

BEATRICE MILLS MADE BRIDE OF EARL GRANARD

Ceremony at Father's Home Marked by Lavish Expenditure Chiefly for Flowers.

ONLY 250 GUESTS.

The Marriage Took Place Before Altar of Lilies in Rose-Covered Ballroom.

Amid the usual scenes of splendor which attend the marriage of an American millionaire's daughter into the foreign nobility, Miss Beatrice Mills was wedded this afternoon to the Earl of Granard. The ceremony was performed in the ballroom of the Mills home at No. 2 East Sixty-ninth street, and was witnessed by 250 guests.

Because of the difference in the religious faiths of the bride and bridegroom a great church wedding was impossible, and thereby was avoided a stupendous crush of the sort that attended the wedding of the Duke of Roxburgh and Miss Goulet. However, nothing was left undone that could tend toward display and lavishness.

Rare Flowers Everywhere.

The entire residence had been put in the hands of decorators, and to-day the big stone house was a bower of beauty from entrance hall to Louis XV. ballroom, which is on the top floor.

The walls and ceilings of the ballroom, where the ceremony was performed, were decorated with white flowers, and the floor was strewn with petals of roses, interspersed with white lilies. Around the panels of mirrors which decorated the enormous room were garlands of smilax, gracefully caught back by bunches of brides' roses.

A temporary altar of Easter lilies had been erected at the north end of the room, where an immense wedding veil of the same flowers hung from the ceiling. Two hundred and fifty chairs were placed in this room, the aisles being decorated with white ribbons, roses and orchids, and here the relatives and intimate friends of the Mills family assembled to witness the ceremony, which added another American girl to the English peerage.

New York has seen daughters of the rich take into themselves a coronet at functions so elaborate as to arouse unfavorable criticism, but the wedding of Miss Mills to-day set a new standard of entertainment, outshining even the lavish debut of the Mills twins. The marble entrance hall, where the guests were received was festooned in American Beauty roses. In the reception, drawing and dining rooms, which are upon the same floor, this regal flower was found, making the entire first floor a harmony in red, while the color scheme of the library room was pale pink, great masses of tea roses being spread about the room.

The Wedding Ceremony.

When Miss Mills entered the ballroom on the arm of her father, D. Ogden Mills, wearing a gown of white satin, cut in a severe Directoire style, an orchestra of stringed instruments played the Wedding March from "Lohengrin." Throughout the ceremony "O Perfect Love" was rendered by a full choir, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March finished the programme. The bride's gown was especially designed for her with an embellishment of brocade embroidery around the hem. The court train, which fell from the bride's shoulders, was trimmed with the old point d'Ancien lace worn by Miss Mills's mother at her own wedding. A veil of the same lace was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms.

Miss Mills made an original departure in the way of attendants, having four little girls instead of girl friends as her bridesmaids. The four tiny attendants, the daughter of Miss Taylor, Courtland; Field Hanson, Clarence H. Mackay and Col. John Jacob Astor, wore caps of white lace and white ivory satin, fringed with silver lace. From baskets of pink roses they strewn the path of the bride as she walked up the aisle.

The Hon. Lord Granard, the Earl of Granard's brother, was seated in theusher's Messrs. (John L. Mills, brother of the bride, Colonel Mills, brother-in-law, L. P. Holburn, brother-in-law, D. Wetmore and Henry Carnegie Phelps).

After the Wedding

A reception and buffet luncheon, served in the beautiful Louis XV. dining room, followed the ceremony. The orchestra was stationed in the reception hall and alternated with another orchestra of stringed instruments during the reception. Wedding cake soups in white bouillottes, which Mrs. Granard, the mother of Miss Mills and Lord Granard, furnished mementos of the occasion, were served. The Earl and his bride left late this afternoon for the country home of the bride's parents at Stratton, in the Hudson, where the first part of the honeymoon will be spent. Before departing for England, where they have taken a three-day cruise in the "Hesperus," the Earl and his bride will pay a short visit to Washington.

The wedding presents which Miss Mills has received include a $50,000 gift from Miss Mills's grandmother, a town house in London, the purchase of pearls and diamonds worth $100,000 from the bride's parents at Stratton, a diamond necklace from Mrs. Matson, a diamond ring from Mrs. Whiteley, and a diamond bracelet from Lord Granard's gifts to his bride include a collar, a brooch and a corsage ornament of diamonds. These were brought to the property, but the photographs of them are shown at a given by Mrs. Ogden Mills on Tuesday when many of the other gifts will be displayed.

FOUND MOTHER-IN-LAW DEAD AT STATION.

Helen Bush, of No. 70 Hancock street, Brooklyn, went out to look for her mother-in-law, Mrs. Agnes Venn, late last night, and at 1 o'clock this morning identified her body, which was being held by the police of the Grand avenue station.

Mrs. Venn, who was fifty years old, and the widow of a lawyer, who died several years ago, was taken ill on a street car last night while going to the home of an old-in-law, with whom she lived, she was taken to a drugstore at Fulton street and gates avenue, where she died before a doctor could be called. It is believed she suffered a stroke of heart failure.

$160,000 GIVEN FOR NEW BETH ISRAEL HOSPITAL.

Adolph Lewishin Donates $25,000—Jews Proud of Upholding Old Pact With Peter Stuyvesant.

Under the lead of Adolph Lewishin, who himself gave $25,000, leading Jews of New York have added $100,000 to the fund for building a new Beth Israel Hospital, which now stands at Monroe, Jefferson and Cherry streets. The fund is now $160,000.

At the meeting at the Hotel Savoy the Rev. Dr. Rudolph Grossman said the Jews of this city have every reason to be proud of having earnestly fulfilled the agreement they made with Peter Stuyvesant, 29 years ago, when the Charter of Liberty was granted to them, to the effect they would care for their own poor and never let them burden the community.

Among the donors to the new Beth Israel are J. H. Schiff, Edwin Rubin, Joseph H. Cohen, Harry Fischel, S. J. Silberman, Nathan Herrmann, Mrs. Meyer Vassil, Mrs. Joseph S. Marcus, $5,000 each; R. Sadowsky, $7,500; L. S. Strook, $5,000; and Morris Asinoff and S. S. Rosenstamm, $3,000 each.

PROOF

That This California Oil Co. Will Absolutely Be a Big Producer and Should in 8 Months Be Paying Good Dividends, and in 2 Years Be Paying Over 40% on Par.

The old saying is undoubtedly true, "The proof of the pudding is in the eating." consequently the best proof of anything is the experience of others similarly situated...

vested in this stock two years ago at 10 cents per share is therefore now paying $2,000 per year in dividends and is worth $15,000. REMEMBER, these are not estimated figures of what will be or what can be—they are ABSOLUTE figures of the earning power and value of this stock to-day.

That this stock offering, just because it promises the same tremendous returns, should not be confused with the ordinary 10, 15 and 25 cent stocks offered to the general public by unreliable, or we might say, unthinking financial agents, is clearly shown by the following letters:

LUCILE OIL COMPANY

COALINGA, CALIF. January 4th, 1909.

In conversation with Mr. E. F. Preston a few days ago I remarked that the Coalinga Aladdin Oil Company property adjoining the Lucile was the very best absolutely proven piece of oil land in the whole Coalinga district.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

HANFORD, CALIF. Jan. 2, 1909.

In response to your inquiry of recent date in re the property of the Coalinga-Aladdin Oil Company which lies adjacent and West of the Lucile Oil Co. of 200, 600, 21 South, Range 1 East, well, I state that in my judgment, there is no better proven oil land in the Coalinga district than this property.

Oil Is Making Millionaires in California

And is making many of them. John A. Bunting, formerly a brakeman on the Southern Pacific Railroad, from the investment of $170.00 has become a multi-millionaire. Joe Chauslor was a clerk in a Los Angeles store, and he is now rated at over $5,000,000. every penny of it made in oil.

Now we firmly, honestly and conscientiously believe that we are here offering a chance for every intelligent man and woman who has a little money to really start on the road to the million mark by making an investment in the Coalinga Aladdin Oil Company stock.
