on Oct. 25, had active banking relations with the Oriental Bank and the First National Bank, both of Manhattan.

PENALTY IS TEN YEARS IMPRISONMENT. Section 592 of the Penal Code follows:

An officer, agent or clerk of a corporation, or of persons proposing to organize a corporation, or to increase the capital of a corporation, who knowingly exhibits a false, forged or altered book, paper, voucher, security or other instrument of evidence to any public officer or board authorized by law to examine the organization of such corporation or to investigate its affairs, or to allow an increase of its capital, or to effect a merger, or to effect a consolidation, or to effect a reorganization, or to effect a liquidation, or to effect a dissolution, or to effect a reorganization, or to effect a liquidation, or to effect a dissolution, is punishable by imprisonment in a State prison not exceeding ten years.

Trust Co.'s Stockholders Officers of Closed Banks. The stockholders of the International Trust Company, of New York County, are herewith shown to be the officers of the very Brooklyn banks which are to-day prosecuting an Albany, N. Y., agent temporary receiver, appointed by Judge Pettit being made permanent. The number of shares of stock is also shown opposite each name.

WILLIAMSBURG TRUST LOANS TO CLIQUE OF CLERKS

Same Names Appear on Books as in Jenkins Concerns.

Receiver Frank L. Bapst of the Williamsburg Trust Company, which suspended payment Oct. 25, to-day submitted a preliminary report to Attorney-General Jackson of the condition of that institution.

Both Superintendent of Banking Clark Williams and Attorney-General Jackson have held that the merger of the Brooklyn Bank and the Borough Bank with Gow's International Trust Company was illegal for many reasons.

The Brooklyn Bank had not turned over $75,000 worth of real estate, $124,701.96 in bills discounted and demand loans, $24,000 in cash, and $15,000 in other bills, besides $52,414 in bills discounted at its Flatbush branch.

Terms of Merger Not Lived Up To. "We are still holding," said the receiver, "evidence of our loans," said President Henry E. Hutchinson, of the Brooklyn Bank, when seen at his home, No. 30 Park place, Brooklyn, by an evening world reporter.

Our lawyers, Philip Beekman & Charles K. Beekman, a member of the law firm of the Oriental Bank, which cleared for the International Trust Company and the Borough Bank, and the late Howard Philip Beekman, Jenken & Co. counsel to the Oriental Bank.

The terms of the agreement by which the International Trust Company purchased the capital stock of the Borough Bank at par, $200,000, were never lived up to, and the receiver reports that upon the books of that institution now owned the Manhattan company.

Note for $250,000 Reputed. Comptroller Herman Metz was a large depositor of the Borough Bank, and a stockholder of the institution. It is said, in his report, that he had $250,000 in the Borough Bank, and that he had $250,000 in the International Trust Company.

Mr. Jones, who is a director of the Oriental Bank, and who is also a director of the International Trust Company, is said to have been a large depositor of the Oriental Bank, and to have been a large depositor of the International Trust Company.

Mr. Jones, according to the books of the Oriental Bank, is a borrower at the Oriental Bank, and is said to have been a large depositor of the Oriental Bank, and to have been a large depositor of the International Trust Company.

The work ahead for the District-Attorney of New York County is to get the books of the Oriental Bank and the Borough Bank, and to get the books of the International Trust Company.

Only 142 shares of the Oriental Bank were held by the directors and officers of the Oriental Bank, and the receiver reports that the Oriental Bank had a surplus of $1,000,000.

On Oct. 25, the day preceding the suspension of the Oriental Bank, the receiver reports that the Oriental Bank had a surplus of $1,000,000.

Mr. Jones, who is a director of the Oriental Bank, and who is also a director of the International Trust Company, is said to have been a large depositor of the Oriental Bank, and to have been a large depositor of the International Trust Company.

Mr. Jones, according to the books of the Oriental Bank, is a borrower at the Oriental Bank, and is said to have been a large depositor of the Oriental Bank, and to have been a large depositor of the International Trust Company.

The receiver reports that the Oriental Bank had a surplus of $1,000,000, and that the International Trust Company had a surplus of $1,000,000.

Securities Delivered Before Stockholders Voted on the Plan. "I am reliably informed," said Mr. Jackson, "that on Oct. 11 Secretary J. N. Beekman of the International Trust Company, called up President Hutchinson of the Brooklyn Bank on the telephone and requested him to bring over the books and securities, which are now in the possession of the Trust Company, to the office of the receiver, Goodwin Brown, at No. 200 Broadway, Manhattan, on Oct. 12, 1907. This was four days prior to the presentation of the merger plan to the stockholders of the Brooklyn Bank, when it was authorized."

TURNING IN A FIRE ALARM IN TRYING TO MAIL LETTER

Newly Arrived Hungarian Causes Great Commotion Around the Battery.

If Johan Metz, recently of Hungary, keeps up the pace he set upon making his debut as a citizen of New York to-day he is going to be a large, persistent noise in this community.

An hour later he landed at the Battery and started uptown, with his bag in one hand and a letter addressed to his Hungarian sweetheart in the other. He was intent upon committing the letter to the mails.

At the corner of State and Whitehall streets he saw a box fastened to a pole. It was similar to the mail boxes in his native land. With considerable pride about his own astuteness Johan turned the handle of the box. The door opened. Carefully depositing the letter in the box he turned around and waited for the postman.

In about half a minute a fire engine came dashing down Whitehall street and stopped at the corner. It was followed by two hose carts, a hook and ladder truck, a water tower, another fire engine, another hook and ladder truck and a battalion of the fire department.

There stood Johan Metz enjoying the spectacle to the utmost. The firemen had treated the letter as a fire alarm, and the battalion chief used a line of language that was certainly warm and friendly to the firemen who happened to look in the alarm box.

There he found Johan Metz's letter. While the firemen were busy trying to claim the precious epistle and thus reveal himself as the person who had sent it.

It was well for Johan that he looked the part of a newly arrived immigrant, and otherwise he might have attracted attention, leaving his native land. Somebody in the crowd understood the circumstances, and the battalion chief, the fireman who had looked in the alarm box, a policeman steered Johan to a letter box.

NOME IN A PLIGHT FROM SHOWER OF ASHES.

NOME, Alaska, Nov. 30.—Nome, and probably the entire Seward peninsula, is shrouded in an ash haze and the ground for miles is covered several inches deep with a fine gritty powder which is believed to be volcanic ash.

The storm began several days ago, the dust blowing in from the ocean. The first attention was paid to the freak of nature, as it was expected that it would soon cease. Instead, however, the fall continued, and after a few days the ash began to pile up, interfering with out-of-door pursuits.

Miners coming into town reported that the ash was so full of ashes that it was difficult to breathe. The powder has filled in houses and business places to such an extent that it is difficult to get about. The ash is believed to be volcanic ash.

BRIDGE JUMPER GETS SIX MONTHS ON ISLAND.

Wetzel's Mother Says He Is Drunkard and Often Threatened to Kill Her.

Robert Wetzel, who attracted a lot of attention in May, 1907, by jumping off the Brooklyn Bridge, was sentenced to six months in the State Prison for a crime committed when he was in the city of New York.

Wetzel's mother, who lives at No. 45 East 11th street, asked for $200 for his care. She said that the old woman said the son stayed drunk most of the time; that he stole her property, and that he threatened to kill her.

The indictment against Wetzel was returned by the Grand Jury on Oct. 25, 1907. He was arrested on Oct. 26, 1907, and was held in the City Prison.

NAVY TO WIN GOALS; ARMY TO WIN SIX GOALS

Budding Admirals Surprise the Academic Generals by Carrying the Fight to Them From the Start of Battle.

back for five yards. Beavers pointed to Jones in midfield. Jones went around the line for five yards. The Navy roared with mad enthusiasm and, rising to their feet, let out a siren yell.

Navy Held West Pointers. Douglas pointed to Mountford on Army's 25-yard line and was downed in his tracks. On the first plunge the Army failed to gain and the Navy advanced to Douglas's line. The Army pushed through for two yards, and then, on a forward pass to Stearns, made four more yards.

The Navy team hailed off for a consultation and Navy rosters began to be written. The Army's 25-yard line was a long line of Army Kites to a header across the Army stand. But if that was an omen for a speedy victory, a poor forward pass brought a penalty of fifteen yards with it.

Douglas pointed out of bounds and Beavers' return also went out of bounds. The Army's 25-yard line was a long line of Army Kites to a header across the Army stand. But if that was an omen for a speedy victory, a poor forward pass brought a penalty of fifteen yards with it.

Beavers Falls at Field Goal. Beavers tried for a field goal and missed by an inch. Douglas kicked out of bounds. The Army's 25-yard line was a long line of Army Kites to a header across the Army stand. But if that was an omen for a speedy victory, a poor forward pass brought a penalty of fifteen yards with it.

Navy Wild With Joy. The blue line gathered again and charged sides with the Army. The Navy's 25-yard line was a long line of Army Kites to a header across the Army stand. But if that was an omen for a speedy victory, a poor forward pass brought a penalty of fifteen yards with it.

Smith bored through tackle for three yards. Another attempt failed, and Beavers pointed to Douglas on Navy's 45-yard line. Douglas fumbled, but fell on the ball. A return punt was caught by Beavers, who kicked to the Army's 25-yard line.

Douglas ripped through for five yards, but immediately afterward fell in the forward pass and was compelled to punt. On their own 45-yard line, the Army's 25-yard line was a long line of Army Kites to a header across the Army stand. But if that was an omen for a speedy victory, a poor forward pass brought a penalty of fifteen yards with it.

Navy Falls at Goal Kick. Douglas hit the ball and Northrop prepared to try for a goal from the 45-yard line. There was a light breeze blowing from the east, and the ball kicked into the air. The kick barely rolled ten feet from the ground and fell short of the goal.

Score, Navy 6, Army 0. The first plunge forced the Navy back for a loss and the Army line held the second yard. The Navy's 25-yard line was a long line of Army Kites to a header across the Army stand. But if that was an omen for a speedy victory, a poor forward pass brought a penalty of fifteen yards with it.

Score at end of first half: Navy, 8; Army, 0. The interval was given over to the parading of mascots. An old gray army mule covered with ribbons was marched in front of the Army's 25-yard line.

Second Half. The two teams ran out on the field and the excitement was soon forgotten. Navy kicked off the Army's 25-yard line. Beavers kicked with a punt for three yards. Lange got the ball and was knocked senseless. The handlers worked over the Navy's 25-yard line.

Reifelder fumbled and Douglas recovered the ball. On a second attempt Reifelder kicked to the Army's 25-yard line for five yards. The ball went to the Army on downs. Army lost the ball on a forward pass and falling was penalized to the Army's 45-yard line.

Douglas kicked to Army's 45-yard line. Beavers was hurt. Jones was sent through Army's 150-yard line and fumbled, leaving the ball in the hands of the Army's 150-yard line. Lange's forward pass fell in the ground and a penalty brought the Navy back to the Army's 45-yard line.

DEAD BOOKMAKER CALLED HUSBAND BY TWO WOMEN

After Mrs. Manheimer had asked Coroner Harburger to investigate the death of her husband, Morris, bookmaker and horse-owner of a varied career on the turf, who died at his home, No. 63 West One Hundred and Thirty-ninth street, to-day, another woman came forward and declared that she was the widow.

She gave her address as No. 18 West Sixty-third street and thereupon the bookmaker's body was taken to the morgue for an autopsy. When the second woman demanded the body of the man she called her husband Coroner Harburger told her to see the other Mrs. Manheimer, and talk the situation over with her.

After an illness of two weeks, Manheimer left his home on the night of Nov. 14 to attend to some business downtown. The next day his wife received word that he was in the alcoholic ward at Bellevue Hospital. She went there and on Nov. 20 had her husband taken home. She says she did so at the suggestion of the Bellevue doctors, who told her they could do nothing for her husband and that he would in all probability come around better under home treatment.

Manheimer has lost his power of speech, Mrs. Manheimer says the hospital physicians told her that he might have a fractured skull or had been stricken with paralysis of the throat. Manheimer never regained his speech.
