

$2,000,000 FROM NATIONAL BANK IN JENKINS LOANS

Federal Examiners Unearth More Scandal in Brooklyn. BANK'S RECORDS GONE. District Attorney Clarke Traces Last Day Transactions to Save Insiders.

Exceptional as the developments have been since the Kings County Grand Jury took up the investigation of the Borough Bank and the Jenkins Trust Company, more surprising revelations are looked for in the Federal and county joint investigation of the footing of the First National Bank.

It is reported by men who have means of knowing what the preliminary investigation of the National Bank Examiners has revealed that the banking members of the Jenkins family obtained close to $2,000,000 from that institution while John G. Jenkins, Sr., was its president. The money was obtained, it is alleged, through false loans such as were made by the Williamsburg Trust Company and the Jenkins Trust Company to the brokerage firm of Frank & J. O. Jenkins, Jr., & Co.

Clarke Finds New Frauds. District Attorney Clarke, with bank examiners and assistants, was busy today arranging his documentary evidence to be presented in the Grand Jury in the Brooklyn bank cases Monday. The network of fraud spreads hourly, and it may be days before the District Attorney can reveal all who are enmeshed.

It is known that on the day of the suspension of the bank the notes and forged papers which were used to cover up the fraud transactions of Gov. Maxwell and Campbell were destroyed. However, the District Attorney, through the confession of Campbell and through the books which were secured from the wreck will be able to build up circumstantial cases, even with the papers absent.

Through the evidence of clerks he hopes to be able to establish the identity of every "insider" depositor and director who withdrew his money on the day of the suspension, before and after the bank closed. Some of these men are amenable to the law. According to a statement secured from a clerk at a prominent city office, withdrew $20,000 from the bank after the doors closed and a false entry was made on the books to conceal the fact.

Gow May Accuse Others. Martin W. Littleton, counsel for William Gow in proceeding on the Kings County Supreme Court today looking to the removal of Gow's picture from the Rogues' Gallery, intimated that Gow is not disposed to stand for everything. In his own defense he appears to be determined to drag in other directors of the bank.

Mr. Littleton in his argument made pointed references to "Honest Bill" Turley, who worked night and day since the close of the bank to make up the deficiency created by the crooked methods employed by the officers of the institution. It is apparent that Gow will give the lie to some of the directors who have maintained that they know nothing about the crooked work that was going on.

The directors of the Jenkins Trust Company are working valiantly to keep the institution from a permanent receivership. They assert that the directors are willing to leave their money in the bank for one year. If the depositors will agree to limit their withdrawals to 10 per cent. of the total, should the bank be allowed to reopen.

The depositors, however, are anxious to know what the Jenkins family is going to do about repaying the great sums of money borrowed from the Jenkins Trust Company to further various schemes.

DIES PENILESS AT 102. City's Most Bary Mrs. Horn Unless Charity Intervenes.

At the end of a life of one hundred and two years, the last forty of which were spent in free and loving service to friends even poorer than herself, the body of Margaret Horn lay in the undertaking room of Thomas S. Quinn, a No. 51 West Fortieth street, last night, waiting for charity to make possible her dying wish that she should be buried beside her husband in Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Horn, who was born in County Cork, Ireland, in 1805, died the day before Thanksgiving, in the Home for the Aged and Infirm, on Alexander street. Her husband, Alexander Horn, died twelve years ago, at the age of one hundred and three years.

BROUGHT CHILD BACK. Former Nurse Kept Augusta Duval Till Police Were Notified.

Augusta Duval, the 10-year-old girl whose guardians, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drimprey, of No. 123 West Twenty-ninth street, reported last night a missing with Marie Louisa, a former nurse, of No. 21 West Twenty-fifth street, is at her foster parents' home safe and sound to-day.

Mrs. Louisa, who is friend of Augusta, told Mr. and Mrs. Drimprey that she had taken the child for a walk and kept her. The former nurse got Augusta home about midnight, tired and sleepy, but very happy.

"Faust" Sung Again at the Manhattan; Next Week's Operas at Both Houses

Albani's Illness Causes a Substitution for Verdi's "Ernani"—Revivals of "The Flying Dutchman," "Iris" and "Lohengrin" at the Metropolitan.

ALBANI'S illness caused Mr. Hammerstein to substitute for Verdi's "Ernani" at the Manhattan Opera-House last night, Gounod's "Faust," which was sung the night before, at popular prices. The cast was nearly the same. Didur's impersonation of Mephistopheles was again the feature. Both his singing and acting were forceful, but he could better be called a superb actor than a singer.

Zenatello is not happily cast as Faust. He misses much of the lightness and grace (and may one say?) the effeminacy of the part. He uses far too much of the white voice. More heroic roles are better for him. With the memory of so many Marquises of quality in mind, it may not be said of Zepilli's effort that it nearly approached the standard. As to the audience of the good work of the orchestra, the chorus, and the soloists, the audience of the good work of the orchestra, the chorus, and the soloists, it seemed sometimes that deliberately he gave the former the preference.

Next Week's Operas at the Manhattan. MR. HAMMERSTEIN, busily at work rehearsing "Lohengrin" (the next of the French operas in which Mary Garden is to sing), will rely next week upon the works in his repertory that have attracted the greatest popularity. The programme in full is as follows:

SUNDAY—Popular operatic concert, with Bresler-Gianoli, Jomelli, Zepilli, Gerville-Reacha, Arimondi, Ancona, Gilbert and Crabbe.

MONDAY—"The Tales of Hoffmann," with Zepilli, Jomelli, Trentini, Dalmore and Renaud.

WEDNESDAY—"Thais," with Mary Garden, Renaud and Dalmore.

FRIDAY—"Faust," with Zepilli, Zenatello, Didur and Ancona.

SATURDAY—"The Tales of Hoffmann" at the matinee and "La Gioconda" in the evening, with Renaud, Gerville-Reacha, Zenatello, Ancona and Didur. Campanini will direct every performance.

Mascagni's "Iris" at the Metropolitan. MR. CONRIED announces three revivals at the Metropolitan Opera-House next week. Chief of these is Mascagni's Japanese opera, "Iris," which got three performances here some years ago under the composer's own direction. His imported company was not equal to New York's standards, and the work got scant approval; but it is full of beauty and well worth a hearing. It will be presented on Friday evening with Eames in the title part, her first appearance this season. Rita La Fornia, San Francisco girl, who has sung with Col. Savages' company, and studied with Jean De Reszke, will be Una Guacha. Carlos will be Oaska, Scotti, Kyoto, and Journe. Mr. Conried will conduct.

"Der Fliegende Holländer" will be sung on Monday for the first time here.

Victor Herbert and Harry B. Smith's "The Serenade" is announced for production by the Aborn English Opera Company at the Lincoln Square Theatre next week, with Estelle Wentworth, Fritz Von Büning, Harold Blake, Harry Luckstone and Phil Branson in the cast. This company has won its way to public favor.

William C. Carl at his organ recital in the Old First Presbyterian Church on Monday afternoon will have the assistance of a choir of twenty-three voices, that will sing Bach's cantata, "Sleepers Wake." Mr. Carl got the idea from the Motetten Choir, of the Thomae, in Wecke, Leipzig. On Monday evening in

BILLION IN NEW CREDIT MONEY IS TAKING SHAPE

Business May Bathe in a Golden Deluge After New Year's.

BIG SHARE FOR REALTY. Openings of Under-River Tunnels Lead Masses to Outside Homes.

New commercial credits aggregating a billion dollars are forming. Many of the millions may flow into New York real estate after the first of the year. The salient factors in the wave toward better times are these:

- 1. This country has taken $100,000,000 of gold from Europe within the past few weeks. It is being scattered throughout sections where it is needed most. On the gold as collateral bankers can issue $200,000,000 of new credit. 2. The United States Government is having the banks to take out new circulation. The total is expected to reach $10,000,000. This will be equal to $200,000,000 more credits. 3. Over $200,000,000 has been drawn out of its usual channels into the West for moving the crops. That money will be sent back to its natural reservoir in New York after New Year's. 4. The addition of these total $500,000,000 of credits to business users is expected to restore confidence, and with confidence restored the $100,000,000 of cash which has been hidden by hoarders during the past few weeks is expected to flow back into its legitimate place in the banks. On that cash, bankers can issue $200,000,000 additional credits.

$1,100,000,000 New Money. Thus a total of $1,100,000,000 in circulating credits ought to be added to the financial resources of the country after the turn of the year. It might be figured very much higher. Most New York banks issue 10 per cent. of credit in their vaults, while some Western banks issue 20 per cent.

In the mean time business men in all sections have been reducing their outlays, which has been hidden by hoarders during the past few weeks is expected to flow back into its legitimate place in the banks. On that cash, bankers can issue $200,000,000 additional credits.

So it is calculated that a large part of the money which is now being hoarded is seeking safe investment in the metropolitan.

Three Youths Held in Bail on Woman's Charge. Mrs. Beckworth Says They Dragged Her Into a Dark Brooklyn Hallway.

Mrs. Anna Beckworth, a housekeeper at the Hotel Metropole, Forty-second street and Broadway, New York, told a story in the Adams Street Police Court, in Brooklyn, to-day that caused Magistrate Tighe to hold three well-dressed youths in bonds of $2,000 each for further examination next Tuesday.

The prisoners were William Gerrity, twenty-two years old, No. 133 Clinton street, who says he is a clerk for the Lehigh Valley Railroad and that he was formerly an altar boy at St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church; John Connors, twenty-three years old, No. 123 Carroll street, and Stephen Doyle, seventeen years old, of No. 88 First place.

Mrs. Beckworth went to Brooklyn last night to visit Mrs. Mary Conroy, of No. 144 Summit street. About midnight she went into Hicks street to mail a letter. According to her story, the young men accosted her and followed her, despite her repeated demands that they leave her alone.

Passing a doorway in Hicks street she saw two of the men dragged her in with Joseph Aronstein, the tenor, as a soloist. Under the direction of Gerrity, the tenor's last concert of his full series at the Broadway Theatre to-morrow night, with (by request) the famous Italian orchestra, Dr. Clifford Wiley being the soloist, and a concert at the Hippodrome to-morrow night by Pupilla's famous Italian band.

The famous Kneisel Quartet, of which one-half is new this season, will give its first New York concert of chamber music at Mendelssohn Hall on Tuesday evening. The new members are: Mr. Roeniggen, second violin, and Mr. Willick, first violin, who gave the first concert of the season in a large hall at Boston two weeks ago, and the new half of the quartet, which was formed in the honors plied the o. o.

STOPS RUNAWAY NEAR RIVER'S EDGE

Policeman John J. McShea Rescues Miss Montgomery and a Woman Friend.

A team of spirited bays came tearing down the steep incline of Columbia Heights in Brooklyn this afternoon dragging at their heels a brougham that threatened every moment to capsize. On the box was a white-faced coachman in livery sawing at the reins with all his might and from the vehicle came a mingled chorus of women's screams.

As the runaway shot across Fulton street at the foot of the steep incline, Traffic Squadman John J. McShea saw it. He put his horse to a gallop after the bays.

Before he got near them the team had smashed through the gates of Fulton street and were plunging with the brougham down the slip toward the East River. They were within sixty feet of the water when the mounted policeman got apon the top of the off-horse and halted them.

From the cab two women, one a young and pretty woman, both practically helpless from fright, Miss Montgomery and a woman friend, were thrown out of the coach as it was not damaged badly.

The bladder, however, causing the old fellow the most annoyance, especially at night and early morning.

A noted authority in a recent article stated that he has wonderful success with the old-time "vegetable treatment." He states: "Of sixteen cases of bladder troubles and rheumatism which have been treated with this treatment only one very complicated case failed to fully yield to its remarkable influence. It is the most harmless treatment I have ever found to clean the system of rheumatic poisons, remove irritation of the bladder and relieve urinary difficulties of the old people. It is a true vitalizing tonic to the entire kidney and urinary structure, reinvigorating the entire system."

What the terms "old vegetable treatment" consists of the following simple prescription, the ingredients of which can be obtained from any good pharmacy at small cost: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and upon going to bed; also drink plenty of water.

This prescription, though simple, is always effective in the diseases and afflictions of the kidneys and bladder.
