TABOO WON THE JESSE BROWN CUP AT BENNING

Crack Filly First in the Feature Event and Well Placed.

BY VINCENT TREANOR
(Special to The Evening World.)

BENNING RACE TRACK D. C., April 14.—Taboo, the fast filly of the April Green Stable owned by Gen. A. J. Towles, added the Jesse Brown Cup to her list of Benning victories this afternoon, after a driving finish with Hawking, the winner of the Dinner Sakes here. The speedy but faint-hearted Al Bush made all the early pace, only to quit in the stretch and finish third. Taboo is about the best filly shown during this meeting, but Jimmy McLaughlin believes his Personal is her equal. There was no chance of her racing to-day, because the clipper in the race were limited to fillies bred and

Improvements in the Grounds.

Within the grounds the sight was a picturesque one. Flags and banners adorned every available space in front of the grand stand and bleachers, while from the flagstaffs long streamers of small flags of all the nations floated to the breeze.

Another thing which caught the eye of the fans was the improvements made on the grounds. New bleachers appeared on the right field side of the grounds, and the 20-cent bleachers, which formerly occupied their place, had been moved down to deep center field. The new clubhouse, which has been erected at the Third Avenue side of the grounds and is the most beautiful on the circuit, seemed up in great shape.

All the stands and bleachers were painted a light green.

These improvements with others cost the management $2,000, and they certainly looked it. By 3 o'clock every seat in the grand stand and bleachers was occupied, while hundreds were compelled to crowd out on the infield, where they occupied benches.

By this time there was easily 18,000 spectators present, and they still continued to come to the grounds in large numbers.

Half an hour later both teams lined up in deep center and to the strains of a popular march the players marched across the field with Shannon's band leading.

Enthusiasm Great.

As the team came down in front of the grand stand the excited fans stood up and yelled themselves hoarse. The players then single filed, and grabbing a rope walked toward the plate. With a single jerk an American flag was released from the top of the grand stand. The band then played the "Star Spangled Banner," and everybody in the grounds, including the players, stood up with their hats off until the anthem had been finished.

The Brooklyn fans were given a great ovation when they took the field for their preliminary practice, especially Capt. Lumley, who is a great idol with the fans. At 4 o'clock the Rev. Frank Farrar, of the First Dutch Reformed Church, threw out the new ball and the game started with easily 30,000 spectators present.

A ground rule was established, a hit into the crowd going for two bases.

First Inning.

Bates hit the first ball pitched to the right field fence for two bases. Brown sacrificed. Alperman to Jordan. Beaumont made a scratch two-bagger, scoring Bates. McGann followed with a single to center, sending Beaumont over the plate. Ritchey bunted, but Alperman's error threw one first, and McGann went to second. Dahlen fled out to Hummel. Lewis made a great stop of Seymour's grounder, threw to Pattee, but late, but as McGann tried to score he was tagged on Pattee's throw to hit. TWO RUNS.

Pattee hit to Ritchey and died at first. Maloney fouled out to Seymour. Lumley batted out a long fly, which Beaumont gathered in. NO RUNS.

Second Inning.

Bowerman bunted safely and on Alperman's wild throw went to second. Young sacrificed. Ritchey to Jordan. Bates drew four wide ones. Brownie missed three swings at Rucker's curves. Ritchey fumbled Beaumont's hit, center in front of the plate letting Bowerman score and Jordan third. Mitchell joined the hit to Maloney for the third out. ONE RUN.

Jordan set the fans wild by lifting the ball over the right field fence for a home run. Alperman drove a long fly

The Old Guard Band started the disturbance by turning a full blast of "Are You There, Moriarty?" from one of the upper corners of the grand stand. A lusty-lunged rooster picked up the refrain and passed it down the line until the rear from the anxious seats had drowned out everything in the band but the big tuba. The poor little piccolo was folded up and put away for keeps. In that horde of singing fans it had no more place than the faldetto of a parlor tenor.

As early as 1 o'clock the populace began trickling through the gates of the American League Park, and a half hour later it had grown to a steady stream, which swelled in volume until it ran over at the edges. They came from every direction. Out of the Sigh-way thousands of fans popped to blink at the golden sunshine, stop for a moment to get their bearings and plunge headlong into a mad break for the ticket windows.

Jamming Them In.

By 2:30 every seat was taken, and the ushers imported from the sardine canneries for the occasion began their scientific work of trying to make more than one object occupy the same space at the same time.

In the crush women fought to maintain the symmetry of their Merry Widow hats, and when all had been seated, the stand was sprinkled with a collection of colors that would make a horticulture exhibit blush with knowledge of its inferiority. There was nothing on a baseball opening for millinery display, and notwithstanding the crusty of the custom be it known that hats are not removed at ball games.

The stands were swathed in colors and the fluttering colors of all nations from numberless halyards made the strings look like a line of a Neapolitan family's washday. It was typically a good-natured American crowd. Hundreds of old-timers who knew each other by sight, if not by name, shook hands, slapped each other on the back and laughed uproariously at any old joke or reminiscence that the most painful of near-humorists had a mind to spring.

All Kinds Were There.

Frank Farrell stood at the gate and greeted every comer with a glad smile. Among them were city officials, politicians, actors, actresses, poets, judges, rah, rah boys, plumbers and just plain people, but they all fraternized on the opening day, for you must realize that baseball is actually here and all men look alike when pleading with the batter to "crack it on the cork."

It was nearly 3 o'clock when the Old Guard band, dressed up like cavalry horses, quitted the grand stand and marched across the green. The Highlanders and Athletics were lined up at the far end of the field in platoon formation.

"The Conquering Hero Comes" came out of the band, and with a roar from the stands the heroes of the diamond pranced across the field. On the left were the Highlanders attired in spik and span uniforms of immaculate white with blue coats trimmed in black. Cannon's pearl buttons. The Athletics were gray with dark green coats, but they don't matter. The H's Toppers were the whole show.

In front of the grand stand the band played "The Star Spangled Banner," and every man, woman and child in

TENEMENT SHATTERED BY "BLACK HAND" BOMB

Twenty-Eight Families Rush Panic-Stricken to the Street Down Totttering Stairways and Fire Escapes—$500 Demand Refused.

Agents of the dreaded Bank Hand late this afternoon exploded a bomb in the hallway of a crowded tenement house at Twelfth street and Second Avenue. There were twenty-eight families in the building at the time. The stairways were blown out and the panic-stricken people were out by flying debris, but no one was seriously hurt.

The bomb was set to punish Vincenzo Bonomoro, an Italian banker, who occupied the basement for a business place and lived with his wife and seven children upstairs. He had refused to give up $500 to the "Black Hand" and had been threatened.

The people in the house had no warning. The concussion shook the building. Many reached the street via the fire-escapes.

A great crowd gathered in the streets and the reserves of the Fifth street station had to club their way through the frantic crowd.
