

LUNATIC KILLS WOMAN AND MAN; SHOT BY POLICE

Crushes Heads of His Victims With Iron Bar on Asylum Grounds and Escapes.

THEN FIGHTS PURSUERS. Leads Chase Through Swamp Near Washington, and Is Disabled by Bullets.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—In demagogic fury Andrew Lightfoot, a malatto inmate of the St. Elizabeth Asylum for the Insane, near the city limits here, today killed Patrick Maloney, the overseer of the grounds, and Millie Follin, an inmate of the asylum, and severely injured Miss Robinson, another inmate, early today.

The murderer escaped from the grounds and fled to a swamp nearby, where a score of policemen quickly surrounded him. Lightfoot, however, broke through the cordon and led a hot chase across the swamps to the grounds of the City Poorhouse, where he made a vicious stand, fighting his pursuers with stones and sticks.

The negro was in a frenzy and foisted police in every move until two of the men were ordered to draw their pistols and shoot. They aimed low during the lunatic's flight. The bullets struck him on both legs crippling him. He was then seized and bound and taken back to the asylum.

The murders occurred directly in front of the main building for the insane patients at the asylum, which is a government institution. Maloney, fifty years old, lived on the place with his family. Lightfoot, forty years old, had been a patient at the hospital for eight years and was regarded as of a harmless nature. For some time he has been serving as an assistant to the overseer, and was given in that capacity some of the privileges akin to those accorded the "trustees" in ordinary institutions.

At 5:10 o'clock this morning Lightfoot was suddenly seized with a violent homicidal frenzy. Grasping an iron bar which was close at hand, he struck at Maloney, the blow landing on the overseer's head, crushing his skull and causing instant death.

Immediately the murderer sought to effect his escape. Millie Follin was in his way and he struck at her, also crushing her skull. She dropped dead to the ground. Continuing in his flight, he encountered Miss Robinson and tried to kill her, but his aim was bad and he succeeded in inflicting only a slight scalp wound and a broken arm. Lightfoot ran through the gate and escaped.

He was pursued by keepers, who notified the police and his capture was effected as told.

$1,000,000 to Memorial Home and $500,000 Left to Tufts College.

The will of the late Henry J. Braker, filed in the Surrogate's office today shows bequests amounting to very large sums. The will seems to dispose of an estate of several million dollars. Mr. Braker, who died recently, was an importer at No. 109 William street, and lived at 1036 Fifth avenue.

To his wife, Catherine Morosini Braker, he leaves all his personal effects consisting of jewelry, paintings, &c., and to Austin B. Fletcher, in trust, his wife who will receive the income during her life, he leaves $1,200,000, to go to her children or any living child or grandchildren.

The will was drawn on June 1, 1907, is a very long document and two codicils were added, dated Aug. 21, 1908. Other bequests are $50,000 each to William H. and Walter D. Geisbunnen, $50,000 to A. B. Fletcher; small bequests to a number of relatives, and to his clerks $1,500 or more and $50 to all others; $1,000 to Maggie Keane, the cook, and the income of a $5,000 fund, while David William, the coachman, receives $1,000 and other servants $250 each.

WANT CASES THROWN OUT.

Persons indicted in Frank Gould Case Make the Motion. Counsel for Harry S. Mousley and Mrs. Ben Teal, indicted for attempted subornation of perjury in the Frank Gould divorce suit, moved before Judge Swann in Part I. of General Sessions today for the dismissal of the indictments on the ground that evidence prejudicial to the defendants had been heard by the Grand Jury and that the alleged false statements had never been used in any issue. Assistant District Attorney Kintleberger opposed the motion and Judge Swann gave both sides three weeks in which to submit his...

PRESIDENT QUILTS SUMMER CAPITAL FOR WASHINGTON

All Oyster Bay at the Depot to Give Him a Neighborly Farewell.

President Roosevelt, with his wife, his sons, Theodore Jr. and Quentin, his daughter Ethel, his executive staff, his personal servants and his escort of secret service men, left the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City this afternoon in a special train, bound for Washington. It was quite a special train, too, for, besides the numerous party of the President, it carried a carload of baggage and another carload of horses.

President Roosevelt will return to his Long Island home to register and to vote. Unless he should be reelected President at some future time, Oyster Bay has played her last engagement as the summer home of the nation. All the way in from his farewell at Oyster Bay to his departure from Long Island City the President was enthusiastically acclaimed by thousands. He had his big slouch hat in the air acknowledging greetings about half the time. There was a note of sadness in his leave-taking of the President from the thrifty Long Island people who have enjoyed the trade and activity that accompanied his visits annually for the past seven years. But although lost to Oyster Bay as an asset, he is still overwhelmingly its most popular citizen, and about everybody in the community gathered at the station at 10:20 o'clock this morning to give him a rousing end-off.

A General Handshaking.

Oyster Bay has never heard such cheering as greeted the President and his family. The Secret Service men, for the time being, discreetly retired to the background, and the President freely shook hands and gossiped with all who could get to him. As the train pulled out he stood on the platform and waved his hat until the crowd was lost to sight. Then Oyster Bay settled down to its old lethargy, prepared to enjoy for many years remembrance of reminiscences of the time when it was the Mecca of the most noted men of the nation.

At Long Island City the President and his party hurried through a lane of policemen to the private dock of the Long Island Railroad, where the Pennsylvania Railroad tug Lancaster was in waiting.

The President's special left Jersey City for Washington at 12:45 o'clock. President Roosevelt has not taken off much flesh during his thirteen weeks' vacation, but he never looked stronger or more active mentally or physically.

PASTOR'S WIFE GOES ON STAGE AS A SHOW GIRL

Mrs. Edwin E. Riley, of Philadelphia, in the Octet of Fritz Scheff Company.

In the half-lighted, littered-up behind-the-scenes of the Knickerbocker Theatre today, in an interval between snatches of frenzied musical comedy rehearsal, an Evening World reporter talked for a few minutes with a tall, remarkably pretty woman—Margaret Harrison on the play bill of the new Fritz Scheff show, but in private life Mrs. Edwin Elsworth Riley, the wife of the pastor of the fashionable Greenhill Presbyterian Church, in the residential centre of Philadelphia.

On Oct. 1 "The Prima Donna" opens at Chicago, at the Studenbaker, and while this young woman is exercising her splendid soprano voice in the role of Josette, one of the eight singers who make up the Estudiantina Octet that is to be featured in the production, her husband probably will be presiding over a class meeting of his congregation.

Liked Church Work.

"Yet there is no difference between my husband and myself," said the wife to the reporter. "We are perfectly congenial. The life of a clergyman's wife, with its rounds of visits, its church work, its choir work and all the rest of it was congenial to me. But nature has been kind enough to give me a good voice—a voice that was good enough to win prizes for me in the past—and I am taking this opportunity to start upon the career which I feel that I would love to pursue eventually to sing in grand opera."

To Wear Tights, if Necessary.

"What if you should be called upon to wear tights?" asked the reporter. "Well, I hardly know what answer to make," said the singer. "I understand that in this production no tights are to be worn by members of the cast or the chorus. However, I am ready to obey the orders of the stage manager. It is all a part of the day's work here, and I want to show that I am in earnest. If my ambitions are realized I will go abroad to study under the best teachers after a year of work in this company. I know that my husband is as anxious as I am that I should win success as a singer."

PUNCHED BY WIFE AS HE RETURNS FROM EUROPE

Woman Had a Court Summons for Desertion, a Grouch and a Strong Right Arm.

Mrs. Rebecca Greenberg was down around the Barge Office most of today waiting for her husband Elias to come back from his visit to Europe. Still at that it wasn't one of those "welcome-home-dinners" receptions that Mrs. Greenberg had framed up. She didn't mind telling the ship news reporters and other bystanders that she had stopped off at the Yorkville Police Court on her way downtown from No. 57 East Eighth-third street, and obtained a summons citing the returning Elias to appear on Friday, to explain why he went away eight months ago without saying anything about it.

"All our savings he takes with him," said Mrs. Greenberg in a firm, strong voice that easily carried as far as the Aquarium. "Also he leaves me with our seven little children to support, only by now there are eight. But my relatives in Germany they watch him, and they write me that he calls on the Kroonland. So he must be over there now on Mr. Elias's Island, getting his papers. Wait until you see the papers I have for him."

When the Government boat arrived bringing the first group of the Kroonland's steaming passengers who got by the immigration officers, Mrs. Greenberg's gleaming eye sighted Elias from afar. He stepped along jauntily in the press, and little did he realize the real class writers would say—little did he realize what was waiting for him. Policeman Charles Stilson had already told Mrs. Greenberg that she would have to serve the summons herself, which she did by walking up to Elias and handing him a fit on the left lower angle of the jaw that sounded like somebody dropping a cup of sugar from the tenth floor.

Mrs. Greenberg is no washing, and Elias rocked from the shock. Then he dashed for the steps of the elevated. But he was hampered by his luggage and by the Staten Island commuters and other innocent parties that he ran over, and Mrs. Greenberg was right there with the elevated, waiting every other jump. Going up the stairs she counted heavily. A train for uptown was just pulling out as they reached the station. Elias hurried the ticket chopper's box and made for it. Mrs. Greenberg, following with the elevated, walked every other jump. Just as the gate slammed between them. Then she rode uptown on the next train, wearing the expression of one who had freed her mind of a heavy weight.

Telephone Operating. EFFICIENT telephone service is critically dependent upon good telephone operating. A telephone plant may be properly designed to meet every traffic requirement. It may be well constructed and maintained. But unless it is operated by a competent force well organized and well trained, the service will be inefficient. Minutes mark time in transportation service, seconds mark time in telephone operating. New York City requires the most efficient telephone service that can be rendered. That it receives such a service is indicated by the following statistics showing the average time elements of the local traffic. Average time required for operator to receive calls and repeat them to calling subscriber 7.5 seconds. Average time required for operator to connect with and start ringing called subscriber 13.5 seconds. Average time required for subscribers to answer the telephone 10.5 seconds. Average time required to disconnect lines after conversation is completed 3.8 seconds. The telephone operator's work is complex. In New York and vicinity there are 185 central offices, connected by nearly 20,000 trunk lines, and serving over 400,000 telephones. The telephone operator must be prepared for every contingency that may arise. She must know the proper routing for any call that may be made, and must start each call along the proper channel without an instant's hesitation. The speed of the telephone service as evidenced by the statistics given above, indicates the high average skill of the present telephone operating force in New York City.
