BAT NELSON ALWAYS CAME BACK SMILING AFTER KNOCKDOWN

Unholz's Feat of Dropping Nelson Has Been Done Before by Corbett, Britt, Gans and Hanlon—New Club at So. Norwalk

Dane would be easy. I thought I could just go out and hit him a couple of times and collect the money. He was easy to hit. I couldn't miss him. The first time I knocked him down...

BOER UNHOLZ didn't do anything startling when he dropped Battling Nelson with a punch. Bat jumped up again without taking the count and went right along fighting as if he hadn't been hit.

NELSON has been knocked down a great many times in his fights. But he refuses to stay down. Young Corbett described his experience graphically after his last fight with Battling Nelson.

"The first time we met," said Corbett, "I wasn't in any condition. I didn't work, because I thought the Dane would be easy. I thought I could just go out and hit him a couple of times and collect the money."

HANLON dropped Nelson with a blow over the heart that nearly broke him in two. But Bat stuck it out until he was beaten...

JOE GANS beat Nelson down through the ropes at Goldfield—then helped him up. While coming to his feet Nelson punched at Gans. He kept right on fighting until the fourth round ended...

NELSON has taken a lot of pounding in every one of his fights. But he doesn't seem to worry over it. He has just accepted after the Goldfield scrap that Nelson would never be in shape to fight again...

JOE MULVIHILL wishes to spread the good news that there will be ten-round scraps within another month and in easy reach of New York. The conditions will be the same that prevail just now...

JOHN McGARRY is expected to furnish one of the most interesting scraps of the winter, as both are slem-bang fighters. Young Kenney has the distinction of having beaten Unholz, the Boer, who bested Battling Nelson at Los Angeles two nights ago.
